EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss.
EDITOR.

We hear good reports from many Leagues in different parts of the State. It comes in an indirect way. We shall be glad to have reports in form that we may let others know what you are doing.

We have just enjoyed a visit from Rev. W. T. Griffin, agent for our Orphans' Home at Water Valley. Let every League in the State assist the pastor in having a real interesting Thanksgiving service on the twenty-ninth of the present month, and let the collections go to the Home. Begin now.

From a personal letter from Prof. Hayes, our State League president, we quote the following item:

"I ought to tell you of my recent delightful trip to visit the Columbus Leagues in their Chautauqua exercises. The services gave evidence of intelligent and consecrated leadership, and faithful and earnest work on the part of the League membership. In Columbus the Leagues do not constitute an additional burden for the pastor to carry, but they are to the pastor what Leagues everywhere should be—a source of strength and help."

From some private communication from Rev. J. A. Bowen, our pastor at Columbus, Miss., received recently, we select the following notes of interest:

"We are all happy over the League Chautauqua held in our church from Friday evening, Oct. 19, to Sunday night. Prof. Hayes was with us and did grandly. Twelve members received certificates, and we have eighty in the class for 1901. We have purchased twenty-one sets of the new reading course. They are here, and our three Leagues are at work with them. The Sunday following our Chautauqua, by request of the Leagues and the pastor, Judge Cayce, president of our Central League, gave us a fine address on the Vanderbilt University Jubilee. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the University. The attendance was large, and the Leaguers were delighted. We are justly proud of our president."

This is all good. Others will do well to follow. What one League can do others can do.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Rev. J. S. Oakley and family have moved to Winona.

Rev. J. B. Culpeper is to aid Bro. Sanders in a meeting at Indianola, beginning the eighteenth instant.

Twenty-one sets of the Epworth League Reading Course, and eighty-five enrolled in the reading class for 1901 in Columbus. Who comes next?

Rev. W. M. Young, the young presiding elder on Corinth district, writes: "We are doing well so far as I can see; have had some good revivals and ingatherings; have had fine Conferences this round; I believe all the salaries are better than formerly." All of which is good.

This writer has recently spent more than two weeks in the Greenville district, during which time he visited and labored more or less in ten pastoral charges with fairly good results. The presiding elder and pastors in the Delta are a noble class of brethren who know how to treat a visiting fellow-laborer and to co-operate with him in his work. Thanks to them and to the lay brethren and sisters who were our "helpers in Christ Jesus."

The Sunday-school blanks have been sent to the pastors to be filled up and returned at Conference to the Secretary of the Sunday-school Board, as per instructions. If any pastor has not received his blank, let him write me at once for it, that there may be no failure nor delay in furnishing the desired report.

We need to have published at least one thousand more copies of our Conference Minutes than we have had heretofore. This can be done if the full assessment made to each charge is forthcoming at Conference. Why may it not be so? Brother pastor, it is a very small amount on your charge; be sure to bring it up and let us have more Minutes. Arrangements are being made for a portrait gallery of the Conference in the Minutes of this last year of the century. We want every preacher and lay delegate to appear in this, in order to which let each one bring to Conference a photograph of himself to be used in preparing the plates. Preachers and others desiring to procure during Conference any special books will please send me their orders in due time, that I may have them on hand. This notice applies also to the Mississippi Conference brethren, as I expect to be with them at Brookhaven.

All hail to editors and other writers in the religious papers who are speaking out in condemnation of foot-ball playing, as indulged in by some of our colleges. Let there be no uncertain sound on this and all intercollegiate gaming until the whole thing is put down in our church schools.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y. THE REAL HERO.—

BY REN E. REXFORD.

"I wish I could be a hero,"
A little boy said to me;
"And when I grow up, a hero
I really mean to be.
I mean to be brave," he told me,
While his face was all aglow:
"I'll do something grand and noble
That all the world shall know."

My little unfledged hero,
I've something to say to you:
In the time when you're sorely tempted,
To your own self be true.
Do right and let no one lead you
Into the ways of wrong,
And you'll be as true a hero
As ever roused poet's song.

Be kind to the poor and needy
You'll meet with in the way;
Your life be a light to lead them
To loftier heights, I pray;
Be steadfast, and work in patience;
In all things do your best;
Be a man, my little fellow,
And you will be all the rest.

THE RUSH TO THE CITIES.

As we stated last week, the census of 1900 will, in all probability, show that the exodus from the farms and country villages to the cities, which has been going on for some years, continues. Many who desert the farm find the struggle for existence in the city harder to bear and more disappointing than they had anticipated.

There are many reasons why young people on farms desire to go to the city, chief of which, perhaps, are the isolation and the consequent loneliness of their lives. They long to go where they can see people. This is a natural desire, and it should be gratified. But the loneliest place in all the world is a great city to one who knows no one there. It is not difficult to form a speaking acquaintance with strangers, for it is a part of one's duty in business to be forward and speak to would-be purchasers; but the acquaintance that develops into friendship is not easily made. There are thousands of young men and young women in our great cities who have not been within the walls of a real home since they left their parents' home on the farm. Their own home is a cheerless room in a boarding-house. Their acquaintances, such as they are, are often made on the street, in the public park, in the theater, or in a ball-room. It is a sad fact, but scarcely surprising, that many, simply because of their loneliness, fall into temptation and sin through these street acquaintances, and there find, too, their companions for life. One of the gravest problems to which city churches should give consideration, and one for which a solution must be found, is that of providing social privileges for homeless young people in the cities.

As prevention is better than cure, something should be done to make farm life more attractive, so that young people will be satisfied with it and prefer to spend their lives upon a farm rather than go to the city. That the farm has attractions is evidenced by the fact that children are most happy when there. No greater pleasure can be given a city boy or girl than to spend a few months on the farm, or to remove there to make it their permanent home. Children find delightful companions in dogs, horses, cows, sheep, chickens and the other live stock of a farm, but when they verge upon manhood and womanhood they begin to long for the society of people. How to adequately provide this society is a problem. In early years the country appointment of the Methodist circuit-rider was a social as well as spiritual means of grace, and was a common meeting-place for the people of a large district. Possibly the abolition of the circuit system in the thickly settled portions of the country, and the non-employment of local preachers, who held meetings more or less frequently during the intervals between the visits of the pastor in charge, have increased the discontent with farm life by decreasing the opportunities for social intercourse. The problem of the country church is causing anxiety to all Protestant denominations. Methodism may find, in part, the solution, so far as its relation to the problem is concerned, in the revival of the lay preacher and the class-leader and in the social work of the Epworth League.

It is in the home itself, however, where the greatest change in farm life must be made. The home must be made so attractive that children will feel that it is the most charming place in all the world. The "spare room," whose dampness has caused the death of hundreds who dreaded the fate which compelled them to occupy it, should be given to the children of the family to occupy and adorn, and the "parlor," which has been so sacredly guarded that to many children it was as mysterious a place as a pirate's cave, should be opened up, and the sons and daughters be permitted to make it an assembly-room for their friends. The farm-house should be made bright with music, pictures, papers, magazines and books, and the children should be permitted to indulge those innocent amusements which give them pleasure and bring young people together. Some of these things cost money, but they are wise expenditures. They make the young people contented with home and save the heartaches of parents.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

IS THE AMERICAN HOME DETERIORATING?

ELIZABETH CADY STANTON.

As to the increase in the number of divorces being an evidence of the weakening of home ties, I think it is quite the contrary. I believe it is due to the growing independence of woman and her recognition of what is due to her as the mother of the race. Her new dignity and self-respect will not allow her to maintain relations which can never be productive of anything but degradation and misery for herself. She knows, too, that the influence of unhappy relations between the parents will act most disastrously upon the children. There will probably be some abuses, but, on the whole, facility in obtaining divorce will result in strengthening all true relations and weakening all false ones.

In short, I believe that many of the things bemoaned as evils, including the apartment house, the woman's club, and less stringent divorce laws, are heralds of the good time coming, the ideal society and home of the twentieth century.

REV. ROBERT COLLYER.

There are no happier homes on earth than ours. It is said that a happy country has no history. This is more true of homes than of nations. We hear much of divorces; yet they occur not more than once in a thousand marriages. Only the seed of discord will germinate and grow into a weed that will destroy the home.

To speak personally, I lived thirty-seven years in the country, and have lived forty in the city. Both lives have their value—the country for gathering in forces, the city for putting them out in the interest of our fellows.

But, wherever they may be located, I see no degeneracy in American homes. The divorces are merely the driftwood on the surface of home life. They in no way represent or reflect the clear depths.

Let a young man begin right by marrying the right woman, and marrying her early in his life, and his home will be a great blessing.

REV. MADISON C. PETERS.

I believe that the greatest defect in our social system is the aimless way in which girls are brought up to-day. Very few, indeed, are prepared in either body or mind for the lofty duties and serious responsibilities which marriage implies, and marriage, in consequence, has been brought down to a low, sensual plane.

The state of life to which it has pleased God to call our women is, for the most part, that which entails the duties of the housekeeper and the homemaker; and, for those duties, the learning acquired in the schools does much to unfit them. The result of this unfaithfulness in the foundation, the education, is seen in woman's wearying in her attempt to be a queen in her own household. And so she allows her little kingdom to live without a head.

MRS. FRANK LESLIE.

Apartment, hotel and club life are, I believe, among the principal influences in the weakening of home ties, and, perhaps, greater than any of these is the growing desire of women for a wider field of action than that bounded by the limits of the home. I believe in higher education to the broadest possible degree of culture for women as well as for men, but I am not a very strong advocate of what, in public parlance, is termed a "career" for women; for I think that, in seeking and finding a career, as women do now, they give up a great deal in the way of that tender family life that meant so much in the past. As a general rule, the woman who leaves the home to follow a public career must lay many sacrifices on the altar of gratified ambition. —Success, for November.

AN EFFECTIVE LESSON.

A drunkard in New Orleans was recently saved from continuing his career of dissipation in a peculiar manner. The young man in question was of a fine family and had splendid gifts, but was going down as fast as it was possible for a man to go through strong drink. His friends had pleaded with him, but he had taken their warnings as an insult. One day one of them, who was a court stenographer, determined to try a new tack with him. He was sitting at a restaurant one evening, when the young man in question came in with a companion, took the table next to him, sitting down with his back to him, and not seeing him. He was just drunk enough to be talkative about his private affairs, and on the impulse of the moment the stenographer pulled out his notebook and took a full shorthand report of every word he said. It was the usual maudlin folly of a young man with his brain muddled by drink, and included a number of highly candid details of his daily life—things that when he was sober he would as soon have thought of putting his hand in the fire as of speaking about to a casual acquaintance. The next morning the stenographer copied the whole thing neatly and sent it around to his office. In less than ten minutes he came tearing in with "What is this, anyhow?" "It's a stenographic report of your monologue at the restaurant last evening," his friend replied, and gave him a brief explanation. "Did I really talk like that?" he asked faintly. "I assure you it is an absolutely verbatim report," was the reply. He turned pale and walked out. He never drank another drop. There are many men who would cease not only the sin of drunkenness, but other sins as well, if they could see themselves as other people see them.—Herald and Presbyter.

A NEW WESLEY STORY.

A new Wesley story is told by Sir Edward Russell, of the Liverpool Post, who had it from an old lady now living on the Isle of Man. Her great grandfather once entertained the famous evangelist, John Wesley, and at that time her grandfather was a little boy. He was allowed, as a great honor, to come to dinner, and Wesley patted him on the head at the close of the meal and asked him what he meant to be when he grew up. "I'm going to be a preacher," said the youngster; "there are always such good dinners when the preachers come."

"LET US GO HOME."

Say what you will of the coldness and selfishness of men, at the last we long for the companionship and the fellowship of our kind. We are lost children, and when alone and the darkness begins to gather, we sigh for the close relationship of the brothers and sisters we knew in our childhood, and cry for the gentle arms that once rocked us to sleep. We are homesick amid this sad, mad rush for wealth and place and power. The calm of the country invites, and we fain would do with less things, and go back to simplicity and rest. And so it came to pass that about the year 2001 men began to think, and they saw that to work all day with your head, and never with your hands, failed to bring content. The most successful man was the most unhappy; and they turned at last from the city to the country.

They said, "Let us go home—all is so quiet there." They found, having taken a little time, that there was a beauty in the country they had not quite forgotten, and the melody of the water running over the pebbles, hastening to the sea, was a song of gladness. They saw, too, that animals and birds that lived in the open air never went into decline—that the chipmunk's health did not fail, nor the quail have nervous prostration.—Elbert Hubbard, in Good Housekeeping.

Two recent deeds of women deserve wide recognition: One was that of Miss Buck, of St. Louis, who rescued and sheltered a woman from the strike mobs, after the poor girl had been denied refuge by two men—a saloon-keeper and a grocer. The other was the act of a Miss Rosborough, of Chester, who risked and lost her life to save a negro child from a train. It is no uncommon thing for a woman to be brave, but these deeds deserve to be known and remembered.—Southern Advocate.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

OBITUARIES.

MOORE—EDWARD JAMES MOORE was born June 7, 1858, and died Sept. 26, 1900.

Nothing too good can be said as to the life and character of this man. In whatsoever condition or relation of life he was placed, no fault was found, no complaint was made. His integrity was unspotted, his honor unimpeached.

Bro. Moore served the people of Lafayette county, as keeper of the parish, for more than fifteen years. In this capacity he gave perfect satisfaction. He had not to seek his place, but was sought. His dealings with the unfortunate—the poor—showed the man. He regarded his relation to them as sacred, and not as a mere hireling. In return they loved him, and wept when he died; they lost a friend.

The Christian character of Bro. Moore was known and read of all men. In early life he lived right; he was a good boy—the best material for a good man.

Bro. Moore joined the Methodist Church when about fifteen, and was ever faithful, both as a private and official member. As a steward, his equal was hard to find. His pastor has lost a true friend. Virtue has her own reward. Edward Moore lived virtuously; his reward is life eternal.

Perhaps the noblest phase of the life of this good man was his devotion to his family. He loved his wife and children, and had the strength not to be ashamed to show it. He indulged in those tender expressions of affection which make life sweet and beautiful. His memory is sacred because his life was holy.

J. G. HUGGINS.

MIXER—PAUL MIXER, ninth child of Bro. Chas. Mixer, deceased, and Mary Ann Robinett, was born Oct. 20, 1883, and died in the home of his nativity, Big Cane, La., Oct. 28, 1900, at 4 o'clock A. M., leaving a widowed mother, two brothers and four sisters to mourn his loss.

Bro. Paul was a Christian and a devoted member of the M. E. Church, South, having joined during the pastorate of Bro. S. H. Whatley in the year 1895. It can be truthfully said of him that he was a consistent member. He was an affectionate and devoted son and brother, and much beloved by the entire community. "Beautiful in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." The family are broken-hearted, the home is desolate, and the church sustains an irreparable loss, but our brother has crossed the turbulent stream, and is now with the blessed "multitude which no man can number." We will find him there when we cross over into the city of the redeemed. What blessedness now is his! What rest! what peace! "In my Father's house are many mansions," says the Master, and Bro. Paul now inhabits one. When we contemplate the reward of the just from a Bible picture, the terrors of death dissipate in the glory of the resurrection, and the shadows melt in the splendors of the morning dawn. He can not return to you, mother, sisters, brothers, but you can go to him. His pastor, WARING—EMMA OPHELIA WARING, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Waring, was born March 23, 1890, and died Oct. 2, 1900.

About the fifteenth of May, Emma, with her papa, mama, sisters and brothers, went out to Mammoth Mineral Springs, near Hattiesburg, where they remained until Sept. 20, when they returned to their home at Waterboles. She had been at home only one week when she was taken suddenly ill, and died after an illness of four days. She was a bright little girl, and seemed ever ready to assist her mama and sisters in any way she could, and, oh, how they miss her; but she was too pure for this sinful world, and God, having provided something better in store for her, called her to a heavenly home.

May her parents, brothers and sisters, who have before been bereft of loved ones from their home circle, think of them as safe in the arms of Jesus, and may these sad trials help to draw them heavenward!

Her cousin,
M. B. L.
Waterboles, Miss.

EGGERTON—MRS. MARTHA EGGERTON was born in South Carolina, and moved to Mississippi in the year 1856. She was married to Silas Eggerton, of Quitman, Miss., in 1856. From there they moved to Mathersville, where she lived until she departed this life, which sad event occurred Oct. 13, 1900. She joined the Methodist Church when quite a youth, and remained a Methodist until her marriage. Her husband being a Baptist, she joined his church. She was seventy-three years one month and nine days old at her death. She has five children to mourn their loss.

Sister Eggerton was a sufferer for several months before her death, but bore her afflictions with Christian patience. I visited her several times during her illness, and found her resigned to the will of God. She asked me every time that I visited her to conduct a prayer service, and at the conclusion she would say "Amen!" in an audible tone. She often expressed her conviction that she would not live long. She desired to live, if it pleased God to spare her to her children, but was perfectly resigned to his holy will. She often said that she had a rich inheritance in heaven, as her loved ones who had passed on before were waiting and watching at the beautiful gate to give her a heavenly greeting when she comes. Dear children, mother is gone, but you know where to find her. Step on, thou faithful servant of God, until Jesus comes to take his jewels home.

R. H. BARR.

WOOTTEN—CHARLES PERRY, infant son of J. W. and Mrs. Lottie Wootten, was born March 17, 1899, and died Oct. 23, 1900.

He was a bright, healthy little fellow, and seemed destined to be a robust, stalwart man. The grim monster, Death, ordered it otherwise. Like a little bud swelling into a larger life, or a flower opening its petals to a life of greater fragrance, the life of little Perry was becoming a richer and deeper reality. His powers were fast developing, and the little baby was fast gliding into childhood. Tender were the ties that bound father and mother to the little child, and great was the grief when these ties were severed. For three weeks the little fellow was a great sufferer from inflammation of the bowels. Death came at last when medical skill could not afford relief. As one bound the spirit of little Perry mounted the fragrant hills of God to be with him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not."

May a sympathizing Savior sustain the sorrow-stricken family, and may he who took little children in his arms and blessed them pronounce his blessings upon those who have been so touched and torn with grief!

E. S. LEWIS.

Brookeville, Miss.

GEIGER—At his home near Silver Creek, Miss., on May 2, 1900, after an illness of only a few days, our friend and brother, Mr. LEWIS W. GEIGER, departed this life in the seventy-fifth year of his life.

Bro. Geiger was born near Jessup, Wayne county, Ga., on the first day of March, 1826. He came to Mississippi at the early age of fifteen, in which State he spent the remainder of his life. He was married about the year 1849 to Miss Elizabeth Bush, of Simpson county (who died in 1880), to whom eight children were born, five of whom are still living.

Bro. Geiger joined the Methodist Church about the year 1880, and was a good citizen, a devoted Mason, and a man who had long since learned to trust in the blessed Savior; and that is sufficient proof of his piety. I visited and prayed with him in his last illness, and he told me he was ready and prepared to meet God. Would to God we all could say we are ready to meet him! When life, with all its conflicts and temptations, is past, and the Father receives us unto himself, among the familiar faces awaiting us there we expect to behold the glorified face of Lewis Geiger.

J. EARLY GRAY.

Silver Creek, Miss.

WINTERS—LITTIE RUTH, daughter of Harry H. and Joyce Winters, was born Oct. 25, 1899, and died Oct. 29, 1900. She lived just one short year; but such a life of sweetness and innocency! What a joyous ray of sunshine! How happy she made the home into which she came! It seems that she "came from above," to bring some of heaven's brightness into this darkened world, and God recalled her to adorn heaven's portals, for "of such is the kingdom of heaven." She has left sad and lonely hearts, but has cast into memory's casket such sweetness and beauty that neither time nor eternity can fade or eradicate. Oh, what tender, sacred ties these little childish lives can bind about our hearts!

Little Ruth lived her sweet, happy mission, and now is forever at rest. No sin can mar, no pain can afflict, no death can interrupt. Her cries of pain are now changed to shouts of joy. Her pitiful appeals for help when none was nigh are now beckoning calls for loved ones to come to her home. May God comfort the stricken hearts of these fond parents, and through their blinding tears may they ever behold little Ruth as she is!

WINE OF CARDUI

How a Woman Suffers.

HOWELL, IND., Nov. 26.
I will always praise Wine of Cardui. It has done me more good than all the medicines I have ever taken in my life. Please send a book about female diseases to the ladies whose names I enclose.
Mrs. MINNIE STODGHILL.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

It isn't necessary for a woman to give particulars. When she says she has "female troubles", other women know what that means. It means days and nights of endless suffering. it means headaches which no tongue can describe. It means that terrible bearing and dragging down in the lower abdomen. it means agonizing backache, and shoulder ache, and arm ache, and aches in the lower limbs. It means nerves on edge—the blues— despondency and loss of hope. It means debilitating drains that the doctors call leucorrhœa. It means martyrdom—sometimes even death seems preferable. And still Wine of Cardui will utterly put those diseases and pains to rout. It has cured thousands of cases when nothing else on earth would. To the budding woman, to the bride, to the wife, to the expectant mother, to those going through the Change of Life, this Vegetable Wine is a blessing.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to November, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stoppage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on the spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

Additional Accessories. Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer, 1 Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 8 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Oil Guage and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is perfectly illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.

This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address

Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home.

To the Friends of the Home:

You will please let me call to your attention the needs of the Home. Owing to short crops being made this year throughout Mississippi, the collections for the Home have not amounted to the sum expected. This requires on our part a more earnest effort and appeal to you in behalf of the Home. If it were possible to bring the wants of this institution to the attention of every individual in our State, all would be well. You will kindly let me request of you in behalf of the Home, that in observing Thanksgiving services you will take up a collection for the Home. In case of union services, let our Home be one of the beneficiaries. We would suggest and solicit subscriptions and gifts from individuals. We now have five girls in colleges, and while their tuition is free, yet we know their expenses are necessarily greater.

God has been kind and loving to us in many ways during the past year, and we can not show our gratitude to him more forcibly than by contributing to the wants and uplifting of his little ones. "He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will He pay him again."

Fraternally,

JNO. H. SHERARD, Pres't.

GROWTH OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army, though quite a young organization, has had a truly phenomenal growth. Originating a little over twenty-five years ago, it now has 5,600 stations, which are in charge of fully 13,000 officers. Although work in America was not begun till 1881, the organization now has 765 stations in this country, with more than 2,500 officers. It has also established 118 institutions for the amelioration of social conditions, 4,000 persons being reached daily in the ministrations. Through its agency 270,000 persons annually become seekers of salvation. Including the National Headqnarters, there are in and around New York City fifty centers of activity, among them being four shelters for men, one for women, two Rescue Homes, a Children's Home, a Labor Bureau, which has secured employment for 10,500 persons, and an Inquiry Department, which has found 210 lost friends.

Songs of All the Colleges

We are in receipt of an attractively bound book of songs entitled "Songs of All the Colleges," published by Messrs. Hinds & Noble, Cooper Institute, New York City. The songs are compiled and arranged by David B. Chamberlain (Harvard) and Karl P. Harrington (Wesleyan). Cloth. 218 pages. Price, $1.50. In collecting the material for this new book of college songs the compilers have endeavored to select the songs which are most popular to-day in all the colleges.

The Syracuse University Herald has the following to say concerning the book:

Going beyond the usual scope of a collection of college songs it comprises those that are typical of many colleges, each of its own alma mater. This feature alone would be sufficient to commend the book to students generally, for a sort of acquaintance is felt with another college by knowing its songs. The fraternal spirit among colloges and universities already developed to a marked degree seems to prepare a field for this book which, in its turn, will aid the widening and deepening of this same spirit.

THE PEOPLE TESTIFY that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, nervous troubles, and you may take it with confidence that it will do for you what it has done for others.

The non-irritating cathartic is Hood's Pills.

A timely article is Macaulay's Centenary, by Prof. James Main Dixon, which has first place in The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine, for November. The article is commemorative of the centennial of the famous English historian, who was born Oct. 25, 1800, in Leicestershire, England. An exquisite portrait of Macaulay appears as the frontispiece of the number. Wesleyan Missions to the Maories, by Hannah C. Storer, of Waikato, New Zealand, is an interesting account of the establishment and progress of Methodist missionary work among the Australasian aborigines. The story abounds with incidents of hardship and danger, and the illustrations are from photographs of striking features of New Zealand coast and mountain scenery. The Rev. J. W. Luccock contributes an appreciation of Frank Wakeley Gunsaulus, the Poet-Preacher. The thirteenth in the series of articles on Famous Writers deals with Michael Bruce, author of The Mountain of the Lord and the hymn, Christian Resignation. Chapter XXI. of The Illustrated History of Methodism deals with The Final Development of British Methodism. It takes up the period following the death of Wesley, when, practically without a government, the church rose to the occasion and brought permanent order out of the chaos which threatened. The Poet-Laureate on Dante gives a summary of a recent address delivered by Alfred Austin before the London Dante Society. It is finely illustrated. A Faithful Lover, by Elsie Kendall, is the short story of the number.

By BELLE KEARNEY.

Cloth, 12 Mo, Fully Illustrated. $1.

This is a book which photographs the new South in contrast with the old. It deals especially with the evolution of Southern women—their surprising energy in leaping from the lap of the old, feudal, luxurious life to meet the stern realities of to-day. The author herself belongs by birthright to the old regime, while in full sympathy with the new condition. She writes from the inside, and pictures in her vivid and throbbing pages the situation down in Dixie as it relates to the people, education, the woman question, temperance, the economist, etc. All those who would have an inside knowledge of Dixie's Land as it is to-day should read it.

THE GALVESTON DISASTER.

Shortly after the disastrous storm of September 8 Bishop Candler detached me from the pastorate of St. John's Church, and directed that I meet as many Annual Conferences as possible in order to solicit help toward the rebuilding of our church at Galveston. The Bishop's own estimate of the amount needed by our stricken people is twenty thousand dollars.

In accordance with instructions given I have met the Southwest Missouri, the Holston, and the Tennessee Conferences. Dr. Whisner has presented our cause to one or two other Conferences. From the spontaneous and generous responses already given we hope to secure from the round of Conferences the sum of ten thousand dollars. The second ten thousand, we believe, will come as spontaneously from the church at large if our appeal can be heard.

The great storm came not without warning. The Weather Bureau predicted its arrival as early as the evening of September 7. Personally, I have heard of but one individual who gave serious attention to the warning—a gentleman who telegraphed his family, then en route to Galveston, to stop off at San Antonio, assigning as the reason for such action that a great storm was raging in the gulf. Friday night passed without the predicted storm. Saturday morning witnessed the usual scenes, men and woman everywhere going to their work. About noon Saturday rain began to fall. Many of us went to dinner as usual. I did. Of this number many returned in the afternoon to their work. I did. I had scarcely reached my study at the church, some six blocks from the parsonage, when the storm struck us in earnest. The wind blew fiercely, the rain fell in torrents. Every electric car was soon brought to a standstill. The streets soon filled with water. The raging storm grew steadily worse. By four o'clock the trees in the churchyard, some of which had withstood the elements for twenty years or more, were all down. Suddenly, at about half-past five o'clock the water rushed around St. John's Church, and for the first time I realized that the sea was upon us, and that our helpless city was at the mercy of the angry gulf. My first thought, of course, was of the wife and little ones six blocks away. How to get to them was the problem. The storm was now frightful, and between us and the loved ones were six blocks of maddened waters. Cars and hacks were nowhere to be seen. Fortunately, a negro appeared in a skiff. The bargain was quickly made. I was to go home. The good negro waded at places breast-deep, at other places the water was too deep for wading, and at such places we had to row our boat as best we could. Great waves were now surging through the streets, small houses were floating, debris of every kind now filled the streets. The journey, however, was made safely. I found two or three feet of water in my yard. The wind had carried off the sentile from the house, blinds had been blown from the windows. Soon our little family was forced to the second story. The water was now from five to six feet in the yard and from eighteen inches to two feet in our new parsonage. About half-past six o'clock, with great difficulty, I pulled in a man and his wife from the storm. For three awful hours we sat, expecting each moment that our house would certainly go. About eight o'clock the wind reached a velocity estimated to be one hundred and twenty miles an hour. The oil in the lamp oscillated as if being carried by one walking across the floor. The wind seemed to come in terrific relays, like an awful regiment of demons temporarily repulsed, only to come in more fearful assaults. At one time the brick fine fell upon the roof, and we thought all was gone. At another the entire front of the house, foundation and all, was forced two inches from its place, and for a moment all seemed lost. After two hours of such suspense the wind abated considerably. There was scarcely a dry place now in the house, upstairs or downstairs. Still, we managed to find a place comparatively dry, and lay down for rest. But there was to be no rest. A cry from the darkness aroused us. Go I must. The waters had greatly abated by this time. To my surprise I found my fences washed away; to my greater surprise I found that the seven-foot brick walls inclosing the convent just across the street from me were down. I struck water breast-deep one block west of the parsonage. A perfect mill-race was dashing through the streets. The cry ceased, the rain was blinding, and I had to give up my search. A second time, however, the cry of distress took me out of my house. This time I succeeded better. I was amazed, however, to find an immense pile of ruined houses in the street some distance from where I had first gone. I climbed over fallen trees and ruins of houses, and found Mrs. Dr. Ashton, who, with her aged mother, had floated some ten blocks. The faithful daughter had been able to hold her mother's head out of the water to that point, but here she became entangled in the timbers and drowned. In the midnight darkness and pelting rain the faithful daughter, shivering with cold, kept watch over the body of her dead mother. Such a moment! I had never felt its like before. The daughter reluctantly left the loved form for the itinerant's home. Early in the morning I stood by the body again.

If we were slow to take the warning of the storm, we were equally slow to realize the awful proportions of its ruin. My first impression, as I stood that Sunday morning by the body of Mrs. Barnes, was to wait for the coroner before I moved it. Wait for the coroner! There were not enough coroners in Texas to view our dead. Soon a negro said to me, "A man with tan shoes on lies just here." Another said, "A little boy is just there under the telephone pole." Another one said, "The bodies of a woman and of a child are here by the railroad track." Soon a bedraggled mother came holding in her tired arms the limp form of her dead child. Then I knew that we could not wait for the coroner. I formed temporary morgues, and before breakfast had gathered some thirteen bodies in my immediate neighborhood. All day I went gathering the dead. The second day I went gathering the dead. The third day I spent likewise. We had now gathered some seven hundred bodies at public morgues in the city. These bodies we carried to sea. The bodies were so offensive that we could not attach weights to them, and they quickly washed ashore. Then the order was given to bury the dead wherever found, and for several days we buried on the sidewalks and in the streets—wherever we found a vacant place. When some thousand, or more, bodies had thus been disposed of, we realized that such disposition of the bodies jeopardized the health of our city. Then the command came to burn the bodies, and for these twenty, thirty, forty, fifty days we have been burning our dead. From six to eight thousand of our people have been lost.

The property loss in the Galveston disaster has also been very great. More than four thousand residences, with their outhouses, were totally destroyed. Ninety-eight per cent. of the houses that remained were more or less injured. Fully ten thousand of our people were rendered homeless. St. John's Church, built thirty years ago at a cost of more than forty thousand dollars, was totally destroyed. The pipe organ and furniture are a total loss. The membership reported last year at Conference was three hundred and fifty-six; now scarcely two hundred remain. Our membership who remain are greatly reduced. One of my physicians told me he had five hundred patients swept away. One of my lumberman told me that the storm rendered twelve thousand in accounts valueless for him, the people to whom he sold being lost or impoverished. St. James Church was badly damaged. West End was blown from its blocks and badly injured. In this hour of distress we turn to our great church for help.

Will Galveston rebuild? There is hardly a doubt. Galveston is the only deep-water port west of New Orleans. The port is a commercial necessity. The total foreign and coastwise trade last year was nearly two hundred and twenty million dollars. Mr. Huntington has recently expended a million and a quarter dollars on his Galveston property. The railroads contemplate a steel bridge across the bay. Yes, Galveston will be rebuilt. Men will continue to live and labor and die there; and where men live and labor and die, Methodism must have her preachers, with their message of a free, present, and full salvation, Evangelical in her doctrine, scriptural in her experience, and providential in her government, Methodism must remain in Galveston a saving force to that people. May we not expect a contribution from each of our congregations? Such, in the aggregate, would enable us to rebuild. Send your contribution to Dr. P. H. Whisner, 705 West Chestnut street, Louisville, Ky.

THE MINISTRY—PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

The church, from time immemorial and for all time to come, has held and will hold to the belief that the ministry is divinely called and sent. This belief vests the ministry with matchless power. Eliminate this belief from the church, and you will have shorn the pulpit of its strength. Without it the dictum of the preacher would be of no more force than that of the school teacher. While the church holds to the imperative need of a divine call to preach the gospel, and will not sanction the ministry of any man who does not feel that he is called of God, yet she has not fully awakened to the fact that God's first demand upon a person called to preach is to prepare himself for efficient work in the ministry. The ministers of early Methodism were men of little education and few advantages for self-culture. God seems to have supplied this lack with miraculous endowments of the Holy Ghost, so that without college training they wrought wonders and confounded the wisdom of the wise. Besides, the environment of early Methodism was more favorable to an uneducated ministry than now. Then the pew had but little culture, and only demanded men of strong natural endowments and a full stock of Holy-Ghost religion to minister to them in spiritual things. What preachers our fathers had! what wonders they performed! But these men called of God did not forget to make themselves by hard study men worthy of their high calling.

With a ministry but poorly equipped (speaking after the manner of men) Methodism has been a mighty force in the uplifting of the world. No church has done more to bring lost men to Christ than ours. But what she did with her uneducated preachers (we speak comparatively) when learning was not general, she can not do to-day with the same class of men. We are now in an age of learning and under environments which demand a better-educated and more highly-cultured ministry than in the early days of Methodism. We are suffering to-day because of the meager education of many of our preachers. We do not mean to say that any of our preachers are ignorant. We simply mean to say that many of them are deficient in education. Many of them are preaching to congregations that are far ahead of them in learning. The pew is often better informed than the pulpit. This ought not so to be. As leaders, our preachers ought to be the best-educated, best-informed men of the charges they serve. Our present corps of preachers, of course, can't lay aside their work and make the needed preparation, but they can buy books (text-books) and study while they work. Much can be done in this way. But see to the future ministry there need be no lack along this line. Let the church see to it that her young men prepare themselves for their work before they are put in charge of the souls of men. We do not believe that God calls imbeciles to the ministry, nor do we believe he wants those whom he calls to rush out to battle without being equipped for the fight. The Lord gave Moses training for forty years before he put him in charge of Israel as their leader and law-giver. Christ taught his disciples three years before he said, "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel to every creature." Paul took three years after his call in which to prepare himself for his great work.

The day has come when we must have men thoroughly furnished for the work of the ministry; and the preacher, young or old, who does not see it, had better not enter the conflict. And the church that does not see it can prepare to close her doors, and engage some one to preach her funeral. The secular world, in all the vocations of life, is calling for skilled, trained workmen. Can the church of God, commissioned to save men, do less? We trow not. We need in the ministry men with fire-baptized hearts and well-trained minds to push on the conquests of Methodism. We need men who have heart-power and head-power to lead the armies of our God. Let us all study to show ourselves workmen approved of God and men.

We would say to every young man called to preach: Keep a warm heart, and, if possible, get a finished education.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers in Charge, North Mississippi Conference

DEAR BRETHREN: We are gratified to know that our charges have subscribed fifteen thousand dollars to the Thank-offering, but confess to disappointment that the amount is not greater. That the fund may be handsomely increased by Conference, we urge you to increase the subscription in all the charges, and also that you see to it that every dollar subscribed be promptly paid.

Some charges that have secured good subscriptions have not reported to the secretary. Of course, they will report to the Annual Conference. We hope every charge in our Conference will make a generous contribution to this sacred fund.

Remit all moneys collected, together with your subscription made at Greenwood, to Bro. Park at Winona. The need is great. The work is of utmost importance, and must be accomplished—and it will be.

To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin.

If it be that the blank form has been lost or not received at all from presiding elder, then write on postal the total amount enrolled up to date, how much has been paid, and how much has been specially directed and to what institutions.

On Nov. 11 a Twentieth Century collection was taken in the Hattiesburg Church. Mr. Tatum and Mr. G. L. Hawkins responded with $50 each for Millsaps College, but the congregation, as a whole, has not yet contributed even an average of a dollar per member, much less an amount that is consistent with the prosperity and ability of the membership. It is probably in financial ability the strongest congregation in the Mississippi Conference, easily equal to $1,800 for their pastor and liberal contributions otherwise. Perhaps they will be heard from again after the watch-night service.

Rev. M. L. White, representing Carthage charge, in his November report shows an increase over former reports. He adds, "I send to-day $46.60 to R. W. Millsaps." That sounds well.

Rev. J. G. Galloway has been at work for this cause recently at Newton and Hickory, as evidences the increase there.

At the last session of the Annual Conference no record of the status of the movement in each charge was made. The roll-books were inspected, certain summaries were obtained, and then they were returned to the pastors. The purpose of all this writing these latter weeks has been to get pastors to report for both years, all in one, just as if no other report had ever been made. The above $8,090.73 has been officially reported as the total amount enrolled. There are five or six thousand more that we know of, but which have not been exactly and officially reported. We await these.

REPLY TO "GILDEROY."

I am glad you found out we are doing something up here, if it is only taking a collection. If you are stressing the work of soul-saving, we have not seen a call of ministers and laymen to consider it. We are not contending for anything but the truth and the best interests of the kingdom of Jesus Christ.

I do not think I am mistaken in my interpretation of the Scripture, as the facts and history of the case will show. You seem to think the apostles were burdened with the collections, and that a conference was held to relieve them. The facts are these: "Certain Greeks murmured against the Hebrews, that their widows were neglected in the daily ministrations by those who had this business in hand. They said to the disciples, "It is not reason that we should leave the Word of God and serve tables." They advised what to do, "Look ye out among you seven men." For what? You would say, "To take the collections." These seven men are to find these widows and their needs, and supply them out of the church's treasury. The apostles never did serve tables. But they did take collections, and considered it a part of the ministry of the Word.

Serving tables and taking collections was not the same then or now. It has always been the duty of the ministry of both the Old and New Testament Church to take the collections. The Apostle Paul, following this divine plan, ordered the churches in Galatia to take collections. (I. Cor. xvi, 1.) This great apostle did not think it too much for him to take a collection in Macedonia and Achaia for the saints in Jerusalem, and go all the way up there to take it to them. (Rom. xv, 25, 26.) Then he takes up two whole chapters in his second letter to the church at Corinth in explaining and inforcing the gospel of giving. Show us one single case in the Word of God where this duty was ever considered a burden? Show us one text that justifies the turning of this business over to laymen?

The Presbyterian Banner (Northern) says that out of a total of eighty-five Presbyteries which so far have voted on the subject of creed revision, sixty have voted in favor of some change, and twenty-five against any. Of those favoring a change thirty-three ask for a supplementary statement, twenty-five desire revision of the creed, and the remainder favor other modifications.

The Glad Tidings Gospel Tent, at Fifty-seventh street and Broadway, New York, has been closed for the Winter. During the season, seventy-five thousand people attended the services, two hundred and fifty conversions are reported, and the season closes with a balance of $250 in the treasury.

THINGS THAT CAN NOT FAIL.

BY WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

When the anchors that faith has cast
Are dragging in the gale,
I am quietly holding fast
To the things that can not fail.

I know that right is right;
That it is not good to lie;
That love is better than spite,
And a neighbor than a spy.

I know that passion needs
The leash of sober mind;
I know that generous deeds
Some sure reward will find;

That the rulers must obey;
That the givers shall increase;
That duty lights the way
For the beautiful feet of Peace;

In the darkest night of the year,
When the stars have all gone out,
That courage is better than fear,
That faith is truer than doubt.

And fierce tho' the fiends may fight,
And long tho' the angels hide,
I know that truth and right
Have the universe on their side.

SABBATH THOUGHTS.

THE REAL LIFE, THE DOUBLE LIFE, THE PHYSICAL LIFE AND THE CHRISTIAN LIFE HAPPILY BLENDED.

"Men talk of another life as if it began on the other side of the grave," exclaimed the Princess Colm Eberstein to her son, Daniel Deronda. "I have long entered on that life."

These words image one of those curiously decisive crises of transition in life which, it may be, are sometimes more potent than that of death itself. More potent, I say, because it settles the question of a blessed condition of immortality. Many persons have crossed my path who, in every act and walk in life, have proved beyond cavil that they, even here, with trying and tempting environment, had entered certainly and surely on another life; and what a charmed life it is! No ostentation, no sanctimonious display, but an even, graceful contribution of every energy and act to those noble deeds and things that are seemingly half of heaven. There are those we know who live every day alike, who never profane their lives, and who seem to live double lives, doing things gracefully that pertain to the physical, and yet keeping within the pale of that which pertains to the spiritual life. All is consecrated to duty, to humanity, and to God, and when these fortunate personages pass out, their lives here will have been so spent that they will not be unfamiliar with the new conditions.

Ah, what a blessing it is to tread the rose-perfumed walks of heaven everwhilst we walk the rugged paths of earth; and how eager should we strive to follow in the steps of love, "in His steps," colored with His blood! There is no mistaking them, for all along the way we see the prints of the crucl nails, and we breathe the holy incense distilled at the cross.

The life of these admirable characters—whom we sometimes walk with as angels unawares, and who live constantly in the life to come—is filled with prayer; prayer that expresses faith, that proves a loyal soul, that teaches humility, that brings happiness, that reaches up and fills the vials of heaven about the throne with holy incense, for John says in his sublime vision, "The four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odors, which are the prayers of saints."

These lives are not influenced by the sordid things of life. Those who live them are not worshipers at the feet of the golden calf. They are men and women of character; men and women who are robing themselves with the only thing they can carry into the better land—a spotless character; the only thing that is worth leaving behind. Jackson praying as he rode on the crest of battle, praying in the tent, and humbled on his knees before his soldiery before going into battle, was living this double life, and was forging that which has made his name immortal. Gen. Gordon, in his recent lecture, said eloquently, impressively of him: "I want the young men of my country to know the reason for it. Young gentlemen," he said, "the light left by Stonewall Jackson's life will burn on and on through all the ages, because he added to that marvelous genius for war a character, a character as a man and soldier, which was absolutely without a blemish; a deep-rooted belief in God, in the Bible as God's Word, in God's providence over the destinies of people. This deep-rooted belief was over, under and through Jackson, permeating every fibre of his being, governing every thought, controlling his every effort, whether he was dispensing light and joy to his own family, or imparting life and lofty thought to his pupils at Lexington, or in planning his irresistible strategy on the eve of battle."

No one doubts that he lived here the life as indicated by the Princess Eberstein, and that he could safely say when the end came, "Let us cross over the river, and rest under the shade of the trees!"

DANGEROUS HELPERS.

It is a fact of long standing that some people who have been allowed to have a hand in certain work have shown themselves to be very dangerous helpers. Their motive in engaging in the work has been a selfish and base one. And there have been examples of this kind in religious affairs. Certain ones, who had no real heart in the true interests of the cause, have offered their services with a pretended concern for its welfare, and if they succeeded in sharing in the work, they managed to take personal advantages and reap selfish profits, to the great detriment of the good cause. In the book of Ezra we read the following words: "Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that the children of the captivity builded a temple unto the Lord, the God of Israel, then they drew near to Zerubbabel and to the heads of fathers' houses, and said unto them, Let us build with you, for we seek your God, as ye do sacrifice unto him since the days of Esar-haddon, King of Assyria." But this plausible offer of help was rejected. The true Israelites were justly suspicious of those volunteers. Then what did the volunteer helpers do? They soon exhibited their real characters by doing all they could do to harass and hinder the work of the true friends of the cause. Thus we read: "Then the people of the land weakened the hands of the people of Judah and troubled them in building and hired counciliors against them, to frustrate their purpose, all the days of Cyrus, King of Persia." The course which those adversaries finally pursued showed that they would have been very dangerous helpers of the true friends of the cause, if they had been allowed to share in the work.

And this suggests the fact that here are people in our churches today, occupying official positions, who are very dangerous helpers, because, though ostensibly helping Christ's cause, they are actually very dangerous to its spirituality and true welfare. Their daily lives are such that they are doing tenfold more harm to the cause than outside people are doing or can do. And some, too, because they can not have full swing in leading the rest of the church, are exhibiting a temper which is a disgrace to Christianity.

ESSAYS ON THE ORIGIN OF CHRISTIANITY.

BY JOSEPH BOGEN AND GEORGE SOLOMON.

This pamphlet, written by two Jewish rabbis, has lately come from the press, and deserves more than a passing notice from the Christian reader. The book is well written, reminding one of the figurative mysticism of the ancient Jewish prophets; but the especial interest that attaches to the book is the fact that it discusses the "origin of Christianity" from a Jewish standpoint, and is written for Christian readers. This of itself is unique, and while the little book gives much historical information, the historical reference to Christ is mere supposition. While the authors mark the New Testament as the only source of information in regard to Jesus of Nazareth, they brand this as a mere legend, with no more authority than their own word. Not attempting to deny the fact that Jesus lived, that he was a remarkable man in many respects, they yet boldly dispute the only accounts of his life by contemporary authors on the sole ground of their friendship for Jesus. They do indeed find fault with some difference in the accounts of the various gospel writers. What is suited to their argument they acknowledge. For instance, that the scene of his life was largely about the Sea of Galilee, and thereby hangs the supposition that Pilate had him crucified as a rebel, and that he was a well-known character in the city of Jerusalem, and, therefore, the story of the betrayal by Judas is necessarily false.

Altogether, these writers make the New Testament a strange medley of fact and fiction, without citing a single authority in support of their theory. The unsupported assertion that Jesus of Nazareth was an impostor, and the story of his life a legend, will shake the faith of an insignificant few who look to him for life and immortality.

Practically, the only argument attempted is that against the authority of the record, for the reason that they are unsupported by contemporary evidence of those inimical or indifferent to Christianity, not considering that the most reasonable course for its opponents would be to treat with contempt a movement headed by a Nazarene carpenter's son, and its leading adherents a publican tax-gatherer and a few Galilean fishermen.

Altogether, the book is not strong, though well worth reading.

THE EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE.

This institution of learning has had by far the largest opening of any year in its history. We have already enrolled nearly 200 boarding students, and will likely reach a total enrollment of 400 students before the session ends. Soon after the session opened we had every inch of available space filled, including the "annex," and were compelled to erect another "annex" to accommodate the overflow. This is a beautiful new building with modern equipments; hot and cold baths, with instantaneous gas heater for hot water. The building is furnished with iron beds, oak dressers, and other new furniture. This gives us plenty of room for this session.

We have also erected a science lecture-room, and equipped it with modern equipments at great expense. We now have the best equipped science lecture-room of any college for girls in the State. We have employed Dr. M. A. Besson, brother of the president, as professor of science. He is well prepared in this department, having made a specialty of the sciences.

We have put another story to the frame building, fifty feet long, in the rear of the music-rooms, and have equipped it with white enameled steel bath-tubs, five new water closets, which, in addition to what we have, gives ample accommodation for all students. We have doubled the capacity of our water-works by erecting two more cypress tanks, one for cold water and one for hot, for bath-rooms, to be heated from the boiler.

We are also putting in a large elevator for lifting trunks and coal to the second floor, and making other much-needed improvements.

We have the largest attendance in the conservatory of music we have ever had. The time of every teacher was filled, and we were forced to employ another music teacher in order to take all who applied for instruction in music.

We have a very fine student body, having some from Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Indiana, Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky, Alabama—in fact, from most of the Southern States.

But, best of all, we have Christ with us in our daily work. We have had up to this time more than sixty professions of salvation among the students, without any protracted meeting. Not a week has passed but that we have had a number of girls saved. Truly, God is with us. We need the prayers, sympathy and support of God's people everywhere, that we may send out a body of young women as trained workers for God.

Our new building gives us room for a few more students, which we will take for the remainder of the session at a reduced rate.

Tell your friends of this special offer. We are running the college for God, and he is honoring it. No man or men could cause the success that is evident here. We give God all the praise. We are trying to be his humble instruments to do his work. Pray for us.

J. W. BESSON.

Each writer will be allowed the widest practical freedom in the form and style of treatment in answering the question, and will be expected to suggest an appropriate title for his work.

The Society does not desire any technical theological treatise, but works of a practical and popular character, of a high order of merit, and of convenient size, preferring that each work have from about 40,000 to about 70,000 words.

The MSS. should be type-written, and must reach the Committee of Publication on or before Nov. 1, 1901. NOTES FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

It would seem that in the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference there might be found one girl who desired to have the advantages of the Searritt Bible and Training-school; yet not one offered for the place. So it was given to Miss Mary Culler White, of Georgia, for the current year. We trust that next year one of "our own" will realize the great benefit in training for Christian work to be derived there, and thenceforward it will remain filled. Miss White, in a letter to our president, Mrs. Foote, presents to the society her grateful appreciation of the courtesy, and expresses the hope—in which we can all join her—that this may be the best year of her life.

A fine society of fourteen members was organized in September at Courtland, Miss.

A special donation this quarter of $50 was made by Dr. J. S. Featherston, through the Macon Auxiliary, to assist in furnishing the "Fannie Lucas Featherston Memorial Room" in the school-building at Key West. A beautiful mounment to her memory will this room be, reared by her co-workers and loved ones, and far more enduring than the marble or granite shaft.

I believe a list of the contributions to the Twentieth Century Fund has never been furnished from this Conference; so I will append such a list. Some societies do not appear on the list because they are waiting for the full amount of subscriptions to be paid; but, no doubt, all will be in hand by the expiration of the time-limit—Jan. 1, 1901.

A BROTHERLY TALK WITH THE PREACHERS.

BY THEODORE L. CUYLER, D. D.

Although I am by birthright a Presbyterian, and have the blood of several Presbyterian generations in my veins, yet I have had a peculiarly warm side for Methodism ever since a visit that I made to Middletown in my student days (in 1845), when the majestic Dr. Olin was at the head of the University, and Gilbert Haven and Edward G. Andrews were among his pupils. During the fifty-four years of my gospel ministry I have been permitted to preach more than two hundred times in Methodist pulpits, have had much intimate intercourse with Methodist preachers, and have reached a multitude of them through Methodist journals. It is not strange, therefore, that I have felt a sincere pain over the reported diminution of conversions in your great denomination during the last five or six years; and I read last Spring the pathetic and powerful address of your Bishop with a profound interest. Will it be thought presumptuous if I offer a few frank and fraternal words to my dear brethren?

There may be a strong temptation with many of you to rack your brains in attempts to discover some new devices to attract auditors and to arouse a new interest among your people. If this leads any of you to try some sensational novelties, you will commit an awful mistake. All sorts of sensational devices—whether in the shape of queer and startling pulpit topics, or of Sunday evening musical concerts—have no permanent value. Like the use of alcoholic stimulants, there must be an increase of the dose, and a reaction to feebleness is sure to follow. To draw people to the house of God is very well; it is better for them to be there than on a bicycle or over a godless Sunday newspaper; but unless they are drawn to Jesus Christ and a Christian life, the chief purpose of attending church is not attained. You are not mere winners of human bodies to the sanctuary; you are to be winners of souls to the Savior. If your efforts this year do not turn some immortal souls from hell towards heaven, as well as build up Christ's disciples into a stronger and holier life, then they will be a most lamentable failure. Solemnly determine that with the Holy Spirit's help you will "compel people to come in," by going after them all through the week, and by kindling your pulpits red-hot with love of Christ and souls on the Sabbath. A zealous preacher who carefully prepares practical evangelical sermons, and keeps up through pastoral visitation, and interests himself in everybody, down to the little children, rarely fails to draw and to hold a good Sunday congregation. Keep Jesus Christ in your pulpit; let him "lifted up" be the drawing power.

In the earlier days of American Methodism preachers did their own preaching. Such men as Hedding, Bascom and Wakeley never thought of sending off for an "evangelist." They would sooner renounce their office than admit that they could not proclaim the gospel in such a way as to save sinners and edify believers. Sow your own gospel seed this year, well steeped in prayer, and reap your own harvest. Put the responsibility down hard on your official Boards and church members to back you up in your efforts; never cheapen or dishonor your own pulpit; and "let no man take thy crown." There is no such ecstacy this side of heaven as winning souls to Jesus Christ.

I exhort you not to be caught by the current delusion that this "advanced age" requires entirely new methods and a new style of preaching, and what is absurdly called an "up-to-date gospel." This age of ours, with all its mighty mechanical inventions and its increasing mammon worship, has not advanced one single inch beyond its indispensable need of the atoning blood of Jesus and the converting power of the Holy Spirit. All the telegraphs and the telephones and all the universities, with their boasted achievements in scholarship, have not yet outlawed Calvary and Pentecost. Human nature has not changed; human sinfulness and sorrows have not changed; the Word of God has not changed; the Holy Spirit has not changed; the precious promises have not changed; and what fallen man needed to lift him Godward nineteen centuries ago he needs to-day. Stick to the old gospel. When God gives you another, preach it, but not before. Don't waste your breath in defending your Bible; it is self-evidencing. Your commission is, "Preach the Word," and God will take care of it.

One very probable reason why conversions have so lamentably decreased of late in your own and in other evangelical denominations is that there is less direct, pungent, loving, and faithful preaching to the unconverted. Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, and unless a man is convicted of sin and feels his guilt he is not likely to come to Christ for salvation. Toward the close of his noble Christian career Gladstone remarked that one of the worst symptoms in this age was "the general decay of the sense of sinfulness." The preacher who belittles or conceals the guilt and retributions of sin is an enemy of souls; he will make but few converts, and those of a shallow experience. The first text of Jesus Christ was, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," and when Peter boldly preached repentance and remission of sins through Christ Jesus, three thousand souls were converted in that one day! All the mighty soul-winners, the "weight of whose spear was like a weaver's beam"—the Wesleys, the Whitefields, the Finneys, the Lyman Beechers, the Spurgeons, and the Moodys—have never tried to extinguish Sinai's thunders any more than to silence Calvary's loving invitations. To preach effectively to the unconverted requires courage, tenderness, wisdom, faith, and a deep inflowing of the Holy Spirit. Prayer will give you all these, my brother, and this year will bring you a harvest.

Through all its first century in America it was the peculiar glory of Methodism that the "common people" heard its ministers "gladly." It never was the pet religion of the aristocracy, and never will be. It costs more labor for you Methodists and us Presbyterians to capture one kid-gloved and lavender millionaire than to convert fifty of the "working classes," for if Crœsus goes into any church at all, he is predestinated to seek one of the high ritualistic pattern. One reason why the census of Methodism in New York does not show more advance is that the glorious old type of religion that once prayed and preached, wept and shouted in old John street and Vestry street and Forsyth street is not more prevalent. While reaching up after the cultured classes, I entreat you don't neglect "the plain people." John Wesley's bones will rattle their protest if you do.

Don't mistake or misapprehend these frank words of exhortation, I beg you; they are the truth spoken in love. To your great church and to mine God has committed a tremendous responsibility for the salvation of our beloved country.

Begin your year's work with a fresh and sincere self-consecration. Take the only Bible God has given you, or ever will give, and preach it as if you heard the surges of eternity break against our church walls. Throw yourself into every line of practical love-labor, kindle your church by your contagious enthusiasm, and make this the best year of your whole lives.—New York Advocate.

He who can enter a church or a chapel, or any place dedicated to the worship of God, as he does into his own habitation, or into that of his horses, which is a very common case, has, in my opinion, no proper notion of religious worship, and is never likely to derive much edification to his own soul from his attendance on the ordinances of God.—Dr. Adam Clarke.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Preachers and Official Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the Bounds of the Forest District, Mississippi Annual Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Eight of the seventeen Quarterly Conferences of the fourth round have been held, and all except Hillsboro and Walnut Grove circuits indicate a marked improvement. Where systematic efforts have been made there will be no deficit.

Up to the eighteenth day of October, Hillsboro circuit had paid only 36 per cent. of the assessment of $127 for missions, etc., and 40 per cent. of the assessment for ministerial support. Over 300 members.

The Walnut Grove circuit, with 476 members, on an assessment of $186 for Conference purposes, had paid up to Oct. 23 only $20.30—just a shade over 10 per cent.; and on the $570, assessed for ministerial support, $206.92, or a little over 36 per cent.

Carthage circuit, on the assessment of $800 for ministerial support, Oct. 20, had paid nearly 66 per cent., but on the $197 for Conference purposes about 46 per cent.; but the preacher in charge and the assistant and the official brethren present were determined to improve greatly on that percentage, and the whole amount can be paid in full.

Neshoba circuit, Oct. 25, had paid 60 per cent. on Conference claims, and the balance was secured by subscriptions ranging from 10 cents to $2 made by the respective members. Much depends on the pastor's zeal and activity. On the assessment for ministerial support nearly 62 per cent. had been paid, and the stewards were confident that the balance would be paid in full. The circuit is abundantly able to pay much more than the assessment.

Decatur circuit, Oct. 30, had paid nearly 72 per cent. of the Conference claims, and the pastor was satisfied that every assessment would be paid in full; but the stewards will need to be energetic to collect the 47 per cent. yet unpaid on the assessment for ministerial support. Every cent can be paid and ought to be paid.

The fourth Quarterly Conference at Vossburg, Nov. 3, was a very pleasant occasion. On the Conference claims 80 per cent. had been paid, and the remainder is secured and assured. The presiding elder was paid in full, and a little over 75 per cent. paid to the preacher in charge and the assistant, and the balance pledged. One steward who had failed to make even one bushel of corn or any molasses, and had made only a very few bales of cotton, pays his assessment in full, and guarantees that his church will meet every obligation. Two responsible brethren together pledged $50 for the district parsonages. Vossburg and Heidelberg circuit will be high up in "Class A" next year. Hattiesburg must look to her laurels!

Rose Hill circuit, Nov. 10, had paid 54 per cent. on Conference collections, and about 72 per cent. for ministerial support. Just a little more earnest and persistent, systematic working on the part of preacher and stewards will bring everything up and put Rose Hill circuit into "Class A." There are members and money enough to make this a first-class appointment and one of the most desirable circuits in the Conference.

Bro. Linfield and the stewards on the Morton circuit are working together hopefully to meet all claims and keep that circuit in 'Class A." Bro. Hardin and his co-workers on Shiloh circuit are moving under the impulse of a like worthy ambition and the desire to honor God, and are determined to succeed.

Bro. Galloway has secured foreign and domestic missions and Conference claimants fund in full, and he and the stewards for Newton and Hickory have made up their minds to put that charge in "Class A" on all assessments. The fourth Quarterly Conferences for these charges are likely to find collections in full. Bro. Langford, on the Trenton circuit, and Bro. Gale and Bro. Williams, on the Raleigh circuit, are most hopeful. Their collections are considerably ahead of those for last year, but are not yet in full.

Let nothing discourage you, brethren beloved in the Lord, but look to God for guidance, and press forward and "do your best." Let the preachers and stewards use all diligence, and let them, as well as the other members, not forget that the vows of God are on them. Let every one be true to their vows, true to the church and true to God. Don't throw the burden of the deficits on the faithful preachers, and tax them so heavily for the honor of preaching to the congregations committed to their care.

Let Thanksgiving services be held in all our churches the last Thursday in this month in compliance with the requests of the President of these United States and of the Governor of Mississippi. Let your offerings go to our Orphans' Home at Water Valley. Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN.

BRO. NORSWORTHY AT GULFPORT AND OTHER POINTS.

Since my last note I have assisted Bro. Parker in a meeting at Gulfport, where much good was accomplished, and also have attended and taken part in the New Prospect Camp Meeting, and at this writing we are in a tent meeting here in Howison. The weather has been a little cool for meeting in a tent; but as there is no church or other house in which to preach, we have used the canvas. The interest has been good, quite a number having professed conversion. The most important result of the meeting will be the establishment of a church and the erection of a house of worship. We have every reason to anticipate such results. There is already on foot a movement to build a thousand-dollar church. If this place only had a pastor to push the work, much could be accomplished. I have no doubt that in due time they will have. Much credit is due Bro. E. A. Hearon, master mechanic in the Native Lumber Co., who has maintained a Sunday-school and sowed the seed which have made the present movement a possibility. Bro E. A. Vail, the converted saloon keeper of New Orleans, La., is laboring with me. We will close out here to-morrow night, and then go home for a few days. Any communication addressed to me at Bay St. Louis will be promptly forwarded to me.

ENCOURAGING NEWS FROM THE BARLOW CIRCUIT.

As we are nearing the close of our fourth year on this charge, a few items of the status of the work will, no doubt, be acceptable to your readers.

Our fourth Quarterly Conference has just been held. Dr. Hunnicutt our cultured and efficient presiding elder, was with us, and gave no evidence of his recent suffering and illness, so far as vigor of mind and body are concerned. He is one of our very best men for any place, official or otherwise; full of wisdom and the Holy Ghost. The spiritual condition of the entire charge is very good. During the past few months revivals of unusual power and demonstration of the Spirit have been held at each church. The revival fire is still burning, as may be witnessed at almost every service held now, whether public preaching, class or prayer meeting. We have a woman's prayer meeting every Friday evening at some residence, besides weekly prayer services and class meetings at the church. We are deeply grateful to our Lord that we shall move next Conference, with the consciousness that our labor for the past four years has not been in vain. The financial condition of the church, together with the amounts paid to all claims, is encouraging, and will be in advance of the past few years, although crops of all kinds are almost a total failure in this country. Many are not making cotton for rent, nor corn enough to do until Christmas.

The parsonage is being greatly improved just now. The house is receiving a long-needed coat of paint, whitewash, etc. A new fence of "all-heart pine" has been built for garden and yard. The whole parsonage premises have been improved in such a way as not only adds much to the durability, but to appearance and attractiveness. We hope to leave to our successor a large, comfortable, and pretty home. Some of our people wonder why we are doing so much for the parsonage to leave it all for another. We should all do this much for each other.

Besides the direct work we have been able to do here in the past four years, we have indirectly helped to build up a thriving little town, and secure good residents, close neighbors, who will add much to the welfare of the preacher and family. The advantage of having good, generous people close to the parsonage is beyond estimate. We have lived largely in isolation for four years, but not so now. Some of the kindest and best families in the country will be in close touch with the parsonage next year. We almost envy the preacher who shall follow us. We are thankful to bequeath to him so good a heritage.

Taking a summary of the important improvements added to the charge during our four years' pastorate, we beg leave to mention the following: Two good cisterns, one at Reboboth Church and the other at Lebanon, which are a great convenience and benefit; and an annex to the parsonage, such as a dining-room, kitchen, pantry and back gallary, thus adding much to the comfort and convenience of the preacher's family. One church, Lebanon, has been beautifully ceiled, the old floor replaced by a new one, and the whole inside much improved.

The whole charge has made considerable advancement, but is still lamentably short of what it might be. This people, like those of olden time, "are destroyed for lack of knowledge." They do not intelligently appreciate their relation to the gospel. If they would only believe in and support the institutions of the church according to their ability, then this would be one of the very best charges. We pray that they shall be brought to a knowledge of this truth, so that in the coming years they shall enter into the riches of all the fullness of the gospel of Christ.

Farmers and Furrows

A farmer is known by his furrow as "the carpenter is known by his chips." It takes a firm hand and a true eye to turn a straight furrow. No wonder the farmer wears out, spite of exercise and fresh air. One day's work on the farm would tire many a trained athlete. And the farmer works hardest of all. The first up and the last to bed, feeding his team before he feeds himself, his work is practically never done. Why does not the farmer treat his own body as he treats the land he cultivates? He puts back in phosphate what he takes out in crops, or the land would grow poor. The farmer should put back into his body the vital elements exhausted by labor. If he does not, he will soon complain of "poor health." The great value of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is in its vitalizing power. It gives strength to the stomach, life to the lungs, purity to the blood. It supplies Nature with the substances by which she builds up the body, just as the farmer supplies Nature with the substances that build up the crops.

"I write to tell you of the great benefit I received from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. G. B. Bird, of Byrnside, Putnam Co., W. Va. "It cured me of a very bad case of indigestion associated with torpid liver. Before I began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I had no appetite; could not sleep nor work but very little. The little that I ate did not agree with me, bowels constipated, and life was a misery to me. I wrote to Dr. Pierce giving the symptoms, and asked for advice. He advised me to try the 'Golden Medical Discovery' so I began the use of it and after taking four bottles I felt so well that I went to work; but soon got worse, so I again began the use of it and used it about eight weeks longer, when I was permanently cured."

S. S. KEENER, Chair'n.

REPORT OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE, 1900.

The Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE met in annual session in the office of the ADVOCATE, 512 Camp street, New Orleans, La., Wednesday, ten o'clock A. M., Oct. 31, 1900. Drs. Keener and Sawyer and Rev. F. N. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference; Revs. R. J. Jones, A. F. Watkins, and L Carley, of the Mississippi Conference, and Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, Revs. J. T. Murrah, and H. C. Morehead, of the North Mississippi Conference, were all present, and manifested deep interest in the work committed to them.

The report of the editor and publisher, Rev. W. C. Black, D. D, was submitted, carefully considered, and was approved. The financial exhibit was most gratifying, and gave the committee great pleasure. Not only have all of the expenses been met, and something in way of a fair salary received by editor and publisher for services rendered, but a folder and other property to the value of four hundred and fifty dollars have been turned over to the committee.

The fact that the ADVOCATE is out of debt—does not owe a single dollar—is a matter of congratulation to all concerned. And this, it must be understood, is due to the wise, efficient and economic management and fine business qualities of Dr. Black. The committee was unanimous and hearty in its approval and commendation of the Doctor's distinguished success. And we feel that the whole church throughout the patronizing Conferences will join us in our sincere appreciation of Dr. Black for this great service which he has rendered the church. This will be the more readily accorded when it is considered that not only has this been done in the midst of shrinking values and great financial stringency, but that a burdensome and difficult debt has also been discharged which the Doctor found hanging, nightmare like, over the ADVOCATE when he took charge.

The standard of excellency to which the ADVOCATE had already attained has been maintained during the year, with possible improvement in the editorial department in the matter of variety.

It is a matter of sincere regret to all of us that our Conference organ is so much restricted in its circulation. When we consider the large and inviting field of its operation, and the many members of our church in said field, the subscription list is painfully small.

One of two things confronts us, viz.: Our people must be reached with our literature, or we are playing, and will continue to play a losing hand. Which shall it be?

It is nonsensical to suppose that an intelligent Christianity and a healthy, strong denominationalism can be produced and maintained when the very means to the end is sadly lacking—the circulation of religious and denominational literature. Our papers, tracts and books must find their way to our people until every Methodist home is supplied.

H. C. MOREHEAD, for Com.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

In accordance with a noble and honored custom—which, we hope, will never become obsolete—the President of the United States has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of this heaven-favored land to observe Thursday, the twenty-ninth instant, as a day of national thanksgiving to the Giver of all good, in reverent recognition of his providential care over us, and of the divine source of the manifold and signal blessings which the people of America to-day enjoy. Says President McKinley with much appropriateness:

"It has pleased Almighty God to bring our nation in safety and honor through another year. The works of religion and charity have everywhere been manifest. Our country throughout all its extent has been blessed with abundant harvests. Labor and the great industries of the people have prospered beyond all precedent. Our commerce has spread over the world. Our power and influence in the cause of freedom and enlightenment have extended over distant seas and lands. The lives of our official representatives and many of our people in China have been marvelously preserved. We have been generally exempt from pestilence and other great calamities, and even the tragic visitation which overwhelmed the city of Galveston made evident the sentiments of sympathy and Christian charity by virtue of which we are one united people."

Let us not dishonor God by looking upon the observance of this day as a mere form, having little significance, but let us remember that, without the divine blessing, no nation can prosper or continue. It will be an ominous day for us when we, as a people, forget that while "man proposes, God disposes." America's greatness is more truly represented by the sublime motto, "In God we trust," stamped upon her every coin, than by the vastness of her commerce and resources, the grandeur of her inventions, the intelligence of her people, or the valor of her soldiers. Our Republic can better afford to lose the favor of every European power than the favor of Almighty God.

On the day so fittingly set apart for the expression of national gratitude, let all our people repair to the places of worship, and unite in glad thanksgiving to God for all his benefits to us, collectively and individually, invoking the continuance of the favor of Him "who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think." Let no Christian be so thoughtless and ungrateful as to spend the day wholly in pleasure-seeking and enjoyment, forgetful of his dependence upon God for all things, and of the sacred obligation to testify to the goodness of God.

Let us beware that our gratitude be not of that self-righteous sort which thanks God that we are not as other men are, and that has neither genuine sympathy nor charity for the suffering and unfortunate. Let us evidence our thankfulness not only in words of praise, but also in deeds of love and mercy, and thus prove our worthiness to be called the children of the Highest.

How prone even the best of men are to complain rather than to express gratitude and praise! How needful it is that at stated times we call in review the manifold and tender mercies of God, and give thanks unto him who never forgets even the unworthiest of his creatures!

While to many the year has not all been sunshine, even the most unfortunate have something for which to thank God. Yes, we shall find, if we continue to put our trust in God, our very trials and sorrows turn to blessings. Is it not written, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love him"? "I will sing praise to God," says the Psalmist, "while I have my being." Beautifully has it been said that "thanksgiving is the tune of angels." How much more grateful many of us would be if we would only stop to compare our condition with that of thousands whose lot is one of grinding poverty and almost hopeless misery! What a glorious blessing it is to have a home! Yet in the great cities there are hundreds of persons who have no place that they can call home. Scores of boys and girls go to sleep every night in ill-smelling attics, amid evil surroundings, and without the tender care of a mother. Shall we, who have bread enough and to spare, not be thankful for food and raiment? In India and in China there are not simply thousands, but millions of people who are always on the verge of starvation, and who never know what it is to have enough to eat. Says Mr. Henry Briggs, who was a trader in China for twenty years: "The well-fed American can have no idea of the utterly bare life of the Chinese rice-picker. It is, at best, perpetual semi-starvation. In years when the crop is short these men grow into the likeness of skeletons. Infant female children are smothered as a religious duty to save them from the pangs of death by famine." Despite their wretchedness and abject poverty, they are said to be brave and cheerful, and are kind and considerate neighbors. What a rebuke to many in Christian lands the patience and cheerfulness of these poor unfortunates ought to be!

Should not those who enjoy vigorous health fervently praise God for such a glorious blessing? If the body be racked with pain and the prey of a fell disease, how unsatisfying are honor and fame and wealth! Is it not true that health enhances the value of every other temporal blessing?

Ought we not also to be thankful to God that "we do not lift blind eyes to a sky we have never seen"? Shall we not be grateful that we are able to feast our eyes upon the countless beauties of nature, and behold the glory of the Lord as revealed therein? As some one significantly asks, "Are not the sun, the moon, the stars, the trees, the flowers, worth a word of praise?" Yet how seldom do we thank God for these ordinary blessings! But when we are deprived of some blessing that seems common, and that we too often accept as if it were our right, how precious does it appear in our eyes!

Ought we not to be grateful that we live in the most wonderful century the world has yet seen; that we enjoy citizenship in one of the most enlightened countries upon the globe; that we are sharers in the matchless benefits of a Christian civilization? Should we not be devoutly mindful of the almost unequalled opportunities and advantages with which God has favored the people of free America? But who can declare all the mercies of God? Who can exhaust the limitless catalogue of his benefits?

Above all, let us offer thanksgiving and praise to God for the light of his Holy Word, and for the supreme gift of his dear Son, "who hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

"My Savior, my Almighty Friend,
When I begin thy praise,
Where will the growing numbers end,
The numbers of thy grace?"

AN EPIDEMIC OF LYNCHING.

One of the most alarming signs of the times is the frequence with which lynch-law is being resorted to all over the country in the punishment of criminals, no particular class of which seem to be exempt from the mob's rage. During the past few weeks so many lynchings have occurred that it looks as if the whole country were being swept by a veritable epidemic of lawlessness. While it is true that the crime which rarely fails to arouse the mob spirit has been unusually frequent of late, lynchers have by no means confined their attention to rapists, but have in several instances visited summary punishment upon persons guilty of insignificant crimes. The seeds of lawlessness which have been allowed to take root among us, and grow almost without let or hindrance, are now beginning to bring forth their legitimate fruit. The result is a harvest of diabolism and horrible brutality that rivals the worst cruelty of which savages have been guilty.

The enactment of such barbarity as characterized the recent lynching of a base wretch in Colorado shows unmistakably that, after all, civilization is but skin deep, so far as many people are concerned; and the contemplation thereof is enough to fill every righteous soul with just indignation and the deepest horror. Shall men lower themselves to the level of the brute they endeavor to punish merely in order to gratify blind rage? The man who participates in the fiendish brutality which is becoming more and more characteristic of the acts of the mob, in so doing casts to the winds all vestige of true manhood, and tramples every high and holy principle under foot. The church member who takes a hand in mobism ought not to be classed as a Christian.

"Men of Israel, help." Mobism must be put down at any and every cost, or else law and order will degenerate into the names of things that were, and righteousness will be as a vanishing cloud. Unless the press and pulpit thunder long and loud against this evil, our country is in danger of being overwhelmed in its fierce and fatal tide.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH AND THE DIVORCE QUESTION.

At the last General Conference of the Protestant Episcopal Church, held in 1898, a committee of twelve was appointed to consider the question of marriage and divorce, and to make such recommendations to the next Conference as they deemed proper for the welfare of the church. This committee held a meeting in New York City a few days ago, and before adjournment drafted three new canons bearing upon the divorce question. The existing canons of the Episcopal Church already distinctly forbid any clergyman thereof to officiate at the marriage of any divorced person, except where such a person is the innocent party to a divorce granted on statutory grounds. The new canons, which will come up in due time for adoption or rejection, put additional barriers in the way of the marriage of divorced persons, and, in fact, expressly provide that any member of the communion who shall remarry during the life-time of the other party to the first marriage shall be refused all the rites of the church, the sole exception being in the case of an innocent party to a divorce on Scripture grounds. The proposed legislation, while mainly disciplinary, is quite stringent. There is no question about its being a very strong pronouncement on the divorce question, which all the churches ought to deal with sternly and fearlessly. The evil is assuming large proportions, and is threatening in no small degree the integrity and perpetuity of the home-life of our Republic. Bishop Wm. E. MacLaren, of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, the day after the adjournment of the special committee mentioned above, declared that the rapidly increasing evils of absolute divorce have so lowered the tone of public morality that ecclesiastical legislation on the subject is a necessity.

GENERAL MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

BY REV. WALTER R. LAMBUTH, D. D.

An Ecumenical Conference on Foreign Missions was held in New York City, April 21-May 1. It was one of the greatest gatherings of Christian workers ever held upon this continent. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was represented by 107 of her leading men and women, including Bishops Granbery and Hendrix.

At a meeting of our delegates, presided over by Bishop Granbery, Dr. James Atkins suggested the holding of a similar Conference for the consideration of problems growing out of and related to the missionary enterprises inaugurated by our church at home and abroad. The following committee was appointed to present the matter to the Board of Missions at its ensuing annual meeting: Drs. James Atkins, Gilby C. Kelly, and J. H. McLean; Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, and Mr. John R. Pepper.

The Board gave careful consideration to the recommendation of the committee, and took favorable action as follows:

"Your committee to which was referred the memorial of our delegates to the Ecumenical Conference, held in New York City, April 21 to May 1, in regard to the holding of a General Missionary Conference, begs to submit the following report:

"It can scarcely be questioned that the recent Ecumenical Conference on Foreign Missions has already impressed the whole of Christendom as no other meeting has ever done. It has enlarged the vision of the churches as to the needs, possibilities, and fruits of the foreign fields. It has refreshed and strengthened the laborers abroad by such an exhibition of interest in them and their work as has never before been given them. It has stimulated faith in God and in man, and has laid before the inspection of the world so many and so great achievements of divine grace as will compel the world's recognition of the missionary movement as the mightiest movement of modern times. It has produced and revealed such a state of comity among the varying branches of the Protestant Church as will lead the world to say of us, as the heathen said of the early church, 'See how these Christians love.'

"But in order that the influences of this Conference, which was truly ecumenical in its character, may be distributed and reach to the great body of believers, it is necessary that denominational meetings, as catholic in make-up and scope within the denominational limits as this was in the world sphere, shall be held at as early a time as practicable. This is necessary in order to the opening up of channels for the conveyance of the thought and spirit of the Conference into the membership of the churches.

"We, therefore, heartily recommend that the Board of Missions shall provide for a General Missionary Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to be held for one week, at such time between the middle of April and the middle of May, 1901, as the Executive Committee may determine. In regard to the nature and scope of the meeting, we beg to submit the following suggestions:

"1. That an Executive Committee be appointed by this Board, consisting of the Bishops in charge of the foreign mission fields for the ensuing year, including the island of Cuba, the Secretaries of this Board, and one representative each from the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the Woman's Home Mission Society, the Sunday-school and Epworth League Boards, Board of Education, and Board of Church Extension; these members to be chosen by the Secretaries of this Board.

"2. That this General Conference shall be wholly engaged with the subject of missions, and shall include in its schedule all the branches of missionary work enterprised by our church—that is, both foreign and home missions, including also the work which our women are doing at home and abroad.

"3. That the place of holding the Conference should be a city of considerable size, with a fairly central location, and one, if possible, which will raise sufficient money to make the meeting thoroughly successful on its local side.

"4. That large attention be given in the programme to the part our young people of the Sunday-school and Epworth League are to take in missionary work.

"5. That the Conference should be a delegated body, thoroughly representative of all classes of our missionary workers, and constituted in whatever way the Executive Committee may devise, provided only that the scheme shall be ample enough to procure the attendance of not less than one thousand delegates.

"6. That the necessary expenses of the Executive Committee shall be paid out of any funds belonging to the Board not otherwise appropriated.

'JAMES ATKINS, Chairman;
"E. R. HENDRIX,
"HORACE BISHOP,
"W. B. PALMORE,
"W. F. GLENN."

Pursuant upon the action of the Board of Missions, we have as the Executive Committee: Bishop A. W. Wilson, in charge of our missions in the East—China, Japan, and Korea; Bishop E. R. Hendrix, in charge of the Brazil Mission; Bishop J. S. Key, the Mexico Mission; and Bishop W. A. Candler, the Cuba Mission; Dr. James Atkins, Sunday-school Editor; Dr. P. H. Whisner, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension; Dr. J. D. Hammond, of the Board of Education; Dr. H. M. DuBose, of the Epworth League Board; Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society; Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, of the Woman's Home Mission Society, and the Secretaries of the Board of Missions. The Executive Committee met, organized, and after long and careful consideration of the matters referred to, it has reached the following conclusions:

1. The time for holding the General Missionary Conference shall be six days, beginning Wednesday night, April 24, 1901, and continuing until Tuesday night, April 30.

2. The city of New Orleans, La., shall be the place where the Conference is to be held.

3. The number of delegates to be 1,091, each Annual Conference being entitled to one clerical delegate for every ten preachers, and one lay delegate for every fifteen preachers. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be entitled to 100, and the Woman's Home Mission Society to 75 delegates. The method of appointment is left to each Annual Conference and to these societies.

4. While every effort will be made to secure the lowest rates, delegates are expected to provide for their own expense of travel and entertainment.

5. The Programme Committee, having about completed its work, will, in a short time, publish an outline, giving the subjects to be discussed, in order to more intelligent preparation for participation in the Conference.

6. The Business Committee shall be the Secretaries of the Board of Missions and their office staff. All questions pertaining to the management of the Conference are to be referred to this committee.

The General Missionary Conference provided for in the foregoing action of the Board and of its Executive Committee should create an epoch in the missionary work of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. It will be the first Conference in her history of the character and scope contemplated in the paper presented by our delegates who were in New York. While the meeting will be held under the auspices of the Board of Missions, aided by the Secretaries of our several Connectional Boards, and while the problems to be considered will bear more especially upon the missionary enterprises we have ourselves inaugurated, yet there is a broader sense in which the body of workers will be called upon to put themselves in vital touch with questions of world-wide significance. The aim of the Conference will not be that of generating enthusiasm—something more permanent is contemplated. The time has come to give the fullest consideration, in a spirit of honest inquiry, to the evangelistic problems which confront the church. We trust the result will be a more complete occupation of the fields where we have missions, more adequate provision and equipment for work and workers, a wiser policy of administration and self-support in our domestic missions and in foreign lands, more efficient methods of disseminating missionary information, and the creation of intelligent conviction as to personal responsibility in seeing to it that the gospel is preached to every creature. We are entering upon a new and wonderful era. The world-field is white unto harvest. Such a Conference should be approached with earnest supplication for that visitation of the Holy Spirit which will give those who tarry for his coming a vision of the Christ enthroned and of the nations of the earth gathered into his kingdom. Our faith will be the measure of its power.

DEATH OF REV. C. C. GRISHAM.

A card from Rev. J. M. Huggin conveys the sad news of the death of Rev. C. C. Grisham, a superannuated member of the North Mississippi Conference, who passed away in great peace on the morning of the fifteenth instant. A more extended notice of his death will be furnished later.

What a pity that some Christians have such a poor way of showing gratitude for favors done them!

The professing Christian who in the hope of boosting himself resorts to disparagement of the character and work of another, thereby gives convincing evidence of a lack both of honor and of vital godliness.

The manner in which an act of kindness is performed is often more significant and of more value than the kindness itself. Those who show little consideration for the feelings of the poor and the unfortunate need not be surprised if sometimes their gifts are scorned. Throw a bone at a dog, and he will probably scamper away instead of stopping to gnaw it.

Everything that Midas touched turned to gold, but in these days if you touch some men with gold, they will turn to anything.—Epworth Era.

The vacancy in the presidency of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, caused by the death of Dr. Alfred E. Clay, has been filled by the election of Mr. S. D. Moody, a prominent Christian worker of this city.

Rev. H. C. Morehead writes that his delay in sending in the report of the recent meeting of the Publishing Committee was due to sickness. We are glad to learn that he is now in his usual health, and that he is closing up his work well for Conference.

***

Presiding Elder T. W. Dye sends us the following additional news anent Bro. Shumaker's condition. He says: "I am just from the bedside of our dear Bro. Shumaker, who has a malignant case of typhoid fever. He is calm and submissive to the will of his Lord. His work is well in hand, and a good report will come up from Kosciusko. Let prayer be made for our brother."

***

A friend at Moss Point, Miss., sends us the following items of interest: "A revival meeting is now in progress at the Methodist Church here. The congregations are growing, and some interest is manifested. The services are being conducted by Rev. Thomas B. Clifford, of Morgan City, La. The pastor, Rev. R. W. Bailey, will leave with his family in a few days for Colorado, where he will remain until his health materially improves."

Mrs. W. M. Legg, a daughter of the late Rev. Simon P. Richardson, of the North Georgia Conference, has a supply of her father's charming autobiography, "Lights and Shadows of An Itinerant Preacher's Life," and will take pleasure in filling all orders for same promptly. Dr. Richardson's book is attracting much attention, and has already had a phenomenal sale. Send to Mrs. Legg for a copy. Her address is 534 Washington avenue, Macon, Ga.

We are in receipt of a brief note from Rev. N. G. Augustus, the pastor at Durant, Miss., in which he says: "Rev. J. H. Shumaker, preacher in charge of Kosciusko station, is just finishing his first week with typhoid fever. His wife is also in bed. Both ask to be remembered by the brethren. Bro. Shumaker has done a fine year's work, and is in great favor with his people." May God grant this faithful itinerant and his good wife complete and speedy recovery.

We are deeply pained to learn of the death, which occurred at the parsonage at Shannon, Miss., on the thirteenth instant, of Sister Evans, wife of Rev. R. M. Evans, the faithful pastor of the Shannon circuit. Besides her husband, she left four small children to mourn her loss, their grief being shared by a large circle of sympathizing friends. A more extended notice will appear next week. The bereaved ones have our deepest sympathy in this heavy sorrow.

In Hattiesburg, Miss., on Wednesday, Nov. 28, 1900, at eight o'clock P. M., at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. William Horace Wainwright and Miss Clara Marvin Powell will be united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride is the lovely and accomplished daughter of our esteemed friend, Rev. Clarence A. Powell, of the Mississippi Conference. We extend in advance our cordial congratulations, and wish this worthy young couple a life crowded with happiness and sunshine.

A letter from Rev. R. A. Davis, the pastor at Waterproof, La., conveys the sad intelligence of the death from congestion of his little daughter Allie, who passed away on the night of the twelfth instant, after an illness of only two days. She was born in Downsville, Union parish, La., Sept. 21, 1891, and thus was a little over nine years of age. We tender Bro. Davis and his bereaved family our sincere sympathy in this dark hour, and pray that the God of all comfort may sustain them by his grace and presence.

Revival at Oxford, Miss.

In a brief note to the editor, dated Nov. 12, Rev. R. M. Standefer, the cultured and popular pastor at Oxford, Miss., says: "We have just closed the greatest meeting that Oxford ever had. Bro. Culpepper was with us and did splendid work. This great work will last. We had one hundred conversions; about fifty have joined the Methodist Church."

Revival at East End, Meridian.

MR. EDITOR: On the night of the fourth instant we closed a very delightful meeting at East End Church, Meridian. The first two weeks the preaching was done by my son, J. W. Bradford, of the North Alabama Conference. The third week Bro. G. S. Harmon did the preaching. Our church and community were interested from the beginning, but the interest increased and the congregations improved until even with the aid of the Sunday-school room we could not seat the people. There were at least thirty conversions and reclamations, and twenty-one accessions to our church. Among the conversions were several young ladies of the E. M. F. College.

Among the most gracious results of our meeting was the unifying of our church. We are in harmony and love. We expect nothing else but a full report for Conference. In the past two years there has been one hundred and forty accessions to this church. We have at least fifty persons who will pray in public. Praise the Lord.

More Good News from Brookhaven District.

A letter just received tells of the purchase by the Topisaw circuit of a neat parsonage on a ten-acre lot adjoining the church lot at Topisaw. This will give Topisaw circuit a neat, substantial preacher's home.

Rev. J. M. Morse, the preacher in charge, assures me that every cent of missionary and all other assessments at Wesson will be paid. Indeed, he has almost every cent already in hand. Rev. W. G. Forsythe feels safe in saying that his charge, the Adams circuit, will pay up in full. Rev. C. McDonald is very hopeful that he can bring up a like report from Providence. Rev. H. A. Gatlin writes that Beauregard circuit can be relied on to pay up on missions.

I am on my "fourth round." So far I find the preachers and people, generally, encouraged and very hopeful, and the preachers are in favor with the people.

MISSISSIPPI.

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss. EDITOR.

"The God who upholds the universe can uphold you."

It is folly for people to boast of freedom in a free country; then acknowledge that they are slaves to some sinful habit; and this is frequently the case.

Parents who have sons to educate for the highest purposes in life should boycott every college that permits foot-ball. They say, "Where shall we send them?" Nowhere, if that is the best we can do. Our boys would better grow up in blissful ignorance, if there can be such a thing, than to be prize-fighters, foot-ball players, or any other sort of brute.

Mrs. Hoskins' article in the ADVOCATE on "College Entertainments," followed in the next issue by Rev. T. W. Lewis, deserves to be carefully and prayerfully read by all our people, both old and young.

Our Lord intended that his church should be sustained by the "sincere milk of the Word," and not by ice-cream; yet there are a great many people who think the financial interest of the church would go to pieces if it were not for church suppers, when the fact is, it is an abominable curse to the church, and it is to be hoped that our Leagues will have nothing to do with them. They are of the devil, and no church can prosper so well with as without them.

Let all our young people begin to recount God's blessings to them during the year; then, on Thanksgiving Day, let us put a worthy gift on the altar as a token of our appreciation of his mercies and blessings, and may our Orphans' Home, at Water Valley, be remembered on that day by the many kind-hearted Methodists and others who may meet together to give thanks to the God of all grace. The cheerful gift makes the cheerful giver.

LOUISIANA.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON, Ruston, La. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Are the Leaguers wondering if the Louisiana editor is asleep? Well, he is not. There's been nothing to write about, and one lesson yet to be learned by many is not to write unless there is something to write about.

Will not the secretary, or one of the members of each League, please write a short letter of 100 words, more or less, to the editor concerning their League? What about the Holston Plan? Reading Course? New officers? Tell us something about these.

Arcadia League has raised about $30 on the Holston Plan, and expects to raise about that much more. We would like to hear from each League in the district as to how they are getting along on it.

We are in receipt of the Shreveport District Epworth League Handbook—a neatly-printed, well-gotten-up pamphlet, full of information concerning the League. Bro. W. G. Evans is the editor, and has made a good job of it.

Ye editor has been up to his eyes in local work for the past three months, and is now domiciled in as pretty and comfortable a parsonage as there is anywhere. The cost is about $2,400, including the lot. The Junior League has been an active factor in its erection.

Conference is almost here. Leaguers, see to a few things:

1. See that your pastor's salary is paid in full. You can be of great help to the Board of Stewards if you will, and if they will let you. Organize into squads and gather up the crumbs. The only reason the salary is not paid half the time is, that the people don't try.

2. Ask the pastor to let you help him get his Conference collections, or do something else to help him.

3. See that he is supplied with correct League statistics to report at Conference.

A NEW BOOK.

PHYSICAL CULTURE. By B. F. Johnson. Primary book. Cloth, 25 cents. B. F. Johnson Pub. Co., Richmond, Va.

This book is the work of a man who has put physical culture where it belongs in his own home, and has personally reaped its benefits.

It is a primary book intended to be used by teachers and pupils at school, and by parents and their children at home. The directions for exercises are so simple that a parent can easily take up and continue at home the work which the teacher begins at school. In addition to the exercises there are bright, every-day talks of great practical value—some addressed to teachers, others to parents, and others to children. There is a helpful word to mothers; a timely chapter on the model school-house and grounds; there are also chapters on breathing, the use of the hands, fingers, wrists, lower limbs, and joints; talks on how to be straight, on food, drink, cleanliness, care of the hair, eyes, ears, teeth, and feet. And there is a much-needed word on purity of habits and character. The volume contains a number of excellent and useful illustrations. It deserves a large circulation.

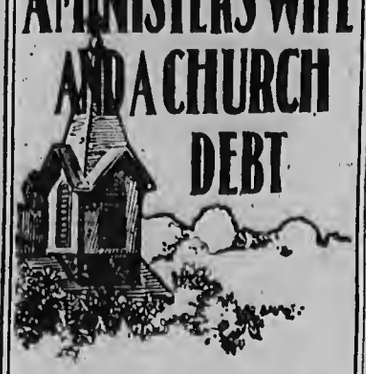
A MINISTER'S WIFE AND A CHURCH DEBT



A minister's wife in Buffalo writes:

"Our church was encumbered with a mortgage. The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post seemed to offer a chance to accomplish something for the work, and I took the matter to the Ladies' Aid Society. I proposed that each member should enter her subscription, and try to secure other names. My plan was received enthusiastically. In addition to our own members we obtained subscriptions from many not connected with the church. Everywhere we went we talked Journal and church mortgage. Soon we had subscriptions enough to reduce the mortgage considerably, and with very little work."

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy five ponnds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-ponnd new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

Home Circle

TO THE BOYS OF TO-DAY.

A judgeship is vacant, the ermine awaits
The shoulders of youth, brave, honest, and true.
Some one will be standing by fame's open gates,
I wonder, my boys—Will it be one of you?

The president's chair of a great railroad mass
Is empty to-day, for death claimed his due.
The directors are choosing a man for his place.
I wonder, my boys—Will it be one of you?

Of eloquent men there are only a few.
The man who can fill it must have power to thrill;
The best will be chosen—Will it be one of you.

The great men about us will pass to their rest.
Their places be filled by the boys who pursue
The search for the highest, the noblest, the best
I wonder who'll fill them; I hope 'twill be you.

—The Ram's Horn

A BROKEN THREAD.

It was one of the boy's duties to carry the mail from the summer hotel where he worked to the postoffice in the neighboring village. He was an honest boy, but apt to be careless at times.

One day, on his return from the office, he found that a letter had remained in the bag unnoticed when he took out the others. He took it out now and looked at it. It was directed to some town in France.

He could still mail it in time for the noon train if he ran all the way back; but it was a scorching day, the road was dusty, and he was tired. Besides, there was a game of ball going on that he wanted to see. It did not look like an important letter. A light, thin thing, directed in a woman's hand. Pshaw! Women were always scribbling!

He threw it into the bag and went whistling to the ball-field.

The letter was mailed two hours later. It reached New York just an hour too late for the steamer, and was thus delayed four days.

Old Jeanne, the cook at the hotel, went about that Summer crooning happily to herself, muttering and laughing when she was alone, paring the potatoes. When her mistress asked her one day why she laughed, she said:

"It's for Louis, madame—my old Louis. He comes at last. It was for that I save and save, one—two year. He is lame and sick—not like me. I come here with my boy, Jean, to earn money so that we can all make a home here. Jean is dead. Then I work here alone to bring my husband. We take ze little cabin yonder. I cook for you; Louis, he make us a little garden. He shall have care of the poulets. We shall talk over the old times. We shall be as happy as the birds."

She went on to tell their plan. The old man was to walk from the hills to Havre, where he would take the ship. She had sent the money for his passage in a draft. He had it now. He would be here next week. They never would be separated again.

The old man went to Havre on the day set, but he found no letter. Worn out with his journey, ill and penniless, he wandered about the quays of the great seaport for three days, and at last was taken to a house of refuge for paupers.

The letter came at last, but it was too late. It never reached him. He died the following Winter.

Jeanne worked alone for the rest of her life, in merciful ignorance that her life was so lonely and empty just because a well-meaning boy had failed in a trifling duty.

Human lives are so closely woven together that the cutting of a single thread sometimes starts a rent which may extend beyond our knowledge or power to help.—Youth's Companion.

HIS MOTHER'S TRAINING.

Roland stopped and looked at the sign,

"BOY WANTED."

It hung outside a large cutlery establishment next to a store where there had been a big fire. He had made up his mind that he was old enough to look for work and try to relieve mother. Should he go in? He hesitated, then with all the courage he could command went inside. He was sent back to a room where men on high stools were writing in big books, too busy to notice him, but a tall gentleman did, and questioned him so fast he could hardly answer.

"What kind of work do you expect to do? Don't know? Most boys do. Never worked out before? Suppose you think it's all play. Well," pointing to some steps, "you go down there, and the man at the foot will tell you what to do."

Roland went down and found half a dozen boys at work, with their sleeves rolled up, cleaning and polishing knives. The man at the foot of the steps looked up and said:

"Come to try your hand? Well, three have just left in disgust; doesn't seem to be boy's work, somehow, but it's got to be done. You see," he said, picking up some knives and scissors and showing spots of rust on them, "the water that saved our building the other night injured some of our finest goods. If you want to try your hand at cleaning, I'll show you how. We pay by the dozen."

"'Tisn't fair," said one of the boys; "some have more rust on than others."

"If you don't like our terms, you needn't work for us," said the foreman; and the boy, muttering that he wanted to be errand boy and see something of life, left, while Roland went to work with a will. As he finished each piece he held it up, examined it critically, and wondered if mother would think it well done.

When the hour for closing came the gentleman who had sent him down stairs appeared and, looking round at the boys, said:

"Well?"

"There is the boy we want," said the foreman, pointing to Roland. "He will take pride in doing anything you give him to do. He has been well trained."

Again the tall man spoke quickly:

"That's what we want. 'Boy Wanted' doesn't mean any kind of a boy. Mother know you came? No? Well, take her your first wages, and tell her there's a place open to you here. Then put your arms around her neck and thank her for teaching you to be thorough. If more boys were thorough, more boys would succeed in life."

"I guess, mother," said Roland, when he told her about it, "it was because I tried to do everything as you would like it. I forgot I was doing it because there was a 'boy wanted.'"—Sunday-School Advocate.

WHAT SHE NEEDED.

"I don't know what to do about my daughter Lucy," said a perplexed mother, who had come to an outspoken, but kindly old physician for advice. "She seems so listless, and does not seem to have any interest in life, and she's so irritable at times. I don't think that she has exercise enough, and I want to know what you think about my sending her to a gymnasium or to dancing-school. She's tired of her bicycle, and the lawn-tennis season is past. What would you advise?"

"How old is she?" asked the doctor.

"Nearly nineteen."

"Can she cook?"

"Oh, no; she knows nothing about cooking."

"Can she sweep?"

"No; my maid does all the sweeping."

"Does she take care of her own room, and make her own bed?"

"No, I do that. Her room is next to mine, and I've always attended to that."

"Does she have any part whatever in the household duties?"

"No; I can not say that she has."

"No duties, no responsibilities, no sense of obligation, no part in the work to be done in every household?"

"Well, no."

"Then, madam," said the doctor, frankly, "your daughter has no need of a gymnasium in which to expend her pent-up energies. I don't wonder that she is irritable and unhappy."

"What would you advise?" asked the mother, weakly.

"I would advise you to make her feel that she has a part and place in your home life; that its duties must be borne by all of the members of the family in common, and that she must do her part toward contributing to the general comfort of the home. A girl of her age, with no home duties, no responsibilities, no interest in her home, needs more than a gymnasium or a dancing-school to make her healthful and happy."—The Household.

A LESSON IN THIS RICH MAN'S LIFE.

A millionaire in New York told the writer that, when he was a boy, he let himself out by verbal contract for five years, at seven dollars and fifty cents a week, in a large dry goods store in New York. At the end of three years this young man had developed such skill in judging goods that another concern offered him three thousand dollars a year to go abroad as its buyer. He said that he did not mention this offer to his employers, nor even suggest the breaking of his agreement to work for seven and a half dollars a week, although verbal, until his time was up. Many people would say he was very foolish not to accept the offer mentioned, but the fact was that his firm, in which he ultimately became a partner, paid him ten thousand dollars a year at the expiration of his seven-and-a-half-dollar contract. They saw that he was giving them many times the amount of his salary, and in the end he was the gainer. Suppose he had said to himself, "They give me only seven and a half dollars a week, and I will earn only seven and a half dollars a week; I am not going to earn fifty dollars a week when I am getting only seven and a half!" This is what many boys would have said, and then they would have wondered why they were not advanced.—Success.

FOOD COMBINATIONS.

Persons with weak digestion should not, as a rule, eat fruits and vegetables together; that is, at the same meal. Neither should they eat fat or fried food.

Fruits and cereals are best suited for the morning and evening meals. Fruit should be eaten at the beginning rather than at the end of a meal.

Cereals and fruits are better than meat and fat for warm weather, and meats and fat are better suited for cold than warm weather.

Potatoes and some other foods when baked will digest in much less time than when boiled or fried.

All grains and vegetables should be thoroughly cooked, especially green fruits and green vegetables.

The time for digestion depends much upon how food is cooked.

Nuts and crackers, ground together (in a coffee mill), make a good food combination, and may be eaten with milk.

Many of the highest authorities on dietetics and hygiene claim that all condiments, salts, spices, vinegar, etc., are not nutritious and retard digestion, being mostly irritants and stimulants—Health in the Household.

WOULD you rather buy lamp-chimneys, one a week the year round, or one that lasts till some accident breaks it?

Tough glass, Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass," almost never break from heat, not one in a hundred.

Where can you get it? and what does it cost?

Your dealer knows where and how much. It costs more than common glass; and may be, he thinks tough glass isn't good for his business.

DAVIDSON—Mrs. MARTHA A. DAVIDSON was born Oct. 20, 1823, in Alexandria, La. She was married to Mr. Neal Davidson, Jan. 11, 1838. Their union was blessed with twelve children, four of whom remain to mourn the loss of a devoted Christian mother whose life was in every sense worthy of emulation. She also leaves one sister, Mrs. Plaisance Texada, of Quadrate, La., and a number of relatives and friends, to whom we tender our sympathy in this hour of bereavement.

Sister Davidson united with the Methodist Church in 1839, and ever afterwards lived a consistent life. The writer doubts if anyone has lived in Rapides parish in the last half century whose life has done more to advance the cause of Christianity than that of the deceased. As pastor, I visited her several times during her last illness, which was long and painful, but never did I hear her utter a word of complaint. I found her always bearing her affliction with Christian fortitude. I am sure the few hours spent in her presence resulted in greater good to myself than to her. A friend remarked after her death that she always had time to talk religion to us. Whether on the street, in the home, in the office, or elsewhere, "Grandma," as she was commonly called, would talk and exhort those she met to a better life. I saw her just a few hours before death came, and she reached out her hand and said: "I am glad to see you. I am just waiting for Jesus to come. I am ready, and it will only be a little while now." A few hours later, in the home of Mr. Cary Blanchard, her son-in-law, surrounded by three of her four living children, and their families and friends without a struggle she fell on sleep.

A. W. TURNER, P. O.

WHITE—Mrs. MARY CRENSHAW WHITE, wife of Dr. Stuart L. White, fell asleep in the arms of her Savior in Ruston, La., on the morning of Oct. 22, 1900, after an illness of one month. A half hour before the end she partook of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and then, after signifying her wishes concerning her little babe, just a month old, and bidding good-bye to husband and loved ones, she closed her eyes and waited for death, which she welcomed as a sweet release from the intense suffering she so heroically bore.

Mary Crenshaw was born and reared in Arkansas, and educated at Galloway College, Searcy. She was married, Sept. 29, 1897, to Dr. Stuart L. White, only son of the sainted T. B. White, and their three short years of married life were a perfect realization of love's dream. She was one of noble, decided Christian character—gentle, loving, and forgiving. Her friends were many and staunch. The words of assurance of her acceptance with God and resignation to his will, which she spoke just before the last, were but confirmation of what her life had already shown. As her soul went up from earth to God, it drew other souls nearer to him, and her life, brief and unassuming though it was, was end is a blessing to the world. Of a truth, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Those who feel most her loss are trusting God more than ever. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you, and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem, saith the Lord." Amen!

HER PASTOR.

WARREN—G. W. WARREN was born in Itawamba county, Miss., Nov. 8, 1833, and died while on a visit to the home of his son, in Plain Dealing, La., Aug. 21, 1900. He moved when quite a boy to Claiborne parish, La., and spent most of his life in the above and in the adjoining parish of Webster. He was a man of good business qualifications, serving the people in the capacity of clerk of court and sheriff of the parish of Webster. I knew nothing of his early life, but for many years he was a member of the Methodist Church. In 1896 I became his pastor, and was such for three successive years, and found him always to be a conscientious, spiritual man, and we placed him in the Board of Stewards. He loved the church, and liberally supported it. He was not only a converted man, to which he gave testimony, but was seeking the blessing of entire sanctification, in which he firmly believed. His home was a preacher's resting-place, and he, together with his good wife, made the preacher feel at home. He died trusting in the Lord, and joined with his family in his dying hour to meet him in heaven. He was a kind husband and father. May his last pleadings be remembered, and his loved ones meet him in heaven!

TAYLOR—Died at her home in East Feliciana parish, La., Oct. 31, 1900, MARY HILL PIRAS, wife of J. Warren Taylor, aged seventy-five years eleven months and eleven days.

When the one of the last October morning was filling the world with light and song, this gentle woman, loving mother, true and loyal friend, passed "through the valley of the shadow of death" into the "haven of rest" that remains for the children of God. She was born in 1824, in East Feliciana parish, seven miles north of Clinton. Reared in a home of wealth and refinement, she developed into a superior womanhood. In 1841 she became the wife of J. Warren Taylor, of Virginia. Of this union seven children were born, five of whom, with her husband, survive to mourn their loss. In 1856 she united with the M. E. Church, South, and the love for her church was manifest until the end. For all human errors she received perfect pardon, and the "peace that passeth understanding" was hers during the days of her long illness. Such was her faith that she, through her suffering, could look up and behold the glories of her future "happy home," and was beckoned on by the angels, who waited in their life-boats to bear her home. By her Savior, with the redeemed, she stands, to welcome our coming.

A. G. T.

MARBLE—Mrs. NANCY C. MARBLE (nee Freeman) died at her home in Claiborne county, Miss., July 15, 1900. She was born of Christian parents in Tennessee, June 25, 1827; moved to Mississippi about 1841, and was married to Ira J. Marble, Jan. 4, 1853. She was the mother of five children, three of whom, with the father, preceded her to their heavenly home, and two children, viz.: Rev. M. J. Marble and Mrs. I. Z. McKay, and eight grandchildren are left to mourn their loss. She joined the church early in life, and lived a quiet, unassuming Christian. When her health would admit she visited the sick, attended divine services, taught a class in Sunday-school, and always loved her pastor. She belonged to a large and influential Methodist family. Her father, Anderson Freeman, and many of the family have been and are ministers of the gospel. She had many sorrows and sad afflictions, but always seemed resigned to God's will. Her health had been very bad for several years, and at times was a great sufferer, and seemed to have realized for some time that her life's work was done, and expressed herself many times as being ready and wanting "to pass over the river and rest under the shade of the trees."

"ONE WHO LOVED HER."

GRAY—E. E. GRAY was born May 4, 1829, in Robinson county, N. C.; moved to Mississippi in 1854; joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1856; was happily united in matrimony in 1865 to Miss Rosie Bell Sartin. God blessed their home with twelve children—nine boys and three girls—five of whom preceded their father across the dark river, and seven of them remain with their Christian mother to follow some sweet day to that home to which their father went from this earth, Oct. 19, 1900. He also left one sister, who shares the grief of his family and numerous friends.

Bro. Gray was unquestionably a true Christian. He held family prayer twice a day—morning and night—and the lives of his children manifest the graciousness of his influence. He was always ready to fight against sin. He loved all his pastors; was exceedingly liberal to the church; was a contributor to every good cause.

Bro. Gray was a faithful teacher of the Bible class in the Sunday-school at New Salem for a long time. In his death earth lost a treasure, but heaven has gained a jewel. May God bless his sorrow-stricken wife, sister and children! In the prayer of his worthy friend and pastor,

LUTHER A. MCKROWN.

GRAY—YOUNG—Resolutions of respect adopted by New Salem Sunday-school, New Salem circuit, Greenville district, North Mississippi Conference, in memory of Bro. R. E. GRAY, who died Sept. 19, 1900, and Bro. JOHN YOUNG, who died Sept. 28, 1900:

Resolved, That whereas God has taken them from us, in their death we sustain a great and irreparable loss, for they were both teachers of such long standing that they seemed to be a very necessary part of the classes which they loved and served so well. These brethren were in many respects remarkable men. Their places in the various relations of life, especially in our church and Sunday school, will be hard to fill. The vacancy made in their home can only be soothed by the sacred presence of the Savior's love.

Resolved, That in the death of these brethren the Sunday-school has lost two valuable teachers, the cause of Christ two active workers, and the neighborhood two staunch friends and helpers in all times of need. While we mourn the loss of such valuable men, we bow in humble submission to the will of God, and we will ever hold their many virtues in affection's sacred memory, and to their mourning families we extend our heartfelt sympathy, and commend them to the keeping of the Heavenly Father, who ever hears the prayer of the widow and orphan.

Humbly submitted by the following committee:

R. A. RIDOWAY,
C. F. CARPER.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CANVASS.

The following statement concerning the proposed Sunday-school census of New Orleans has been issued by the Press Committee of the movement:

It is known to the Christian public that an organized effort by all Protestant denominations is soon to be made, to take a religions census of the Sunday-school population of our city—that is, of children of age suitable for attendance upon Sunday-schools. It is also proposed at the same time to ascertain the residences of adults who are in no wise identified with any religious organization. The canvassers, mostly from the noble army of Sunday-school workers and teachers, are not expected to do any missionary work, such as tract distribution, or invitation to particular churches or Sabbath-schools. They will be instructed to confine themselves strictly to a campaign of inquiry as to homes, and such religious statistics as attendance or non-attendance on Sabbath-school or church, and if unattached, denominational preferences.

Cards filled out with this information will be tabulated and utilized by our Protestant Churches in conducting harmoniously, systematically and thoroughly future evangelistic work in our city of nearly 300,000 immortal souls. We trust the enterprise will find favor with our people, as the facts thus gained will be useful in guiding intelligently evangelistic work among the irreligious of our population, as well as among neglected children, who steadily recruit the ranks of our pauper and criminal classes. The canvass, if practicable, will be made in a single day, January 8, because it is a school holiday, and because it releases many teachers, has been selected as the time. Encouraging progress has been made in the organization of the forces in the upper districts, but canvassers are sorely needed below Canal street. Who will volunteer?

R. Q. MALLARD,

REFORM IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

The faculty committees on athletics of the principal American universities, at a conference held more than two years ago, appointed a subcommittee on which seven universities were represented, to investigate the whole subject of intercollegiate athletic contests and report upon them.

The conclusions reached by the committee were recently published, and incorporated in the report are twenty rules to be applied to the regulation of college sports. The committee found that athletics occupy too large a place in college life, but wisely concluded that it is better to mend the abuses by regulation than to end them by abolishing sports altogether.

The rules reported are designed to give athletics their proper place in relation to the mental and moral training of students, and to free them from the taint of professionalism. Under these rules, college athletic committees will always include representatives of the faculty. Only students who are in good standing in their classes will be allowed to take part in contests, and a summary end is put to the practice of entering expert baseball- or football-players as "special" students in order to take advantage of their prowess in the field.

No special or partial student will be admitted to the teams unless he is taking a course equivalent to that prescribed for candidates for a degree; and any student will be shut out from the teams who, before or after entering college, has received any pecuniary gain whatever from taking part in athletic competitions. Intercollegiate contests are not to be allowed on other than college grounds, and it is strongly recommended that an agreement be arrived at to reduce gate-money to a minimum.

These rules are strict by comparison with the lax practices which have long prevailed, but it is probable that they will become an accepted standard, and in that case they will relieve college sports of excess and extravagance, and give them their rightful place in college life.—Youth's Companion.

The November number of the Review of Reviews marks the culmination of the presidential campaign of 1900. Its various departments—The Progress of the World, Record of Current Events, Cartoons, and Leading Articles of the Month—summarize the things worth remembering in connection with the political contests of the year in the United States, Canada, and Great Britain, while contributed articles describe in detail the campaign methods employed in Chicago, New York and Loudon, and the rudimentary party organizations of Porto Rico. Its editorial treatment of current politics has given the Review a unique distinction among American magazines.

That the election of a President has become the greatest of business enterprises is proved by a timely article on the Cost of National Campaigns, which has a prominent place in the current number of the new magazine, The World's Work. The writer traces the growing use of money in politics, and cites the interesting fact that while it cost only $100,000 to re-elect Lincoln, not less than $5,000,000 was spent this year by the campaign managers of the two great parties.

Ninety-four different volumes have been issued up to date in the Moody Colportage Library, their combined circulation being 3,754,899. They include six books in Swedish, four in Danish-Norwegian, three in German, and one has recently been added in Spanish to meet the call for gospel literature in Spanish.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY.

A Slave Holder's Daughter.

By BELLE KEARNEY.

Cloth, 12 Mo, Fully Illustrated. $1.

This is a book which photographs the new South in contrast with the old. It deals especially with the evolution of Southern women—their surprising energy in leaping from the lap of the old, feudal, luxurious life to meet the stern realities of to-day. The author herself belongs by birthright to the old regime, while in full sympathy with the new condition. She writes from the inside, and pictures in her vivid and throbbing pages the situation down in Dixie as it relates to the people, education, the woman question, temperance, the economist, etc. All those who would have an inside knowledge of Dixie's Land as it is to-day should read it.

THE FREEMAN.

BY WILLIAM COWPER.

He is a freeman whom the truth makes free,
And all are slaves beside. There's not a chain
That hellish foes confederate for his harm
Can wind aronnd him but he casts it off
With as much ease as Samson his green withes.
He looks abroad into the varied field
Of Nature, and, though poor, perhaps, compared
With those whose mansions glitter in his sight,
Calls the delightful scenery all his own.
His are the mountains, and the valleys his,
And the resplendent rivers. His to enjoy
With a propriety that none can feel,
But who, with filial confidence inspired,
Can lift to heaven an unpresumptuous eye,
And, smiling, say, "My Father made them all!"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

"Glorious things of thee are spoken, O city of our God," was the text from which Rev. John Van Schaick preached an interesting sermon bearing on the coming celebration of the centennial of the establishment of the capital at Washington, to be held Dec. 12. He said: "The history of the city of Washington should especially appeal to the citizens here after its hundred years of existence as the capital of the Republic; a hundred years of as dramatic, romantic history as has ever been told in song or story. No one can look into the book of the hundred years just ending without being moved. Certainly no Christian man or woman can read the story without seeing God's hand in it all. This great capital, we believe, is, and pray ever may remain, the city of our God. The birth of the city was strange and unusual as compared with other cities of the continent, but like that of ancient Rome, Paris, or Madrid—all founded by design. Chicago, Milwaukee, Buffalo and Duluth grew up because the lakes drew the wealth of the West into their lape. St. Louis, Omaha and Kansas City are children of emigrant trails and inland rivers. New York and Philadelphia, of the Atlantic, and San Francisco, of the Pacific, all followed in their development well-defined economic laws of trade and commerce. With Washington all is different. She is the creature, not only of the people within her midst, but of all the people of the country. As Senator Southard put it fifty years ago, 'She is the only child of the Union'—a child of which is expected a work unique in the history of American cities. She was put here by the voice of the people, set down in this general section by vote of Congress, placed upon the particular spot she occupies by the great American after whom she is named."

Miss Clara Barton, president of the National Red Cross, is at her home in the suburbs of Washington, resting after her long and continuous work at Galveston. She says that her general health is good, but that she feels the need of a little quietness and rest, and that the Red Cross work in Galveston is now practically done.

Preceding its regular monthly meeting, the Y. M. C. A. held an informal reception to the new general secretary, Mr. Lyman L. Pierce, of Trenton, N. J. Although Mr. Pierce will not come to Washington permanently until the first of January, he wishes to extend his acquaintance in his new field, and has been here several times since he was elected secretary. He made a speech to the members, which added to their previous good opinion of him. He said that the marvelous growth of the Association during the last two years indicated a management which it would be difficult to improve on, but he would do his best to develop the splendid possibilities he recognized in the Washington field. At a business meeting 130 new members were elected.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches opened Monday evening, and will continue until Thursday evening. The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. E. Hez Swem. A vigorous committee report on the suppression of the liquor traffic was submitted to the Association and adopted. All the churches in the Association reported themselves in a thriving condition.

The sending of a cablegram by the Navy Department to Capt. Chester, of the battleship "Kentucky," which is about due at Naples, directing him to proceed with the battleship to Smyrna, Turkey, is taken to mean that this government has tired of the procrastination of the Sultan of Turkey in keeping his promise to pay the claims for the American missionary property destroyed by Turks in Armenia, and that he is to be forced to settle. There is nothing absolutely known to justify this belief, but the circumstantial evidence is strong. It is known that the President has about exhausted his patience with the Sultan; also that Smyrna was not on the itinerary of the "Kentucky" as arranged before she started upon the cruise.

The congregation of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church gave a reception to Rev. F. D. Power, their pastor, in honor of the completion of the twenty-fifth year of his work for that church, and quite a number of persons from other churches attended during the evening.

This government is not pleased with the extreme demands of the powers on China for the beheading of a number of those prominent in inciting the Boxer troubles, not because it does not believe that they deserve punishment, but because it believes it would be unwise and productive of much harm to ask the Chinese Government to do more than it is absolutely certain it can do. As a result of a Cabinet discussion, Minister Conger has been instructed to point out to the representatives of the other powers at Pekin the danger of insisting upon the beheading of eleven men who have such strong following as the princes and other Chinese officials who are under condemnation. The members of this government believe that if the government of China should undertake to behead these men, they would band themselves together and cause a big civil war in China that might not only overthrow the existing government, but would throw the empire into a state of anarchy which might continue for years, and that the only way to continue peace in China is to ask no more of the Chinese Government than it is known it can do.

METHODIST BROTHERLINESS.

(Correspondence from the W. C. T. U.)

I have just returned from a more than two months' tour of six counties—Leake, Neshoba, Newton, Scott, Smith, and Jasper. At the invitation of Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., I have spoken in almost every Methodist Church within his district in the interests of the W. C. T. U, and have organized in the greater part.

It was a new experience, not only in talking to audiences, but in bumping over 283 miles of hilly roads, liberally corduroyed. But it was a foreign land as to conditions in my native State. I was once twelve days beyond railway, telegraph, and telephone. North of the A. and V. R. R. the telephone is in every town, and so is the "blind-tiger," and south of it, too, though all this is prohibition territory. In one place it was church members who were selling illicit whisky. Almost everywhere the jug trade and the "wild-cat" product are so alarmingly in evidence that the temperance people of Mississippi would do well to consider if a convention should not be called at Jackson, next May or June, to discuss further protection from the liquor traffic than we have yet gained, for there is little doubt that we are slipping back for want of the aggressive agitation that during the 80's was educating the youth of the State along our lines, and the want of which in the 90's is beginning to tell sadly upon the habits of the people.

But if beyond telephones, I was never beyond human kindness and sympathy—"good measure, pressed down and overflowing;" and I am back "in the swim" with a deeper reverence for humanity in its simpler relations, and should welcome the opportunity to again serve the kindly responsive people who received me into their homes and hearts in the piney woods and sand-washes of Central Mississippi—the country, I am told, which produces our governors and senators. Many of these people for the first time heard a woman speak; and it was pathetic to witness how women shut in by narrow opportunity cherish and need touch of spirit with women of the wider world. A surprising number of the boys and girls are sent off to college, and graded and high schools are eagerly coveted at home. At one place, thirty-five miles from anywhere, I found one young woman just home from a Summer course at Cornell. The transforming power of new ideals is already visibly at work.

But I came away from this district with my heart fullest of Methodist preachers. They are the hardest-worked and most uncomplaining set I have ever met—except their wives. Few of them serve less than six churches, and it is cruel even to think of the number of miles of road they labor off in a month, like a measuring-worm stretching the distance between their charges, visiting the sick, burying the dead, and occasionally having a little note of joy thrown in marrying an infatuated couple. One's blood grows chill contemplating the salary on which these men of God are trying to support "a wife and six children," the only certainty about it being its uncertainty. At one place I learned that the pastor had had in two months just one dollar and a half! There is as heroic missionary service going on now in our own State as any in China, and it deserves as honored recognition. The question is: Do people deserve to have the gospel preached to them who do not take better care of the preacher?

How these preachers long deeply to use the time in study which they must spend "on the road"—the endless road! The best they can do is to provide themselves with their ohmroh periodicals, while their minds starve for a touch with "what-all-the-world's a-seeking" in our highest and latest literature. When somebody sometimes remembers the book famine in the minister's home, he sends old theological literature long relegated to the top-shelf in his own library. It is not needed. If your preacher is to give you an alive gospel, he must be kept "in tune with the Infinite" by hearing the new song God is putting into the months of the men and women of his own day and hour expressed in the newest books. You rich men and women, who wonder what God wants you to do with your money, don't send it all to China! Let some of it brighten those lonely, unpainted little parsonages in Leake, Neshoba, Newton, Scott, Smith, Jasper, and God knows how many other counties in Mississippi where big-brained and big-hearted men starve for brain- and heart-food. Send them a year's subscription to some of our leading magazines, and get your interest in the investment in the picture of the family putting their leaves. I will carry to my grave the tired faces of some of their sweet wives in these parsonages who do all the work for six children. Yet, with all this on their hands and souls, these blessed preachers found time to open the way for my work, and to drive me in their buggies from place to place—sometimes sixteen miles apart.

Bros. T. L. Mellen, M. L. White, C. S. Embree, L. J. Jones, W. W. Morse, D. S. Harmon, Dr. Partin, R. S. Gale, D. C. Langford, W. L. Linfield, D. Scarborough, W. M. Stevens, B. W. Lewis, W. M. Sullivan, the Mississippi W. C. T. U. owes you a debt of gratitude it can never repay, except in kind; and while I live the wounds those Christians of "slower recognition" make to our cause will be healed in the memory of your brotherly kindness.

Within three months, with the assistance of our State organizer, Miss May Russell, the membership of the Mississippi W. C. T. U. has been increased sixty per cent. Two organizers will be kept permanently in the field to "agitate, educate, organize," especially for the enforcement of law. We ask the prayers, the sympathy and the help of all God's people in this effort.

"MINISTERIAL PREPARATION."

Passing by the generally recognized fact that the preacher must be called and sent of God to preach the gospel, let us notice the preparation needed for the work of the ministry.

The pulpit is the center of moral forces in any community, and is weak or strong according to the character of the man who fills it. We, therefore, conclude that we ought to fill our pulpit only with men who are thoroughly furnished for every good work.

The preparation for the pulpit should be threefold in its nature, viz: physical, intellectual, and spiritual. In other words, the preacher should be an all-round, educated man. The whole man must take part in his work, and, therefore, the whole man should be educated.

The young man called to the ministry should train his body to endure hardness as a good soldier, and especially should he cultivate the organs and members that are to be used in delivering his message. Grace of movement in and out of the pulpit increases the power of the speaker, and should be studied by all of our young men. Most of our young men need to study expression. This, of course, involves the cultivation of the voice. Who can tell how much truth has been ineffectively spoken by preachers who had no control of their voices? Some by whining, some by bawling and screaming, and others by improper modulation and enunciation, have marred the usefulness of their ministry, and thereby failed to reach many that might have been saved. The expression of the face, the grace of the body, and the intonation of the voice, are all important to the preacher.

I see no reason why the preacher should not have as much power in his voice, face, and movement of his body, as the actor. Why not? To hold what we have gathered, and to enjoy a yet greater harvest, we must see that our young men have a complete furnishing, intellectually. The idea of a young man entering the active work of the ministry while unable to hold a first-grade certificate is too absurd to think about. To longer permit it will be the climax of unwisdom upon the part of the church. 'Tis true the harvest is great and the laborers few, still we can wait for our recruits till they are equipped to do better work than we older men are doing. Let the young man sharpen his tools and get ready before he enters upon the duties of a pastorate. Education is so cheap today that there is no excuse for ignorance in the pulpit. If it takes ten years to get the needed preparation, what of that? A man fully prepared for his work can do more in twenty years than one half prepared can do in forty.

Some years ago a young preacher with a fair English education was preparing to attend the Vanderbilt University, but was advised by one of our presiding elders to go into the active ministry. The presiding elder said to him, "You have sufficient education to make a preacher, and we need to fill up our ranks with young men." The young man took the elder's advice, gave up his education, and joined the Conference. He, because of his large natural endowments, has had a measure of success. But what might he have accomplished with a more thorough preparation? We have reached the parting of the ways, and to keep in the way of large success, we must have presiding elders who know the worth of education, and young men who are not willing to go to war unequipped.

In addition to the above, we must have men filled with the Holy Ghost. Without this all the rest will be mere rubbish. Christ did not send the twelve out till they were filled with the Holy Ghost. Their three years in the school of Christ was not enough. Christ said, "Tarry ye in Jerusalem till ye be endued with power from above."

Put into the pulpit men with trained bodies, educated minds, regenerated hearts filled with the Holy Ghost, and Methodism will march on with singing and shouting to the speedy and complete conquest of the world to Christ.

Make our pulpits attractive by filling them with sanctified culture instead of sanctified ignorance (?), and the victory is ours. We have the doctrine and the polity; let us have men who are prepared to apply them.

L. S. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The thirty-first session of our Conference will convene in West Point, Dec. 6. Let us meet in the spirit of prayer and brotherly love, and use all means for spiritual refreshing and good fellowship.

Our convocation should continue at least six or seven days. This will give time for deliberate and safe transaction of business, two or three religious services each day, and reasonable social commingling with ourselves and the homes that entertain us.

Let us be done with the rush and hurly-burly that has usually characterized our proceedings, and let us act with becoming sober-mindedness, that "all things may be done decently and in order." Should a motion be made for an afternoon session before the sixth day, let it be promptly voted down. May this, our last meeting in the nineteenth century, go to record as one of the very best in all things for which a Methodist Conference stands!

Our joyous reunion will be mixed with sadness because of the fact that five of our beloved brethren will answer to roll-call no more with us on earth, viz.: Revs. F. A. Whitson, Joseph Johnson, C. C. Grisham, R. C. Calloway, and James W. Bates. These have finished their course, died in the faith, "answered to roll-call up yonder," and have entered the haven of eternal rest. May we that remain be faithful, follow on, and meet them in the "bright mansions above!"

During the thirty years of our Conference life there have been many and great changes in the personnel of the body, growth of the church, and development of the country. Of the 134 preachers who received appointments at the first session, including superannuates and supernumeraries, only 23 are now members of the body, the total of which is 155.

In 1870 there were 8 districts, 93 pastoral charges, 190 local preachers, 21,757 church members, 200 Sunday-schools, 9,148 Sunday-school teachers and pupils, $1,757.25 Conference collection paid, $1,486.05 missionary money raised. Now there are 9 districts, 143 pastoral charges, 122 local preachers, 45,032 members, 492 Sunday-schools, 25,208 Sunday-school teachers and pupils, $2,896.20 Conference collection paid, $9,504.58 paid for missions. There has been great improvement in number and quality of parsonages and churches.

Thirty years ago the facilities for public travel were far short of that we now have. Then there were but 4 lines of railroad within our territory; now there are 14, and others in contemplation.

In view of these facts, we have abundant reasons for closing this century with thanksgiving to God for his abounding grace and helping hand, and for entering upon the new with fresh courage and hopefulness.

I expect to have on hand at West Point and at the seat of the Mississippi Conference a large lot of choice books, both new and old. Let preachers and visitors come prepared to carry home with them a supply for Winter reading.

"A Short History of Methodism," by Rev. J. W. Boswell, D. D, is the latest book from our Publishing House. The book, both in matter and mechanical work, is creditable to both the writer and the publishers. It is a timely publication, designed to meet a long-felt want for a comprehensive, yet concise and cheap history of our great church for the masses. It should be read by every Methodist in the land, and be made a text-book in our church schools. Price, only 60 cents, postpaid. Be sure to get a copy at Conference, or send me your order directly.

It is very desirable that every preacher report his collections in full on the first day of the Conference session. Brethren, help me to so do, all ye whom this concerns.

CENTENARY COLLEGE NOTES.

President I. W. Cooper sends us the following encouraging items respecting Centenary. He says: "Our college is doing much better than any time since I became preside... Our faculty is united in purpose... build up the college in every w... Prof. Linfield, as head-master of ... training-school, is giving great satisfaction. He possesses eminent fitness for such work. Prof. Upton is making great success of the Phar... Hall. He has one of the most important places in the college, and is filling it well. Our college professors are competent, active Christian men—a blessing to any school. Prof. Carre, our 'newest' professor, just from Germany, has captured all things and everybody in these parts. He is one of the most delightful men I ever met. He has a great future before him. Profs. Northcutt and Carre will be given a cordial welcome by brethren of the Louisiana Conference. Truly, Centenary is a child of Providence."

CENTENARY, AND ELSE.

MR. EDITOR: I was surprised, pleased and elated by a recent visit to Centenary. I found everything, from Dr. Cooper's baby down, in a healthy and growing condition. No one need lose sleep over the conditions or prospects there, provided the eyes of our people can be opened to the importance of the work and the needs of the college.

Having spent some time in Prof. Linfield's class-room, I became deeply impressed with the very thorough preparatory work he is doing. In these days of sham and smattering in school-work, such notable exceptions deserve mention. The boy who expects to get through there without much study and thought will find a hard road to travel. If I had a million dollars—but, alas and alack!

My curiosity got the better of me some time since, and I ordered "one gospel." It reminds me of the old man on the witness stand, who, when asked if he was telling the whole truth, answered, 'Yas, and a leetle the rise." The one-gospel theory will not hold together, and this attempt at harmony, it seems to me, ends in a medley.

We have expended about $100 on the parsonage, repairing the roof, papering, and painting. The Epworth League raised most of this amount. We now have a neat and comfortable home. We serve a kind people.

"Thy neighbor?" It is he whom thou
Hast power to aid and bless;
Whom aching head or burning brow
Thy soothing hand may press.

"Thy neighbor?" 'Tis the fainting poor
Whose eye with want is dim;
Whose hunger sends from door to door—
Go thou and succor him!

Less favored than thine own,
Remember 'tis thy neighbor worm,

ANOTHER EDUCATIONAL POLICY FOR MISSISSIPPI METHODISTS.

In this ADVOCATE, of July 5, Bro. J. W. Dorman, presiding elder of the Greenville district, North Mississippi Conference, appears in a clear, strong article upon "An Educational Policy for Mississippi Methodists." Being intensely interested in educational matters, and especially those pertaining to Mississippi Methodists, I welcome Bro. Dorman's contribution to the discussion of the most burning question of our day as a church in this State. But, in welcoming him, I must frankly express my disagreement in the most vital part of his plan. His plan is seemingly a splendid one, and, no doubt, would succeed in a State that had attained to the social ideal, because it would be then a simple demonstration of the maxim, "In union there is strength." But, unfortunately, Mississippi is not nearly Utopian in her development yet, but is composed of ordinary mortals, and, I am afraid, illiterate and unrefined ones in some cases.

I am of the opinion that Bro. Dorman's plan of centralization is too theoretical for our present civilization, and to force it will tend to stress the perfecting of a system; whereas, the present necessity of the case is the forming of crude boys and girls into enlightened and refined citizens.

But it is not the centralization feature of his plan that I wish to oppose, for I could so far bend my judgment for the sake of harmony as to enter into that feature with him heartily, notwithstanding the fact that such centralization would tend to belittle the Methodist educational system of the State to a pigmy affair, with a college for its ultimate end, when a college should only stand midway between the training-school and the university; nor is it his plea for endowment that I do not endorse, for had he proposed a million dollars for endowment, I would have said, "Amen!" but what I am opposed to, unreservedly and unalterably, is co-education of the sexes below the university grade. When we have evolved to the point that it is said Bostonians have reached, where babes are born wearing spectacles, and remain as they are born, cold, passionless intellectualities, then it will be the proper thing to ignore sex distinction, and co-educate; but as matters now stand in Mississippi, we have flesh and blood to reckon with.

Begging the pardon of Mississippians, and especially Mississippi mothers, in advance, I feel it is pertinent to face some cold facts disagreeable in the extreme, yet truths that must be recognised before they can be corrected. They are these: Mississippi, like all Southern States, has a large class of girls—I will not undertake to say how large, for we all have our social standards—who have not had proper home training. Indeed, they are like their mothers before them, good, honest material, susceptible of a fine polish in a few generations of proper training and discipline, if only such training could be instituted; but they need special home training in Christian ethics, above all things; then, as a secondary matter, they need text-book lore for mental development and polish. But the former, and, as I insist, the most important, they can not get at home, simply because their mothers before them have not been so fortunate as to have been trained themselves. Then, again, hundreds of homes in our State are so narrowed by poverty as not to give the proper expanse and scope for the normal development of an aspiring young mind.

While these factors have their inevitable effects upon the boys, yet it is to a very limited extent when compared to the effects upon the girls of such homes. The boy may get out, and 'rub up against the world" in many ways that will broaden and refine him, if he so wills; but the girl, the most important factor in the home life, since she is to be the future mother, is left in her narrow home undisciplined, untrained, unrefined, to grow up to woman's estate unfit for the most important and sacred of all duties—that of teaching a little child.

No one can dispute the above facts, and since they are facts, the plain necessity of the case is not an educational policy that assumes that Mississippi girls are refined and cultured, and with their wills thoroughly in hand in all, or even most, cases, and need only the cold humanities and science to form their minds and supply them with facts for working data, but a policy that looks to the best training of such material as we actually have to deal with. Truly, we have our share of refined material, but such girls are, in Mississippi as in all States under the sun, the fortunate few, and it is the many that we are to prepare and plan for. If Mississippi's daughters had all learned wisdom and been disciplined into discretion before the school age, their co-education would not be so objectionable. But to place undisciplined boys and girls together in schools is to cause one of two things: a mutual interest in one another that is deadly to all training or progress, or to create a disgusting disregard for the presence of opposite sexes—"familiarity breeds contempt." He who has not observed both of these effects has had limited experience.

The policy, then, it seems to me, for Mississippi Methodists to follow is one that considers the material to be dealt with, and leave the more or less theoretical plan of a perfect system, graded and merging into one college, to a future generation, when culture and self-control have become the rule, and to build for the present exigencies of the case. A girl's college is, or can be, a Christian home, where a girl who has not had her share of cultivated surroundings under her parental roof can, for four long years of the most susceptible period of her life, breathe the free air of Christian refinement and enlightenment, and drink in unconsciously the best form of culture. If she should never look into a book during all of that period, still she would be a better woman than had she become learned without these ennobling influences. If she has been a child of fortune, then a model girls' college is a fit place for her to continue to develop the graces so fortunately planted in her home life.

While the ethical plus the æsthetic is of chief importance in human development, text-books come next during school-days, at least, and I would not have a girls' college one whit below a boys' college in curriculum in this day, when so many women are forced to be "bread-winners." But the sexes are different, and their work differs, and in common reason their education should vary. After the college grade comes the university, with its academic or its professional schools, and the girl, having been trained and disciplined and "formed," is now ready to take her chances along with young men, if she so elects, for lessons have been learned in the refined and refining seclusion of a girls' college that will cling to her through life; and go where she may, or be forced into what position you will, the bearing of a lady is stamped upon her to stay.

For this reason the policy I advocate is the immediate endowment of Grenada College, not as a preparatory school for Millsaps College, but as a woman's college, the equal and sister of Millsaps College. I am not antagonistic to Millsaps College—to the contrary; nor am I indifferent to male education, but at present our girls are so poorly provided for that it behooves us all to unite and lift up that corner of the work heretofore so fearfully neglected.

FRANK DANTZLER'S BARBECUE.

For a time, farther back than this scribe's knowledge runneth, New Bethel has claimed the fourth quarterly meeting on Brooksville circuit. It was a union church. Cumberland Presbyterians, Baptists and Methodists worshiped together as one happy family. Situated in the midst of a beautiful grove of post-oaks and scaly-bark trees, ten or twelve miles east of Brooksville, are the prairies of East Mississippi. These fertile lands are now nearly all in cultivation by an intelligent and hospitable people. They live, scattered over a wide area, from one, two, or six miles from the church; but distance is taken little account of in the Summer and Fall, when the black, sticky mud of Winter has become dry, and the roads are beaten smooth and hard as pavement. Buggies, single and double, or surries drawn by quick-footed mules or lively horses, speed rapidly over the long, gently-rising swells of the rolling prairie. The preacher catches the spirit of fast driving, and as you sit beside him behind his plucky team, you are reminded of the driving of the son of Nimshi. At least, it was so at the time of which I write, when D. L. Cogdell, the model and successful pastor, was in charge. For four years he labored here. The work grew in spirituality; one old church was torn down, and in its stead was built a handsome new one, and at each Annual Conference he reported all financial claims "up in full."

On a Friday evening before one of New Bethel's fourth quarterly meetings the presiding elder and his wife were domiciled at the hospitable home of Leo Cole, a successful prairie planter, six miles from the church. Every attention was given by the kind family looking to the entertainment and comfort of their guests. Next morning a roomy hack, drawn by two large mules, with sable driver, was at our service. Two or three of the little girls were company for us, while other members of the family followed in another vehicle. It was an ideal day. Our drive over the smooth-beaten road, through forest, grove, and along beside the wide, sweeping plantations, was most delightful. The cotton pickers were busy gathering the white, fleecy staple for the markets of the world, while the corn, russet and ripe, stood yet in the fields, waiting its turn to be harvested. Hedge-rows and forest trees, touched by the early frosts, were clad in green and purple and gold, and, over all, the sunlight fell in the softened tones of Indian Summer. The congregation had already begun to gather when we arrived at the church. Cogdell, always on time, met us with his bland smile and cordial greeting. Hidden behind the school-house, from public view, Frank Dantzler was superintending the basting and turning processes of the barbecue. All through the night before, with his dusky servitors, he has kept vigils over the glowing pits, watching with the eye and taste of an expert the contributions of the pig-pen and sheepfold, from three to five whole "carcasses," already browning to a turn. The congregation that greeted the preacher was an agreeable surprise—large for Saturday in this prairie country; a church-going and appreciative people, albeit they dwell amid the broad acres of these rich, black lands. After service came the "dinner on the ground." Snowy cloths, laid upon an improvised table, receive the bountiful spread. It was a feast that might gladden the palate of an epicure—roast meats, boiled ham and chicken, gold cakes and silver cakes, and cakes; pickles and pies, and things too numerous to mention—all gotten up in the faultless style of the excellent ladies of the neighborhood. And crowning the whole were generous pieces, ribs and joints—a most savory contribution from Frank Dantzler's barbecue.

The dinner on the ground is a feature of the quarterly meeting in the country throughout our bounds. It is an occasion of social joy; a picnic environed by religious influences. The presiding elder "lives on the fat of the land," and should grow in avoirdupois; yet some that I wot of, like Pharaoh's lean kine, will persist in their leanness.

The Quarterly Conference in the country is better attended and more lively than in the towns. Many others, besides the official members, are present—men, women, and children. The eighth question, always interesting, is specially so at the fourth quarterly meeting. Brooksville circuit, at such time, usually makes a good showing. "Pay the elder the balance due him;" "My salary, though not quite up, will all be paid." Such was Cogdell's way. And such was his confidence in regard to the missionary and other collections—"All will be paid in full." And his report at the Annual Conference soon afterwards proved his forecast true.

Bro. Dantzler, the peerless "chef" of the barbecue, is also a good steward, and always "get's there" on the home-stretch.

A Woman's Home Mission Society was organized at this quarterly meeting, with twenty names, by Sister Cogdell, the district secretary, aided by Mrs. T. C. Wier and that elect lady, Sister Mary Carr, mother-in-law of Bro. Leo Cole, since gone to her heavenly home.

Judging from the size of the congregation on Saturday, there should be an overflow on Sunday. There was occasion, however, for the query: Whether dinner on the ground, crowned by Frank's barbecue, or the Sunday sermon, was the stronger drawing card. Nevertheless, "the beloved" tried to deliver a faithful message. Then came the ever-impressive communion service, followed by a few last words and brief notices from the pastor. The people linger after the benediction, as if loth to leave the hallowed place, shaking hands with their preachers, or exchanging friendly greetings and farewells as they pass slowly down the aisles and separate, not to meet again on a like occasion till twelve months have passed away. The quarterly meeting still holds its place, one of indispensable importance, in our Methodism. Happy the people and happy the pastor who serves the people of Brooksville circuit.

LETTER FROM ARIZONA.

I have been asked more than once by the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference to "write occasionally to the ADVOCATE," that they might know how I am, where I am, and what I do. I have great reason to thank God "for all his benefits toward me." "Goodness and mercy" have followed me in all my journeyings.

This is the second year of my present relation (supernumerary) to the Conference. In the Summer of '99 Dr. O. J. Short, an eminent specialist of Hot Springs, Ark., treated me for ten weeks for ear and throat trouble, and advised me to seek a dry climate. I can heartily recommend Dr. Short to all who have need of his services. Being much improved in health, I returned to Mississippi, where were my relatives and interests. After the Winter had passed, I ordered some sample Bibles, a thousand copies of "The Sermon on the Mount," and some religious tracts, and started out canvassing. Sold about one hundred and fifty Bibles, gave tracts, preached a few times and taught some Sunday-school classes. About midsummer found myself so completely saturated with malaria that I had to suspend work for a time. Went to the top of the Ozark Mountains in Northwest Arkansas, and suffered with malarial fevers at short intervals for nine weeks, but was kindly and effectually treated by Dr. C. H. Cargile, of Bentonville. I then decided fully to seek a dry, warm climate. I have found it in Arizona. It has been too dry for successful farming for some years, but is raising beautifully to-day. Notwithstanding the drouth, some orchards, farms, and gardens have, under irrigation, been kept alive, and there are in the market places of Phœnix native oranges, lemons, pears, almonds, English walnuts, and vegetables of different kinds. Until a few days ago there were cantaloupes, and there are a few watermelons yet.

The country here is quite different from Mississippi, and the people are different in some respects. But the blessed gospel of our Lord is the same here, and the same sweet songs are heard in the Church, South, as are sung there. It is really comforting to a stranger among strangers to go into a place where the worship is all familiar. Our church in this Capital City numbers about two hundred and fifty. The Sunday-school and Epworth League seem to be doing right well; the prayer meeting about like some of those further East. The good women have meetings, but I have not yet had the pleasure of attending them.

Yours in the love of Jesus Christ,

B. S. RAYNER.

Religion may be learned on Sunday, but it is lived in the week-day's work. The torch of religion may be lit in the church, but it does its burning in the shop and on the street.—John Doughty.

In every movement for the benefit of others, in every phase of work to build up the kingdom of our Lord, a knowledge of the successes of our fellow-laborers is a mighty incentive to greater diligence on our part. So, in order to accomplish the greatest amount of good in any specified department, those who have advanced along certain lines, who have achieved success by given measures, should give all concerned the benefit of what has been so valuable in their own case. At least, these tidings of success should sound throughout our borders, that all shall take courage and resolve to begin the battle anew. Thus shall be fulfilled that Scripture, "And let us consider one another, to provoke unto love and good works," recorded in Heb. x, 24. In our foreign missionary work there seems a failing—shall I say of interest? At any rate, our record of labors does not measure up to the standard of a year or so ago. Some auxiliaries have grown weaker and weaker till they seem scarcely to work at all. Some make regular reports, yet lack that vivacity, that enthusiasm which once characterized their efforts.

Now, sisters, as an antidote to flagging zeal, to provoke, to stir, to encourage to try again, I give you two communications from busy workers, praying that some slumbering auxiliaries may be awakened to new activity by the reading.

The first is from the home of our Conference corresponding secretary, written by Mrs. O. R. Early from the Columbus auxiliary: "We would like for the readers of our column to know how our work progresses. We have seventy-one members. Our meetings are held regularly, and are instructive and spiritually beneficial to those who attend. We are brought into closer Christian fellowship with one another, and closer communion with our Heavenly Father. Besides strictly missionary matters, we discuss other things that pertain to Christian living and the cause of the great Master. From these meetings we derive both social pleasure and spiritual profit and advancement. Our auxiliary sent off last year $137 80, and since March of this year, $38.70."

Those regular gatherings of God's hand-maidens, conducted with the above-mentioned object in view, must result in building up the kingdom of Christ within as well as without. Organized effort steadily pursued is undoubtedly a greater promoter of success than spasmodic seasons of work, however earnestly applied.

The next communication is from Mrs. E. T. Buckley, a most energetic worker in both W. H. M. S. and W. F. M. S. in that wide-awake little city, Carrollton, Miss. Sister Buckley writes: "We have paid our pledge made at Durant (annual meeting), $25. Of the $125 pledged to Twentieth Century Fund, about half has been paid; the remainder will be paid soon. The five shares in Haygood Memorial School—subscribed by Mrs. Ella Bingham—goes through our auxiliary, and we will add enough to make her a life member. We have fourteen members and seventeen subscribers to Woman's Missionary Advocate. It is a little unusual for subscriptions to run ahead of number of members. The credit for that state of affairs is due entirely to our earnest agent, Mrs. Bryan. [One of earth's unknown heroes—Ed.] In love with the Advocate herself, she sees that we all have it, even if some copies must be paid for with money earned by her own hands. We have one member who lives several miles in the country. For a number of years she has sent her dues, contingent money and Advocate subscription to us at the beginning of the year. Though she can not attend a single meeting, her interest does not abate. What a rebuke to those who say, 'I would do something if I could!'"

Sisters, it is in my heart to give you a word of exhortation on the above facts; but, perhaps, it is better to let them make their own impression. God grant that these clear notes of success, after earnest work and fervent prayer, may provoke many slumbering ones to "love and good works."

FROM NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

We report four new societies. The first three, in Columbus district, have been organized some time, but were not doing active work. Soule Chapel, 9 members; Shuqualak, 8 members; New Bethel, 10 members—Columbus district. McClond's Chapel, 7 members, in Greenville district. We are always glad to record new societies.

Our General Secretary, Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, sends out the following: "The Missionary Board of our church is calling for a Missionary Conference of our Southern Methodist Church, to be held at New Orleans early in the Spring of 1901, and to be patterned essentially after the world-wide Ecumenical, held in New York City, last Spring.

"The Conference will be composed of 1,091 delegates. Of these 548 will be preachers, 268 laymen, and 175 ladies. Of this latter number the W. F. M. Society will have 100, and the W. H. M. Society 75, over and above the Conference Corresponding Secretaries and the General Officers of the Board. The topics selected for discussion are among the most practical and important problems confronting our church to-day, and the speakers will be men and women of special prominence in their respective departments of labor. Of the 75 delegates allowed our W. H. M. Society each Conference will be represented by her Conference corresponding secretary, or substitute, and the other delegates elected at the annual meeting of the Conference Society, in case the meeting is held soon. If not, the delegate should be elected by the Executive Committee of the Conference Society. As the Missionary Conference is to be held April 24 to 30, the election should be held soon, that ample time may be given to arrange for a full representation. Reduced railroad rates will be secured and opportunities for boarding at cheap rates. The expenses of delegates may be met personally or by the Conference society, if they so wish, out of its Conference half of dues. It is hoped that no Conference will fail to be represented at this important and notable gathering, that the valuable information and the inspiration of the meeting may produce its salutary influence throughout the bounds of each Conference. I trust you will attend to this matter as speedily as you can."

Mrs. Hargrove has resigned her position as General Secretary on account of her health. This will be a stunning blow to the cause. But God's work never suffers. When he calls a workman to some other place, he generally has one prepared for the place thus made vacant. Yet we can not give up Mrs. Hargrove without deep regret. Her sweet, clear voice has so often brought cheer and encouragement that we shall sadly miss it. May the dear Father deal gently with her!

Mrs. Somerville expects now to be at our Conference in West Point on Friday, Dec. 7, and, if practicable, will hold a meeting in the interest of the W. H. M. Society. We expect our president, Mrs. Foote, to be with us, and any members of the society, or any ladies who are interested in church work, are cordially invited to co-operate with us on that occasion.

THINGS TO FORGET.

If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults. Forget the slander you have heard. Forget the temptations. Forget the fault-finding and give a little thought to the cause which provoked it. Forget the peculiarities of your friends, and only remember the good points which make you fond of them. Forget all personal quarrels or histories you have heard by accident, and which, if repeated, would seem a thousand times worse than they are. Blot out as far as possible all the disagreeables of life; they will come, but they will grow larger when you remember them, and the constant thought of the acts of meanness, or, worse still, malice, will only tend to make you more familiar with them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday; start out with a clean sheet for to-day, and write upon it for sweet memory's sake only those things which are lovely and lovable.—Exchange.

A GOOD WOMAN GONE.

On Tuesday, Nov. 13, at 7 o'clock P M., Sister Evans, wife of Bro. R. M. Evans, and faithful pastor of the Shannon circuit, passed from labor to reward in their parsonage home at Shannon. She had been a constant sufferer for more than two years with a stomach trouble, but her disease did not assume a serious form until about eight days before her death.

Sister Evans was connected with some of the oldest and most prominent Methodist families in the State, and in her life as the wife of a Methodist preacher she was ever loyal to the church of her fathers, and faithful and helpful to her husband in the responsible duties consequent upon his office.

When we entered that sad home our dear Bro. Evans extended his hand, and said, through bitter tears, "Oh, brother, I am crushed, but God is still good." His resignation was most beautiful.

Sister Evans leaves four children, two boys and two girls, all at that age when they need mother most.

The burial services were conducted by Bro. Woollard, P. E.; Revs. J. W. Anderson, H. C. Parrott and this scribe assisting. In the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends we laid her remains to rest in the Shannon cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

May the consolations of the Spirit dwell richly in those hearts, and the God of all grace support the sorrowing ones! S. B. Myers.

Tupelo, Miss., Nov. 19, 1900.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Preachers, Officials, and Other Members and Friends of the M. E. Church, South, in the Forest District—

Dear Brethren: Reports continue cheering. Collections for foreign missions, domestic missions and Conference claimants are already in advance of those for last year. These closing days of the Conference year afford fine opportunities for pressing the collections and bringing up full reports.

The increase on the collections in the Montrose and Raleigh circuits is peculiarly gratifying, while that on the Rose Hill circuit is not to be lightly esteemed.

Do not let the small assessment for expenses of delegates to the General Conference be overlooked. Leave no balance to be re-assessed next year.

Be sure that the assessment for the American Bible Society is paid in full. It is but a small return for the many favors granted us by that worthy institution at home and abroad.

Accessions and conversions continue to be reported, and not a few of the saints have been made pure in heart, and endued with power for service. There have been nearly 625 conversions and accessions to the church in our district this year. Our God is honoring the preaching of a full gospel in its simplicity and purity. Let our people express their gratitude by fully contributing to the support of the preachers who have broken to them the Bread of Life. Let the stewards be diligent and prompt.

God bless you all.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. Mellen, P. E.

Forest, Miss., Nov. 16, 1900.

TITHES.

"The tithe is the Lord's." "What is it?" It is giving one-tenth of your income to God.

"Is it one-tenth of my gross or net income?" The gross income. If you are renting, you pay the rent and tithe what is left. If you have a hireling, you pay his wages and tithe the rest. If you are running on borrowed money, you pay the interest and tithe your part. If you are getting wages, you tithe that.

"Can I afford this?" Can you afford to give a seventh of your time? One is as binding upon you and as necessary to your religious prosperity and the kingdom of Jesus Christ as the other. If God has so arranged the laws of nature that we can live longer and do more and make more in six days than we can in seven, certainly he can make nine-tenths do more for us than we can ten.

It is said that some years ago a number of families in the East started to the West. On the first Sabbath there was some discussion as to whether they should remain in camp or travel.

One man thought it would be better to rest, but the majority said, "It is too expensive and too much loss of time on a long trip like this;" so they pulled up and traveled. It was a trial to be left alone on a journey like that, and in those times, but he thought God's company would be worth more than these, and so he kept the Lord's day holy. On the following Friday he passed his tired Sabbath-breakers, and in a journey of forty-six days he gained seven, landing with family and teams all fresh and well. His friends came up seven days later, with poor and broken teams, and worn-out, sick families, and stories of much bad luck.

You say that is natural and reasonable, but you can find no such examples in reference to tithing. Ten thousand and more.

"I have been young and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken and his seed begging bread." (Psalms xxxvii, 25.)

"Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." (Prov. iii, 9, 10.)

In the first charge I served there lived a man then fifty years of age. He had a large family, and five years before he was supposed to be hopelessly in debt. He had given but little, claiming his "awful debts." He promised God if he would show him the way out, he would do anything. In reading he came upon this: "Bring ye all the tithes into the store-house, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground, neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord." (Mal. iii, 10, 11.) And like Jacob, he said, "Of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto thee." (Gen. xxviii, 22.) He began to tithe his income, and in less than three years he was free from debt, and for twenty years prospered and lived a joyous, useful Christian life. Another, the case of a boy, brought up in a drunkard's home, and among the poorest and most illiterate I have ever known. He married early in life, and went to live with a consecrated and prosperous local preacher, who was giving a tenth of his income to the Lord. Through his influence and example he was converted and joined the church. He felt he must give a tenth to the Lord. Some said, "Too much; you are too poor." He said, "It is the Lord's." In ten years he owned eighty acres of as good land and as good a house as there was in the community. Two years ago he was living and doing well for both worlds, having a wonderful influence among his people.

You say, "I can't afford it." You can not afford not to do it, my friend. It belongs to God. "And all the tithes of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's; it is holy unto the Lord." (Lev. xxvii, 30.) If you don't pay it, you are a robber. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." (Matt. iii, 8.)

You ask, "Did Jesus Christ say anything about the tithe law?" Yes. "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye pay tithe of mint and anis and cummin; have omitted the weightier of the law, judgment, mercy and faith: these ought ye to have done and not leave the other (tithes) undone." (Matt. xxiii, 23.)

My friend, will you try it just for once? Try it now. It will pay you—pay you in spiritual blessings, pay you in temporal prosperity, pay you in happiness, pay you in embraced opportunities for usefulness and doing good, pay you in a higher, deeper, broader, happier Christian experience. Oh, it pays in both worlds.

Dare you try it?

W. S. Lagrone.

THE GAMBLING HABIT.

What an illustration it is of the power of the gambling habit that the priests of one of the principal churches in St. Petersburg have been detected in pawning the communion service and the jeweled ornaments of the altar, the very pictures of Christ, in order to pay their gambling debts, says the Interior. The Czar has taken the matter seriously in hand, and visited upon his own aunt, the Grand Duchess Vladimir, severest penalties for her addiction to high play. She has been denied the use of the royal liveries, and her husband has found it convenient to resign as commander of the military district of the capital. Army and navy and clerical circles have been obliged to banish from their clubs baccarat and roulette. But the passion for gambling inheres tenaciously in court circles not under the immediate eye of the autocrat. A wealthy and an idle class has always taken to gambling, and always will. The only cure for such dissipation, is employment. The laziest mortal in America is the agency Indian, and he is also the most inveterate gambler. Many a rich man has proven himself the benefactor of his race; but the idle rich man is the peril and menace of this or any other age.—Central Advocate.

Where is a second book, uninspired by Scripture, that has demonstrated its inherent and unassisted energy to take hold of life and lead it out into the likeness of the life of God? Only he who knows man could have made man a book. Only he that made all hearts could produce a book that should go to the wants of all hearts. "I see," wrote Hallam, "that the Bible fits into every fold and crevice of the human heart. I am a man, and I believe that this is God's book, because it is man's book."—C. H. Parkhurst.

If thou ar of elephant-strength or of lion-claw, still peace is, in my opinion, better than strife.—Saadi.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1900.

NOTICE.

Dr. J. W. Boswell, assistant editor of Nashville Advocate, has been duly elected editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and accepts the position upon conditions which will be announced at the session of North Mississippi Conference.

S. S. KEENER,
Pres't Pub. Com.

Nov. 27, 1900.

Our Retirement and the New Editor.

Seven years ago the present editor accepted the position which he now occupies because he considered his election under the circumstances the call of duty. As the brethren are well aware, the ADVOCATE was, when we took charge of affairs, in an embarrassed financial condition. During our term of office every dollar of indebtedness has been paid, and, as the recent report of the Publishing Committee indicated, the ADVOCATE is now on a good financial basis, which result, however, is to be attributed largely to the fact that until this year we have done double duty, being forced to act both as publisher and sole editor.

At the close of the present year, because of our preference for the pastorate, our connection with the ADVOCATE will be severed, and Dr. J. W. Boswell, of the North Mississippi Conference, will take the helm, he having just signified his acceptance of the ADVOCATE editorship, to which he was elected at the recent meeting of the Publishing Committee.

Our successor has for a number of years served as assistant editor of our general organ at Nashville, which position he has filled ably and creditably. He is a man of ability and fine spirit, and is in every way qualified to fill honorably and successfully the new office to which he has been elected. We bespeak for him the favor and hearty support of all the ADVOCATE patrons, and wish him the highest measure of success.

HIGHER CRITICISM AGAIN.

The Nov. 14th issue of Zion's Herald, of the M. E. Church, contains a splendid symposium on "Higher Criticism," in connection with which an able and timely editorial on the subject is printed. We quote in this connection from the before-mentioned journal the following paragraph by Pres. W. F. Warren, of Boston University:

"Higher Criticism has rendered most important service to Christian thought and life. But for it the Pseudo-Isidorean decretals of the Papal Church would never have been shown to be the mendacious forgeries which even Roman Catholic theologians now admit them to have been. But for the higher critics our Bibles would still contain the story of 'Bel and the Dragon,' and the other apocryphal books that were in the Bible of Augustine, and Abelard, and Alfred the Great, and that are still found in every Roman Catholic Bible. In fact, every modern defender of the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch is as truly a higher critic as the man who tries to show that Moses wrote no part of it. Richard Watson was a higher critic so far forth as he endeavored to defend the pre-Solomonic antiquity of the Book of Job, and Prof. Sayce is a higher critic in trying to show the ex-post facto character of some of the supposed predictions of Daniel. Surely it is time that this term should be understood and employed with some discrimination."

OPPOSITION TO REVIVALS.

Strange as it may seem, among the people called Methodists some persons may be found here and there in our churches who look with disfavor upon revival meetings, especially those in which there is much religious excitement, and who, though they may be official members, can scarcely be induced to take any part therein. The extravagancies, the expressions of fervent emotion, and the enthusiasm which are the usual accompaniments of great religious awakenings, they neither understand nor sympathize with. They will not come out squarely and say that they are opposed to revivals, but their conduct and conversation give evidence of a disbelief in the expediency and importance of special meetings. With some, this unfavorable attitude toward evangelistic effort is due to over-fastidiousness and lack of the emotional element in their make-up. They seem, alas! to be more concerned about the proprieties than about the condition of the unsaved and the backslidden, and would not think of doing anything unusual, or of subjecting themselves to criticism for religion's sake. To others, revivals are distasteful, either on account of the fact that they have never been converted and made to realize the deep significance of "getting religion," or because they are living in the neglect of duty or in sin, and are afraid that the holding of a meeting will make it hot for them.

In that charming book, "The Training of the Twelve," Dr. Alexander Bruce has the following pertinent paragraph anent the matter we are discussing: "There are always men in the church," he remarks, "intelligent, wise, and even good, to whom popular religious movements are distasteful. The noise, the excitement, the delusions, the misdirection of zeal, the rudeness of the agents, the instability of the converts—all these things offend them. The same class of minds would have taken offense at the evangelistic work of the twelve and the seventy, for it was undoubtedly accompanied with the same drawbacks. The agents were ignorant; they had few ideas in their heads; they understood little of divine truth, for their sole qualification was that they were earnest, and so could preach repentance well. Doubtless, also, there was plenty of noise and excitement among the multitudes who heard them preach; and we certainly know that their zeal was both ill-informed and short-lived. These things are, in fact, standing features of all popular movements."

Since all men are not cast in the same mould, it is not to be expected that persons of an unemotional temperament and of refined sensibilities will view things in the same light as do those of the opposite temperament; nor is it charitable to criticise them too sharply because of their distaste for excitement and excesses in conduct and speech. Such persons, however, ought to bear in mind that every true revival is accompanied by more or less of excitement and of the extraordinary. A "still," thoroughly decorous meeting often, though not always, means a dead meeting. The church, in this age of fashion and boasted culture, is in far more danger of being frozen to death by formality and strict decorum than it is of being injured by meetings in which glad shouts and hallelujahs are heard, and where the congregation gets into a stir.

Says Dr. Jonathan Edwards with much force, in speaking of the great revival which took place in America in his day: "A great deal of noise and tumult, confusion and uproar, darkness mixed with light, and evil with good, is always to be expected in the beginning of something very glorious in the state of things in human society or the church of God."

Church members of the refined, fastidious type ought, then, to beware of opposing or being indifferent to revivals because of certain objectionable features sometimes connected therewith. In so doing they may be found fighting against God.

Ira D. Sankey tells the story that over across the water a stranger was once walking through one of the large church cathedrals there. A man was showing him the wonderful building, the beautiful windows and statuary and all that, and the stranger, in the kindness and simplicity of his heart, said: "Well, have you many conversions here?" The man turned upon him and said: "Conversions! Conversions! Why, my friend, what kind of a place do you think this is? Do you take this to be a Wesleyan chapel?" The idea of a conversion in that great church was so contrary to his notion of the fitness of things, that he thought it preposterous for a man to talk of conversions there.

Commenting on this, Mr. Sankey says: "My friends, if you fail at that, you fail at everything, because it is the building up the foundation of the church."

THE PASTORS' STATISTICAL REPORT PROBLEM.

Says the editor of the Wesleyan Advocate:

We notice that the Pacific Advocate suggests that each Annual Conference have a committee to examine the pastors' statistical reports before they are handed to the secretary. We think that "that or something better" ought to be adopted. The "something better" ought to be that the pastors make out their reports correctly; but as that seems impossible of attainment, it would be better to go through the committee ordeal than to have this eternal worry over erroneous statistics.

It does seem to us that Methodist preachers, than whom there is not a nobler, more self-sacrificing class of men in the world, ought to be able to make out thoroughly accurate statistical reports of their work, and yet every year complaint is made in many of our Conferences of a considerable discrepancy between the statistics of the secretaries and the totals reported by the treasurers of the various Conference Boards. The two sets of totals ought by all means to tally, and would do so if all the brethren were as careful as they should be in making out their reports. Every Methodist itinerant ought to resolve not to subject himself and his brethren any longer to the reproach of being inaccurate and careless in the matter of reporting statistics. Occasionally some thoughtless brother hands in an incomplete report, and has to be hunted up in order that full information may be obtained. The faithful secretaries would be saved a world of trouble if the brethren would only give proper attention to the filling out of report blanks. As the case now stands, an auditing committee seems to be highly expedient.

"SETTLED VS. ITINERANT MINISTRY."

A late number of Zion's Herald, of the M. E. Church, contains the following suggestive paragraph anent the operation of the new law providing for an unlimited pastoral term:

"As a result of the tabulation of the number of sixth-year appointments made in the 56 Fall Conferences, including over 8,000 ministers, it appears that in sixteen there were no sixth-year appointments; fourteen report one, seven report two, four report three, one reports four making a total of forty-four sixth-year appointments, or twelve less than an average of one in the fifty-six Conferences.

"We may safely say that, with the removal of the time-limit, the Methodist itinerancy affords the freest, most flexible, and most easily adjustable system of pastoral supply to be found in the world."

SUMMER INSTITUTE MOVEMENT.

At the recent session of the West Texas Conference a resolution was passed providing for the establishment of a "Summer Institute for Preachers," which will be held at the Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas, each year after commencement, and will continue about fifteen days. The plans include two grades of study—one for the undergraduates, and one for the more advanced students. Distinguished lecturers are also to be invited, and the occasion will be made profitable in many ways. This movement is in line with the plan already in successful operation in the Tennessee Conference, and because of its undoubted advantageousness, ought to spread to all of our Conferences.

PURITY IN NEW YORK.

A strong movement has risen to purge New York City of its open and notorious vice. Bishop Potter is standing behind the movement. The clergy who live in the districts where vice is rampant have invoked the aid of the police, and have been met with contempt. One of the preachers is stirring the city by reciting how he has seen young women carried by force into vile places. The movement has enlisted the support of the clergy, Catholic and Jewish, as well as Protestant. The modern city, like the ancient city, is the peril of civilization.—Central Christian Advocate.

A NEW BOOK.

THE TORA OF MOSES: Being a Critical Study of Deuteronomy; Its Separation into Two Copies of the Tora; a Refutation of Higher Criticism. By William Wallace Martin, formerly Professor of Hebrew, Vanderbilt University. 8 vo. 339 pages. Cloth. Price, $1.50. Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South, Nashville, Tenn., and Dallas, Texas.

This is a bold and able treatise anent the much-mooted subject of higher criticism, which the author deals with in a unique and scholarly manner. Dr. Martin antagonizes the conclusion of the higher critics as to the composite character and authorship of Deuteronomy, which, as a part of the Pentateuch, has long been the battle-ground of those engaged in the critical study of the Bible, and endeavors to show by reconstructive criticism that said book in its present form, "with all its inconsistencies, reduplications, contradictions, illogical arrangement, and every alleged inharmonious statement upon which higher criticism rests its assertion of repeated redactions," is the result of the amalgamation of two ancient copies of the Mosaic Tora. Unquestionably the author, who evidences thorough familiarity with the methods and literature of higher criticism, has made out a strong case in support of the theory he advances, and his book, by reason of its originality and masterfulness, is certain to command the attention of scholars as well as of students of the Bible generally. Dr. Martin meets the higher critics on their own ground, and, as some one has suggested, explodes a bomb in their camp. This volume not only throws much light upon the critical study of the Bible, but also gives such investigation an entirely new direction, the possibilities and advantages of reconstructive criticism being strongly and strikingly demonstrated. It is a timely, reassuring and valuable work, and forms an important contribution to Biblico-critical literature.

Says the author in the preface: "Deuteronomy is the stronghold of higher criticism. If its analysis of the book be correct, and if the date which it assigns be accepted as true, there remains nothing to be done except to believe. If, however, it be shown that the literary analysis is incorrect, the strong reasons upon which the date rests disappear, and higher criticism must revise its conclusions."

We wish to add that Dr. Martin ranks very high as a scholar and conservative theologian.

BY BISHOP E. R. HENDRIX, LL.D.

The Wesleyan Methodist Church has already secured $4,200,000 of the five-million-dollar Twentieth Century Fund which was to be raised. Nearly two million dollars have already been paid in, and the cash receipts amount to some thirty thousand dollars every week. In July last they still lacked $1,333,435 of reaching the $5,000 000, but nearly $250,000 was subscribed in one day during the session of the British Conference, and as much more has been added since, despite the distraction due to a Parliamentary election. The wise organization, the persistent effort, the quiet enthusiasm, the beautiful consecration which mark our Methodist brethren across the sea, leave no doubt that complete success will crown their noble and inspiring effort to lay this notable offering on the altar of their Lord. The great conventions being held now in the North of England will be followed by like gatherings in the South and West until the glorious consummation is reached. There is the consoloneese of success everywhere, and none doubt the ultimate result, despite the heroic efforts still needed between now and Jan. 1, 1901. It is a fitting close of the century which has already witnessed two other great offerings among the English Methodists—the Centenary Fund of 1839, and the Thanksgiving Fund of 1878. Our Wesleyan brethren are in the habit of bringing things to pass, but nothing greater than this Twentieth Century Thank-offering has challenged the faith and effort of the Christian church. It is such faith and zeal that make the Methodists the leading Nonconformist Church in Great Britain, and command for it the respect and admiration of Christendom.—Nashville Advocate, Nov. 22.

All the work of a Conference should be regarded as religious work, and attended to with the spirit of devout service, but most of the preachers need to hear as much preaching at Conference as possible, and it ought to be such preaching as will increase their humility and consecration.—Arkansas Methodist.

Several religious journals, among them being two or three papers belonging to the M. E. Church, are now making the rather questionable experiment of publishing once a month a magazine number. Since the leading magazines are conducted by men thoroughly trained and equipped for that kind of work, and since they are backed by almost unlimited capital, it is quite improbable that any religious newspaper will be able to compete successfully with the magazines, which cover a field peculiarly their own. The religious journal has an important mission to fulfill, but it lies in a different direction.

My Conference collections are largely in excess of last year, and the grand total at present is at least $300 beyond the last year's report. We have done fairly well on the Twentieth Century matter, and while having one less Sunday-school to report, the other items in that report will show very large advances."

Instead she entered the training-school for nurses at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York. She graduated as a trained nurse in 1897. THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE: A STATEMENT.

DEAR BRETHREN OF THE CONFERENCE: To answer numerous inquiries and quiet any misgivings that may arise, I give this statement of the supposed yellow fever situation here. For some months we have had throughout this part of the State, in country, in village, and in town, a light form of a sort of "break-bone" fever, which some call "dengue." Many do not go to bed for it—some few have had painful attacks of it—and in a very few cases where there was some chronic disease of the kidneys, uremic poison set in, resulting in death. A prominent physician, president of the Brookhaven Board of Health, assures me that not a single death has occurred, except where such complications existed. These uremic-poison cases resemble yellow fever very much, and one case was so declared. Since the frost the fever has abated very much, only one new case appearing in the last ten days. Nevertheless, a very few nervous persons have sent out some disquieting suggestions about changing the place of holding our Conference. I see no reason whatever for any such step. Indeed, the suggestion is to my mind a manifest absurdity. Schools, stores, business of all sorts, run on unhindered; no one, save a very few nervous ones, seems to think of danger. The following communication was put into my hands this evening:

At a meeting of the Board of Health of the town of Brookhaven, held at the Mayor's office this Nov. 22nd, 1900, all the practicing physicians were present or represented, and the following statement was directed to be made:

We regard the town in so healthy a condition that there can be no sort of danger of infection of any kind to anyone attending the prospective session of the Mississippi Conference of the M. E. Church, South, to be held here in December. All sanitary precautions are being taken; houses suspected of infection are being thoroughly fumigated, and the town is being put into a thorooghly cleanly and sanitary condition.

The Board protests emphatically against any movement looking to a removal of the said Conference session from Brookhaven.

This action of the Board was unanimous.

I. L. PARSONS, M. D.,
Pres. Board of Health.
C. E. GRAFTON, Sec'y.

Dr. Watkins, Bro. Burton, Drs. J. W. Bennett and J. W. Martin, and Hon. A. C. McNair, with many others too numerous to mention, share with us in my judgment that there is no sort of reason in agitating the idea of removing the Conference.

If any real danger should arise, no one will be readier to give warning than Your brother,

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss.
EDITOR.

While we are young people, let us not forget that the "old-time religion" is the best.

We theorize about the lack of spiritual power in the church, and we draw conclusions, many, regarding why more people are not added to the church. The Lord says, by the mouth of his prophet: "Your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear." If God's people will walk uprightly with pure hearts, wars may rage; evangelists may sing their songs, preach their professional sermons, gather up the shekels, and pass on; infidels may rant, and commerce may do its worst: but God will honor the faith and labors of his people, and save men to-day as he did fifty years ago.

We give space below for a communication from our State treasurer. Let every Leaguer read carefully and respond at once. Sister Wyatt will appreciate a prompt response from all our Leaguer. Don't put it off—you may forget, and besides inconvenience our treasurer, who is not getting a copper for her time and labor.

To the Treasurers of the Epworth Leagues of Mississippi—

DEAR FELLOW LEAGUERS: Your State treasurer desires to introduce herself to you and inform you of her existence and address through our regular League column in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE.

She also wishes to say to you that the State treasury is in a state of depletion, which can only be remedied by your prompt collection and remittance of the five-cent per capita tax. This is a duty which she urges you to attend to at your next League meeting. She feels sure that no one of you will be willing to cripple the cause of our State League work by neglecting longer to collect and forward to her your per capita tax. This is a very small and insignificant sum per member, but, in the aggregate, is quite significant, as it means the financial life and force of our State organization. Even so good and grand an enterprise as the Epworth League can not succeed without the powerful aid of the indispensable and mighty dollar.

The Leagues of Mississippi have assumed no specials for this year, and all sums thus collected will be expended in promoting and extending League interests within the limits of our own State. Will you not contribute your share to this worthy cause at once?

Your State treasurer is writing personal letters to the local League treasurers as rapidly as her well-filled time and numerous duties will permit. She hopes soon to begin a regular announcement in our League column of a prompt and rapidly increasing honor roll of the Leagues responding to this call, by a payment of the per capita tax. Place your chapter high on that list.

Yours in the work, and "All for Christ," MRS. J. M. WYATT,
State Treasurer.

The 20th Century Movement.

BY HENRY G HAWKINS,
Conference Secretary of Education.

The total amounts from beginning of movement up to date, as reported to the Conference Secretary of Education, are as follows:

Formerly reported		$8,090 73
Montrose	Increase	6 00
Shubuta	Increase	70 75
		$8,167 48

If it be that the blank form has been lost or not received at all from presiding elder, then write on postal the total amount enrolled up to date, how much has been paid, and how much has been specially directed and to what institutions.

I have reported to Dr. Hammond, at Nashville, for November, that 65 pastors have officially reported to me $8 167 48; that 12 other charges which have not reported to me are known to have enrolled at least $3,935.50, making the total $12,-102 98.

Pastors are to have their roll-books of this movement at the Annual Conference. They will be called for at the opening of the Conference, and the Board of Education will give the books more careful attention than was done last year.

We note with pleasure the increase from Shubuta and Quitman. This makes $279, and the pastor writes that there will probably be more still, and the most, or all of it, in cash before Conference.

Rev. H. M. Ellis is "Secretary of our Conference Board of Education." He being absent a portion of the time during the sitting at Vicksburg, Rev. W. H. Huntley acted as secretary. This is a different position from that of 'Conference Secretary of Education." Failure to recognize the difference has caused some reports to be sent astray.

Satartia, Miss.

We are fast closing out our fourth year on the Satartia circuit. We loath to part with the many dear friends of this charge. We have been here so long until it feels like home to us. "There is no place like home." Our stay here, in many respects, has been very satisfactory. The people have shown their appreciation often, and in more ways than one. They have been indeed good to us; perhaps too good. The work is in very good condition. This year's report will compare very well with any year previous. The church-houses are in good condition; the parsonage needs some repairs.

With a sad heart we say good-bye to our many friends of old Satartia circuit, praying God's best blessings to ever rest upon it and all the people.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thorough y up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

THE HYGIENE OF OLD AGE.

We look upon the aged, with good reason, as having a slender hold upon life; one that may be loosened by a slight shock of injury or disease which, in the young or middle-aged, would serve only as a stimulus to the reparative vital powers.

This is a conservative belief, for it warns us to shield our loved ones, who have fought the fight, from all influences which might shorten their stay with us. But we must not go too far in our solicitude, for injury may be inflicted and life shortened by coddling the old, almost as surely as by coddling the young.

The vital processes in the aged are slow, but they are still existent, and they may be kept active by gentle opposition and stimulation, just as they may be increased in childhood and youth by rougher methods.

Reaction is feeble, it is true—and well that it is, for the weakened arteries would with difficulty support the rapid blood-stream and the bounding pulse that follow the cold plunge or the spin on the wheel of the twenty-year-old. But reaction is there, and it must be exercised up to the limit of safety.

One of the dangerous places for the old man is the chimney-corner; its warmth and its restful quiet tempt him to inactivity, and we let him rust away there because we know no better. But we ought to know better. Fresh air and exercise—in moderation, of course—are as essential to the man or woman of eighty or ninety as to the child of eight or nine.

Cool sponging once a day is also a valuable means of maintaining the tone of the body and of overcoming the impulse to sit still and muse.

The old body needs to be warmly clad, for it is sensitive to cold and is unable to manufacture its own heat in the same measure as the younger and more vigorous organism. But with proper clothing, warm but light, there are few days, even in Winter, when the old man or woman ought not to walk a mile in the open air and sit for two hours, at least, well wrapped up, in the sun by an open window, or preferably in a sheltered nook out-of-doors.

This is a rule we should persuade our old folks to adopt. If they will follow it, their days will be brightened, and will not be shortened.—Youth's Companion.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN HOME?

When I was leaving for Australia, every day for weeks before I sailed, there came to me letters from all parts of the country, entreating me to inquire for sons and daughters who had gone away, and of whom nothing had been heard for months, sometimes for years. What pictures I saw in those letters! The little cottage, where grow the roses about the porch; and every day as the postman passes there comes the mother to the door; the roses have faded from her cheek, and the light has gone from her eyes. She hears the words so often spoken, "Nothing for you to-day, ma'am." I see her creeping back to her kitchen, and setting her arm against the old blackened mantlepiece, she rests her head. The firelight glistens in the tears, and her heart swells with pain. Lads and maidens, vow to God that you will never hurt the mother so. "Say that wherever you go," said one to me one day. "I remember how I used to be out at the plow with my father, and many a time I have seen him walk along the furrow quite quiet, with his lip bitten, and the tear has crept down his cheek. I knew that he was thinking of his boy who had gone away and he had not heard from him for many a month." The half of true religion lies in this sacred and tender love to father and mother.—Mark Guy Pearse.

NO CHANCE!

No chance in this land of opportunity, where the very atmosphere is a perpetual tonic, in a country whose untold resources are a constant spur to endeavor!

No chance in a land where deaf, dumb and blind Helen Keller goes to college, where cripples and invalids succeed!

Why, the whole history of our country is the history of the boy and the girl with no chance.

Power and fortune are lying all about you, awaiting the eye that can see, the ear that can hear, the hand that can achieve.

No chance! Why, you can not keep an American youth with grit and determination from success. Once give him the alphabet, and there is no placing a limit to his career.—Success.

WATCHING FOR FAULTS.

"When I was a boy," said an old man, "I was often very idle, and used to play during the lessons with other boys as idle as myself. One day we were fairly caught by the master. 'Boys,' he said, 'you must not be idle; you must attend closely to your books. The first one of you who sees another boy idle will please come and tell me.'

"'Ah,' I thought to myself, 'there is Joe Simmons, that I don't like; I'll watch him, and if I see him look off his book, I'll tell the teacher.'

"It was not long until I saw Joe look off his book, and I went up at once to tell the master.

"'Indeed,' said he, 'how did you know he was idle?'

"'I saw him,' said I.

"'You did? And were your own eyes on your book when you saw him?'

"I was caught, and the other boys laughed, and I never watched for idle boys again."

If we watch over our conduct and try to keep it right, and always do our own duty, we will not have time to watch for faults or idleness in others. This will keep us out of mischief, and make us helpful to others.—Our Young Folks.

Says Rev. Dr. John Henry Barrows, president of Oberlin College, in the Pittsburg Christian Advocate: "The diabolical business of making drunkards of children is the pastime of the American liquor dealer, except where the sword of the law is lifted above his head by the strong arm of the law and order societies. . . . What is it that breaks down our Sabbaths and our Sunday laws, and gives over our great cities to the domination of the depraved and criminal classes? The liquor interest. What is it that leads so many thousands of our young men, who ought to be pillars in the church, into lives of dissipation? The evil passions of their hearts, supplemented by the thousands of miles of open saloons in our cities, and aided by the example of good people who assert their rights and liberties at the expense of others. What is it that hurts the spiritual life of so many? In part, the drink habit. What is it that weakens the force of the church in its testimony against the chief enemy of Christ in the world? The fact that we are not wholly free from alliance with that enemy. What is it that is beating the Decalogue into fragments? The drink habit allies itself with every vice; it dethrones God from the heart; it dishonors father and mother; it desecrates the weekly rest day; it is the ally of licentiousness; it is a great support to that covetousness which is idolatry."

The Grocer says that while the people of the United States spent $973,589,080 last year for alcoholic liquor, they spent for coffee, $134,695,154; tea, $33,613,588; cocoa, $5,000,000. That is, Americans squandered over five times as much money in grog as they spent for coffee, tea and cocoa.

PROHIBITION IN KANSAS.

When I went to Kansas I felt tisfied that there was no better ay of handling the liquor traffic an by the high-license system, ut I am now quite as well satisfied that I was mistaken. I have anged my opinion of the prohibition law since I have seen its orkings, and I regard it as very esirable. It is especially so from y own spiritual standpoint. For stance, Topeka is a city of 50,000 habitants; so it is quite a town. ou can walk the whole length of ansas avenue, the principal treet of the city, and not see a ingle saloon on either side. What is the effect of all this? he young men are not tempted go into the gilded hells where eet music and every allurement e held open for them. There e no temptations for the young, d there is nothing to lead the an, who does not drink habitually, to take a drink, just for the ke of being sociable.

I find it easier to do missionary ork in Topeka than I found it in inneapolis or in Omaha (both nder $1,000 license for saloons). he young men you approach are ore inclined to listen and give e respectful hearing. There e more men in the church, both members and as mere attendnts, in proportion to the populaion. This means something, and t is to be credited largely to the mperance legislation.—Bishop illspaugh.

SAVED BY A CAT.

Sir Edward Osborne, Lord Mayor of London in his time, ought an ancient house in Yorkshire, and sent his wife and children thither. There were two boys among them. The Pall Mall Gazette tells of a tragedy which occurred at the house soon after.

One of the boys, the elder, dutifully obeyed when summoned to his lessons one morning in a turret, but the younger, loitering, "happened to light upon a cat which he delighted to play with, and crept after her to catch her under a table in the room which was covered over with a carpet hanging down to the floor."

Thus he disappeared, and the next instant a terrible rush of wind overthrew the turret, in which his brother and the tutor sat at work, crushing them to death.

Supposing that both her sons were there, the mother fell into convulsions. One of the maids running in a distracted manner from room to room, caught sight of the small boy peeping from under the table, with the cat in his arms, snatched him up and bore him in ecstasy to his mother, he only crying:

"I pray thee, I pray thee, do not whip me!"

There is nothing more hardening to the sensibilities than the failure to translate pity into action. Christ's pity was practical. We are told that he had compassion on the hungry multitude, and the immediate result of it was how many loaves had he? This is finely illustrative of the way in which Christ's whole nature moved at once and in unison.—Rev. George D. Baker, D. D.

"You will not be sorry for thinking before speaking, for holding an angry tongue, for stopping the ear to a tale bearer, for disbelieving most of the ill reports, for being kind to the distressed, for being kind toward everybody, for doing good to all men, for asking pardon for all wrongs, for speaking evil of no one, for being courteous to all."—Our Little People.

The young girl who takes late buggy rides with young men may be an innocent creature, but she needs a wise mother.—Texas Advocate.

Port Gibson Female College,

Port Gibson, Miss.

Port Gibson Female College is one of the oldest female colleges in the Mississippi Conference. For more than fifty years she has been contributing to the training and development of Christian womanhood in this and other States.

Her course of study is academic rather than collegiate, which should commend the school to parents who have young girls to educate. The P. G. F. C. offers superior advantages for less money than any other school of like grade in the State. Methodist Parents who want to educate their daughters can do so as cheaply here as it is being done by the State at Columbus, i. e., if they give their girls the ornate branches.

We give board, including fuel, light, washing, tuition and music, or any one extra, for $160; without an extra, $130. Girls wishing to prepare themselves to teach can enter the middle of January and continue through the session for $75, with music or any other ornate branch; without an ornate branch, $65.

LAGRONE—Mrs. SUSAN LAGRONE (nee Calloway) was born in Lincoln county, Tenn., the nineteenth day of May, 1820. In early childhood she, with her father's family, moved to Alabama, and there lived until she was fifteen years old, whence she moved to Noxubee county, Miss., where she resided, with the exception of a few years in Arkansas, until her demise—Oct. 1, 1900.

She was happily married to Mr. Wm. C. Lagrone in 1838. This union resulted in the birth of nine children, six of whom survive her. She was the sister of two Methodist preachers; one was Rev. C. C. Calloway, who served for several years as presiding elder in the West Alabama Conference. She herself professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. Church, South, the same year of her marriage—sixty-two years ago. During this long period of service for her Master she grew in grace and increased in faith. She was always regular in attendance at Sunday-school and all church services when her health would permit.

A tender mother, a loving companion, an affectionate and faithful friend has gone to her rich reward. She had not one enemy in all the world. Her last words were praise to God, and a prayer for herself and friends. Her remains were laid to rest in the Mohecan Cemetery, in thirty yards of where she professed religion. May the All-wise deal gently with the bereaved in their sore affliction!

—Macon Beacon.

DICKSON—On Monday, May 7, 1900 Major DAVID E. DICKSON sweetly passed from his earthly to his heavenly home. For many years he had lived two miles west of old Walnut Hill Church, in Lafayette county, Ark. There he raised a godly family, there he adorned a Christian home, and from there he went to that happy land of which I heard him sing so much in my early childhood days.

For more than thirty years I can remember his faithful work in the old Walnut Hill Sunday-school. Since that time his place has never been vacant. For more than twenty-five years he was teacher of the Bible class. The church, Sunday-school and the youth of his community were ever before him, and no sacrifice was too great for him to make for them. He carried sunshine in his soul, and smiles upon his face, and love in his heart. His home was his pastor's home. The six Evans boys and the two Few boys who have gone out from Father and Mother Dickson's classes in the Sunday-school will perpetuate the fruits of the village Sunday-school and their faithfulness. His faith was Abraham-like, and his courage was that of an apostle. His end came at a ripe old age. He has gone in peace.

Dear Mother Dickson, the separation will not be long. You and Father Dickson have contributed much to the church, but more to the God-built city above.

In loving sympathy, I am your son in the gospel. W. F. EVANS.

SULLIVAN—MARY RILEY, infant daughter of Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Lilie Moore Sullivan, was born Sept. 6 1899 and died at the home of her grandfather, Mr. J. N. Moore, in Booneville, Miss., June 19, 1900, being nine months and twelve days old.

Mary Riley was in this world long enough to thoroughly impress upon her parents' minds and hearts the meaning of the Savior's language, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven." She was here a short time, and suddenly left for heaven. On Sunday before she died she was baptized before a large congregation in the Methodist Church at Booneville. It was an impressive scene. Frail as a dying flower, yet sweet as an angel, she received the holy ordinance that brought her into the visible kingdom. Within a short distance of the home of her grandparents she was laid to rest. Many times has the little grave been covered with flowers, and we are assured the sacred dust will be guarded until the gathering of the faithful. J. M. HEADLEY.

J. O. McMullen was born near Savannah, Ga., July 19, 1829. At seven years of age he removed with his father's family to Chickasaw county, Miss., they being among the pioneer settlers of that section of the State. Here he grew to manhood. His father dying in his youth, he was left to the management of the business affairs of his mother. These he faithfully attended, being ever a dutiful son. In May, 1861, he enlisted in the "Chickasaw Greys," a company mustered in his county for service in the civil strife now threatening the country. He followed the flag of the Confederacy during the succeeding four years. In May, 1865 he was married to Sarah C. Killpatrick, daughter of Col. Alexander Killpatrick, of Calhoun county. He was united with the Methodist Church in 1850, of which he remained a consistent member until death came to claim him. He became a member of the order of Masons in 1854. A kind and devoted husband and father, a true friend and counsellor has gone to his reward; a valiant soldier of the cross, ever battling for the right; a noble example we might all do well to emulate. May he have passed to that city not made with hands, and may his welcome have been, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter ye into the joys of thy Lord!"

W. A. MCM.

MILLSAPS—THOS. ELIJAH MILLSAPS was born in Copiah county, Miss., Oct. 7, 1834, and died near Brown's Wells, in the same county, July 23, 1900. He was converted and joined the Methodist Church when quite young. In disposition he was quiet and somewhat timid, never seeking prominence of place or responsibility. His life was given to benevolence, and his great delight was to honor the ministry and work for the upbuilding of the church. It was a pleasure to serve as his pastor and know him intimately in his home. His home life was pleasant, and he obeyed the apostolic injunction to be "given to hospitality." Especially was this true in regard to the ministry. No preacher failed to meet a hearty welcome who chanced to pass that way. He was a liberal man. During the later years of his life he was afflicted, and thus deprived of many of the privileges of religious services, but maintained his faith in God and integrity of purpose.

Pleasant Valley has lost an earnest, faithful member; the widow a true husband, the children a loving and faithful father. To them we extend sympathy, and commend unto them the virtue of their companion and father, and pray earnestly that they may emulate his example, and finally may they enjoy the benedictions of heaven prepared for all the true and faithful! M. L. BURTON.

MCGEHEE—Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our friend and sister, Mrs. MARY LOU MCGEHEE, wife of Dr. D. M. McGehee, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Bledsoe; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Home Mission Society of McNutt circuit, of which she was a member, that we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That in the death of Sister McGehee our society has lost a true Christian and a faithful member.

Resolved, That we tender our sincere sympathy to her husband, father, mother, brother and sister, and pray God that they one day shall be reunited with their loved one in that land where "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family, and one sent to the Greenwood Enterprise, and one to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE for publication, and also spread upon the Minutes of our Home Mission Society.

DELANO—Mrs. H. M. DELANO (nee Hooks) was born in Georgia, Feb. 4, 1825 and died at her home in Monroe county, Miss., June 30, 1900. She was married three times, viz.: to T. S. Calahan, William Holloway, and D. P. Delano, respectively. She had five children by her first husband and one by her second. One of her children, Mrs. J. H. Fowlkes, and several grandchildren survive her death. At the death of her first husband she was left homeless with five small children, but by her wonderful energy, good management, and indomitable courage, she reared her family and accumulated considerable property, owning at one time 700 acres of land, with stock in proportion, and money in the bank. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Church for fifty-five years, supporting the cause liberally by her means as well as otherwise. She will be greatly missed by loved ones and friends. May God's richest blessings rest upon her family! is the prayer of her pastor,

T. H. PORTER.

Aberdeen, Miss.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to December, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

Matthew Henry's Commentary

Doddredge: He is, perhaps, the only commentator so large that deserves to be entirely and attentively read through.

Bickersteth: No subsequent commentary has rendered it less valuable or less disirable in every Christian library.

Whitfield: When asked where he studied theology, he replied: "On my knees, reading my Bible, and 'Henry's Commentary.'" Whitfield read it continually through four times.

The impression accordingly prevails that he leans towards his inside estimate, namely, 9,500,000 bales.

The diplomatic body in Pekin has held a final meeting and agreed upon the terms of the preliminary treaty. Nothing now remains, except to secure the approval of the respective governments before definite negotiations with the Chinese peace commissioners are begun. The precise terms of the settlement have not yet been made public, but it is believed outside of the diplomatic corps that the main points are in a substantial agreement with those contained in the French note to the powers, namely: punishment of the guilty, indemnity to governments and individual, retention of strong legation guards, and the occupation of certain places between Pekin and Taku.

Lynching Denounced.

An Associated Press dispatch from Colorado Springs, Col., dated Nov. 25, says: "A mass meeting was held in the chapel of Colorado College this evening to voice sentiments on the Limon lynching. The building was packed, and resolutions denouncing mob law and a reversion to the days of barbarity were passed. The resolutions closed with the following appeal to the people of the United States:

"We protest to our countrymen throughout the land that, as law-abiding people, we share with them the hazards of mob ebullition in revolt at nameless horrors, and claim with them the right to be judged, not by flagrant exceptions, but by the steady peace and order of our daily life."

The Church Economist records a novel experiment in church work out in Chicago. Trinity Episcopal Church of that city has been conducting a diet kitchen, the object of which is to supply milk and other infant foods, pure water and ice for all babies whose parents applied for them. The kitchen was opened in June last as an experiment, under the direction of Dr. George T. Palmer, who is one of the parishioners of Trinity Church, and is a specialist on the diseases of childhood in the Chicago Clinical School. The experiment was a great success. All creeds and denominations in Chicago have united in helping the work along. When they were needed, nurses were supplied by the different hospitals of the city, and the words of commendation of the work have been so many that the diet kitchen of Trinity Church is to be a fixture in Chicago. It is almost needless to add that applicants for milk and food for the infants are never asked as to their religious affiliations.

A Slave Holder's Daughter.

Cloth, 12 Mo, Fully Illustrated. $1.

This is a book which photographs the new South in contrast with the old. It deals especially with the evolution of Southern women—their surprising energy in leaping from the lap of the old feudal, luxurious life to meet the stern realities of to-day. The author herself belongs by birthright to the old regime, while in full sympathy with the new condition. She writes from the inside, and pictures in her vivid and throbbing pages the situation down in Dixie as it relates to the people, education, the woman question, temperance, the economist, etc. All those who would have an inside knowledge of Dixie's Land as it is to-day should read it.

THE GENERAL MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

BY REV. JOHN T. SAWYER, D. D.

The two meetings of the Southern delegates to the Ecumenical Conference on Foreign Missions, held in the parlors of Hotel Albert in New York City, and presided over by Bishops Granbery and Hendrix, have logically resulted in the calling of a Missionary Conference for our Methodism, to be held April 24-30, 1901, in New Orleans, La. The 107 from the South who, during those glorious ten days and nights at Carnegie Hall, were instructed and thrilled by the facts and figures of world-wide missions, will be looking forward with buoyant hopefulness to the assembling of the missionary hosts of our section of the Christian church. The gracious influence of the New York Conference has permeated all Christendom, invigorating the church universal and stirring the hearts of God's people, as never before, to give and do and dare for the saving of the unsaved millions of earth; and so, too, we may expect the New Orleans Conference to have, in its measure and throughout its domain, similar important and practical results.

Promising to be possibly the most momentous gathering in the history of our church, and composed, as it will be, of men and women of intelligence, faith, conscience, zeal and success as thinkers and workers, the General Missionary Conference will give occasion for the thorough discussion, from every standpoint and in its every phase, of the cause of missions—that over-topping, mightiest problem presented for solution to the Christian world. Such a flood of light will be thrown upon the whole burning question that our duty to our brother-man will be more clearly seen than ever before, and our plans and methods of work be wiser and more effective, yielding wonderful results and hastening this world's conquest for our Lord. Christian work of all sorts, in both the foreign and home fields, will be considered; and the eighty, or more, missionaries of the Board of Missions in China, Japan, Brazil, Mexico, Korea and Cuba, and the fifty, or more, women employed by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and the very many other missionaries in our cities and Western borders and throughout all the home-land, will, with their works, be taken into the very heart, thought and helpful purpose of that consecrated body of Southern Methodists. How, then, must these glorious soldiers of Christ, out at the front and in the hot heat of the battle, be strengthened and cheered by the words and the work of the Conference! There is need for just such an assembly to thoroughly consider the various and difficult evangelistic problems confronting the church today. We should plan for adequate means to more completely occupy the mission fields where we already are and to enter the newer fields opening to us. There must be ample provision made for the better equipment of our work and workers, and the distribution of missionary literature and information among our million and a half of members. The responsibility of a great church like ours is awful to contemplate, and our niggardly giving and laggard movement need the invigoration of a powerful tonic such as this Conference can administer. It is rarely that we discover any missionary conscience among the masses of our membership, and there must be awakened within us a strong, personal conviction that God will hold our church, and every member of it, accountable for answering, according to our ability, the divine command, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature.' This nineteenth century is moaning to its end, and its record, however glorious, must be surpassed by the greatness and splendor of Christian achievement in the coming twentieth century.

Dr. Lambuth puts the case truly in saying, "The aim of the Conference will not be that of generating enthusiasm—something more permanent is contemplated." Southern Methodists should be "instant in prayer" to the end, that at the General Missionary Conference there may be had a very Pentecost of light and power, resulting in wise plans and practical measures, leading to permanent results. Individual and family prayer should take on the burden of this Conference, that our beloved church may indeed no longer play at missions, but, Spirit-baptized, in the might of our God, go forth to glorious war, her mission treasury filled, and her devoted sons and daughters pressing the battle under every sun, seeking blood-bought sons.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 23, 1900.

MISSISSIPPI METHODIST PAPER MOVEMENT.

The question is being agitated as to whether or not we need a Methodist paper in Mississippi. Now, it seems to me that we already have more Methodist papers than we can get our people to read, even when we take a copy to their homes and give it to them. But you say that seven of the nine District Conferences of the North Mississippi Conference voted for a new paper. Suppose they did. Who was it that voted? Was it the people that are supposed to read the new paper, or was it the preachers of those District Conferences? Then, would such an institution as a Mississippi Methodist paper appeal to our people? I think not, for we have the NEW ORLEANS and the Nashville Advocates, and they, despite their excellence, have not appealed to many of them. "But," says some one, "the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE does not meet the demands of our Conference." If not, why not? Is it because the editor has refused to publish some trifling article that was sent him for publication? In my humble judgment, the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE is meeting the wants of all the people who read it, and I believe there are as many people who read the Conference organ as it now is, as would if we had a Mississippi Methodist paper.

But some people are always wanting something new, and they imagine if they could get such a paper, it would sweep the State, make Methodism as strong as a Samson, and thus demolish the temple of sin. But is that a fact? Let us see. The Sunday-school is a power for good in our land; what will we put in its place? Will the Epworth League take its place for good? Will Bible readings do it? No. Neither will a new paper take the place of the ones we have already. If the new paper could be put into ten thousand homes, it would, of course, help our institutions, and greatly advance the cause of Christ. But the question is, Could that be done? There are three hundred and fifty authorized agents for both of our Advocates, and they have never done that much. Neither do we believe that another would be more successful.

I know that it is claimed by some that the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE is too high, but when we take into consideration the size of the ADVOCATE, the splendid quality of its reading matter, and also the fact that its cost per year is no more than that of the majority of church papers, North and South, this objection falls to the ground.

Away, then, with the idea that we need another Conference organ. Let us stand by the one we have, and by giving it our cordial support, help to make it just what we want without incurring the expense and risk of starting another journal.

JAMES WILLIAM LAMBUTH MONUMENT IN MISSISSIPPI.

BY REV. H. G. HAWKINS, MADISON STATION, MISS.

(Copied from Review of Missions.)

Madison county, Miss., is one of the oldest in the State. It has more cleared lands than any county in the State, except Hinds; and the citizens have long enjoyed a reputation for intelligence and wealth. There are still preserved in the county country mansions of the ante-bellum period as fine as can be seen anywhere in the Southland. Among the early families were the Lambuths, who moved thither from Alabama in 1843. The Lambuth home still stands about three miles east of the town of Madison, and one of the daughters resides there. James William Lambuth, the second child of the large family, joined the Mississippi Conference during its session at Canton, the county seat, in 1853, and was appointed by Bishop Andrew to China.

The family worshiped about two miles east from their home, at the Pearl River Church, which is at present a part of the Madison circuit. During a Quarterly Conference occasion held at Pearl River in August, 1899, Rev. T. B. Holloman, the presiding elder, after a walk amid the graves of the cemetery, which lies just to the rear of the church, suggested that a monument to the memory of Missionary Lambuth, erected on the grassy ground in front of the church, would be a very appropriate tribute. Accordingly, the pastor introduced, and had to pass in the Quarterly Conference, a resolution appointing a committee to secure the funds. Mrs. John D. Dickinson and Mrs. George W. Galloway became the most diligent members of this committee. By correspondence and personal solicitation they raised an amount which, increased by contributions from members of the two Mississippi Conferences, was sufficient to purchase the monument, members of the family having requested that it be simple.

The afternoon of Aug. 9, 1900, was the date set for unveiling the monument. A circuit Sunday-school and Epworth League Institute, including a Twentieth Century Thank-offering rally, had been held during the morning and the day preceding, with a large attendance. Among the subjects on the programme were a few relating to the mission cause, such as: "The Sunday-school and Missions," "Must All Men Have the Gospel?" "The City of Shanghai," "Recent Events in China."

At the appointed hour the crowd was marshaled outside of the church, and marched around the monument, with the children and ministers present to the front, all singing, "When the roll is called up yonder." The crowd having assembled in a semicircle, they listened to the oration on J. W. Lambuth by S. Lamar Field. Among other things, the speaker said: "God give us men such as he—men who will lay down self for humanity; men who do not crave fame and fortune; men whom the pleasures of the world can not buy. . . . This is the greatest monument that we can erect, but during his life he made living monuments of his many converts that will shine more brilliantly than all the inscriptions and establatures that we could inscribe upon a marble block as broad as the illimitable sky that circles above us. . . . He fought with untiring zeal, with inspired courage, and assurance of victory. He fought a good fight, he kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness. . . . Let us ever emulate his example, and perform our part in sending forth the glad tidings of great joy which he announced to millions of perishing souls."

Rev. T. B. Holloman made appropriate remarks, and the flower girls covered the base with bouquets of roses and lilies. A touching part of the exercises was the Lord's Prayer delivered in pantomime by Mrs. Laura Scott, a deaf-mute, who is a half-sister of J. W. Lambuth. Among the other relatives present were Mrs. J. F. Norman, an own sister, and Mrs. S. E. Lambuth, a sister-in-law. During the institute a letter from Dr. W. R. Lambuth had been read, in which regrets were expressed that he could not be on hand, as he had at first planned. Besides the presiding elder and pastor, the ministers present were: Dr. A. F. Watkins, president of Whitworth College, and Rev. Ira F. Hawkins, of the North Alabama Conference.

The monument is some ten feet high, and of dark marble, inscribed on the front with the date of erection, the date of birth (March 2, 1830), the date of the death in Kobe, Japan (April 28, 1892), and, in addition, the following: "Chinese Christians desired his body for burial in the soil of China; but the Japanese had heard him say that he desired to sleep in their land: so he rests by the city of Kobe, not far from the Inland Sea." On the north side is this: "In China, from Shanghai as a center, for thirty-three years he pushed farther and farther his bold course, preaching in the towns and cities of the interior;" and: "In Japan he went forth from Kobe to the mission fields, toiling eight years, planting the churches in Kobe, Hiroshima, Uwajima, and Tadotsu." On the south side: "Message to Church in America: 'Tell them I die at my post; we have a great work to do: send more men.' Message to Church in Japan: 'Tell them to be faithful—faithful unto the end.'" The east face of the monument is as yet uninscribed.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

If the arguments presented by the brewers and their attorneys, who are in Washington to try to get the tax on beer reduced by the bill which is being prepared by the House Ways and Means Committee to reduce what are popularly known as the "war taxes," be true, then every person who believes in temperance and in the destruction of the saloon should at once take steps toward persuading Congress to let that tax alone. The president of the Brewers' Association, who is now in Washington, said in a published interview, intended to affect congressional opinion: "Year before last the consumption of beer fell off 1,000,000 barrels, where it ought to have increased 2,000,000 barrels. The figures for the past year are not at hand yet. There is no denying that the brewing business is in a deplorable condition, and we attribute it to the enormous tax which the government levies upon us." A delegation of brewers went to the White House yesterday to seek the President's assistance in getting the tax on beer reduced, but did not succeed. The President told them that it was a question for the members of the House Ways and Means Committee to determine.

A disgraceful state of affairs has just been disclosed in the Pension Bureau. It had been noticed for some time that employees of that Bureau who came to work sober became intoxicated during office hours, although they did not leave the building. Commissioner Evans made an investigation, and learned that about fifty employees had formed a sort of drinking association, and that one of the file-rooms in a remote part of the building was practically a bar-room during office hours, the liquor being purchased by contributions of the employees and smuggled into the building, and the employees sneaking into the room from time to time during the day to drink it. The commissioner has not fully decided what punishment shall be given the offenders, but it is probable that some of the ring-leaders in the demoralization of the morals and discipline of the office will be dismissed, while lighter punishment will be administered to those who allowed themselves to be led astray. Meanwhile steps have been taken that will prevent a repetition of such scandalous proceedings.

Col. Charles Bird, assistant quartermaster general, U. S. A., delivered a lecture on "Personal Impressions from My Visit to the Philippines," this week, in which he strongly endorsed the statements recently made in a public address by Chaplain Miller, that the reports as to intemperance and vice in the Philippines had been greatly exaggerated. He said that upon our army transports there was a strict enforcement of the rule forbidding the use of alcoholic liquors, except in medicine and upon doctor's prescriptions.

This government does not endorse the agreement which has been reached by the foreign ministers at Pekin, subject to the approval of their respective governments, as to the demands that shall be made upon China, believing them to be of such a nature that it would be impossible for the government of China to comply with them, even if it desired to do so. It is not considered probable in Washington that the demands which the ministers have agreed to will ever be submitted to China. Indeed, steps have been taken by this government to secure moderation of them.

Representative Cooper, of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Committee on Insular Affairs, made a few remarks on the seeming dilatoriness of the Cuban Constitutional Convention, which deserve the careful consideration of those who feel or have expressed impatience because the convention has apparently accomplished nothing, although it has been in session nearly a month. He said: "We should not be discouraged at the long-drawn-out sessions and the lengthy discussions. Our forefathers indulged in a good deal of that at Philadelphia. They got angry, shook fists at each other, threatened to leave the convention, and did other similar things." It should also be remembered that our forefathers were much colder-blooded than the Cubans are.

Chairman Bixby, of the Five Civilized Tribes Commission, was in Washington this week for the purpose of conferring with Secretary Hitchcock on the work of the commission in the Indian Territory. He said that unless unexpected complications should extend the time, the commission would probably complete its work within two years. It has already made agreements with all five tribes, and three of the agreements have been ratified by Congress, leaving the Creek and Cherokee treaties pending. Mr. Bixby thinks both will be ratified at this session of Congress. The commission will at once begin appraising the land of the Creek nation, and will go to Hattiesburg, Miss., Dec. 17, to enroll the Choctaws in that State.

Col. F. F. Hilder, of the United States Bureau of Ethnology, who recently returned from an extended official visit to the Philippines, where he collected data to be made use of in the government exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, inaugurated a series of lectures under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. with a most interesting illustrated talk on "The Philippines and Their People."

Everything is in readiness for the annual convention of the W. C. T. U., which opens Friday and continues to Dec. 7, inclusive. Business headquarters during the convention will be at Foundry Church. A large attendance is looked for.

THE PEACE WITHIN.

When worldly clam'rings 'round him start,
Can still above the tumult hear
The voice of God within his heart.

The waters over him may roll,
The rod of chastening may not spare;
But God is ever in his soul,
To breathe a holy comfort there.

When Satan, with seductive wiles,
Deceives his mind and sways his will,
And with a thousand arts beguiles,
God's voice within will warn him still.

Oh, what a calm and holy bliss
The soul that leans on Jesus knows;
Whatever path in life is his,
The Lord is with him as he goes.

IF WE UNDERSTOOD.

Could we but draw back the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives,
Often we should find it better,
Purer than we think we would;
We should love each other better
If we only understood.

Ah! we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force,
Knowing not the fount of action
Is less turbid at its source,
Seeing not amid the evil
All the golden grains of good;
Oh! we'd love each other better
If we only understood.

CONCERNING A MISSISSIPPI METHODIST PAPER.

The question of a Mississippi Methodist paper has been under discussion for several years past. The suggestion, originating within the bounds of the Mississippi Conference, has met with some favor in North Mississippi. Those favoring such a paper urge its establishment for the following reasons:

1. Our present Conference organ, the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, they say, does not reach the homes of our people. Its circulation is comparatively small; hence it is not meeting the ends of a church paper.

2. A Mississippi paper would appeal to the State pride of our people. Mississippians would patronize it because it would be an enterprise of their own State.

3. We can not induce our Methodist people to subscribe for the present Conference paper on account of its price. They tell us it costs too much. "We must have a cheaper paper." "A paper at one dollar a year would meet with favor, and have a much larger circulation."

The friends of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, per contra, claim:

1. That its patronage, while not what it should be, is yet sufficient to give us a good, self-sustaining religious paper. At the last General Conference of our Northern brethren it appeared that eight out of ten of their Conference organs were published at a heavy expense to the church; they were not self-sustaining. Our excellent connectional organ, the Nashville Advocate, to equal the patronage of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, territory considered, should have a following of about fifty thousand subscribers; yet no one would change the location, name, or administration of our "great official."

2. It is questionable whether a one-dollar Advocate could be made to measure up to the demands of Mississippi Methodism. It is to be apprehended that it would be a cheap paper in respects other than the price. Our church is growing in the number of its cultured men and women. It has already a constituency that would not be satisfied with any paper that does not compare favorably with the best.

More than one effort has been made, without success, to publish a cheap Methodist paper. A Mississippi Methodist paper actually came to the birth some years ago, but it was short-lived, in so much that its title has almost faded from memory. The Memphis Advocate, of more recent date, bid for patronage by reason of its cheapness. Although favorably located, and edited in succession by several able men, it was finally abandoned as unpracticable.

3. The appeal to State pride is more plausible than convincing. The very name, "Mississippi Methodist," is suggestive of exclusiveness and of circumscribed patronage, limited by State boundaries. The people of contiguous States would care but little for a Mississippi paper, and would be perfectly willing to let Mississippians manage and support their own enterprise.

A committee from the two Conferences, Mississippi and North Mississippi, met in Jackson during the late Millsaps commencement to consider the paper question, the practicability of the measure, as I suppose; the ways and means, and what manner of paper it should be; but the committee reached no conclusion—'did nothing," so I was informed. This was wise. Better do nothing than embark upon a scheme of doubtful expediency and uncertain success.

This is eminently a day of expansion, and the church should extend rather than contract the area of her activities and usefulness. Why not invite and induce Alabama, with her two Conferences, and Memphis to unite with us on one twentieth century organ? This done, the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE could supply all the demands of this enlarged and inviting territory. Such a combination would be something worthy of a new century movement.

Let the church "enlarge the place of her tent; let her stretch forth the curtains of her habitations, lengthen her cords, and strengthen her stakes."

At all events, let us hold on to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, a paper that for fifty years has served the church faithfully and well; and let us give to it our more loyal and earnest support. T. C. WIER.

SPEECH AN INDEX TO CHARACTER.

When our Savior was in the council hall of the Sanhedrim, Peter was accused of being one of Christ's disciples, whereupon he denied any knowledge of Jesus. One who had accused him said, You are surely one of his disciples, for "thy speech betrayeth thee." Our Lord had chosen his disciples out of Galilee, which fact was commonly known to the Jews. Peter, being from that district, spoke the dialect of that region, which differed very much from that spoken by the better-educated class about Jerusalem. His Galilean dialect betrayed him. If he had kept his mouth closed, he, perhaps, would not have been pressed so hard by his accusers. But, alas! for him, he failed to do that.

We are aware of the fact that a man's culture, country and nationality are revealed by his speech. A Northeasterner is known in the South as soon as he opens his mouth, and we know a man to be a native or foreigner by his speech. But how few of us consider the fact that we betray our moral characters by our speech.

Canaan and the world have their own peculiar language, idioms, and dialects, the use of which betrays their inhabitants. Just as you may know an educated man by his chaste language and smooth sentences, or as you may know an Englishman by his speech, so you may know a Christian by his words.

There are many words in common use to-day among church members that belong to a foreign language—i. e., to the world. There is a host of "by-words" in common use that are a lot of doggerel of the world's stronger language. Such have no place whatever in the literature of Canaan. We will not say that those who use such words are altogether Christless, but, to say the least of it, they are not using the pure language of Zion. They betray looseness of speech and, therefore, of character by the use of such language.

Nationalities not only have different languages, but they have different intonations, modulations, and modes of expression. These distinctions also exist between the tones and expressions of Christians and those of worldlings. The language of Canaan has a soft, gentle accent, and a smooth inflection. The language of the world has a hard accent and a rough inflection.

The tone of the voice may seem an insignificant thing. Be it so; yet it reveals character. It gives expression to the state of the heart. If the tone of the voice is harsh and rough, it indexes such a state of heart. On the other hand, if it is soft and gentle, as a rule, we may know that the speaker has a kind, loving heart. We are told that some of the languages of earth have no word for God and for holiness, and that the missionaries have had to transfer the English words into those languages without translating them. So in the language of Zion there are no words for slander and backbiting, for harsh criticism and evil speaking, and those in Zion who wish to indulge in the use of such language have to transfer the words without translation, and by the use of such language reveal the vipers that live in the heart. The child knows the heart of the mother by her speech. The pupil reads the character of the teacher in her words. The world discerns between the sham Christian and the real by the language of each. We can not hide our real selves and hold converse with those about us. Our words are kodaks, that catch our images and reveal them to the world. Let us so speak that our speech will indicate our heavenly citizenship; will reveal the image of Christ in our hearts.

NOTICE.

To Pastors of the Louisiana Conference—

BRETHREN: Please observe the following rules in filling out your Annual Conference reports:

In calculating membership, let your starting-point be the number of members you now have on your records, less local preachers, which are reported to themselves. From the total of these subtract those you have added in any way, and to the remainder add those you removed in any way; the number thus obtained will be the true membership of last year.

"Societies in the charge" means organized churches, and has no reference to women's and other societies.

Under "Value of Other Church Property" report organs, bells, lights, pews, stoves, books, etc.; cemeteries, lands not now used or held in trust, school property, etc., and not included in the value of the churches and parsonages.

If your church is not insured, and sustains damage, report the damage under the heads of "Number of Churches Damaged or Destroyed," and "Amount of Damage;" but if it is insured, report the damage under the head, "Losses Sustained."

In reporting the work of your Epworth Leagues and Woman's Home Mission Societies, include Conference and other dues, local charity and parsonage work (whether in money, or labor and supplies), and missionary and other funds.

Under the head of "Other Objects" in the finance table report items for which no provision is made in the printed blanks, as India and Galveston relief, special missionary collections (not on assessments), poor cared for by the church, ministerial help in meetings, etc.

Use one of the two blank lines for Minutes; the other for Twentieth Century Fund, Pledged — and Paid —. Be specially careful, in reporting this last item, to let it show just what your churches have done from the beginning of the movement up to the present time.

Under the head, "Money Collected for Sunday-schools," report the cost of all Sunday-school supplies, such as record books, lesson helps, visitors, maps, charts, rewards, books, etc., and in the same table, under the head of "Missions," report the Rally Day and regular Sunday-school missionary society collections. "Other Objects" in this table affords a place to report any money raised by the Sunday-school, and not elsewhere reported, such as for lights, carpets, painting, poor, India and Galveston relief, etc.

Let your "Total from All Sources" on the finance table include from Table No. 1, "Money Expended for Churches and Parsonages," and "Premiums Paid"; from Table No. 2, every paid item; from Table No. 3, "Money Raised by Epworth Leagues" and "Total Amount Raised in Sunday-schools." Be careful not to report an item twice in this total, as Sunday-school mission money.

When possible, fill out the blanks with a pen. Please also be careful to make your figures so plain that there will be no doubt what they mean, and try and keep dollars under dollars and cents under cents in the finance table. If necessary, draw a pencil line near the edge of this slip to separate dollars and cents.

The observance of these requests will save the statistical secretary considerable extra work, and greatly expedite his report.

Yours for full and correct reports,

WM. G. EVANS.

Haughton, La.

P. S.—I will have some report blanks at Baton Rouge. Please read paragraph 133, page 59, of the Discipline, and report the result on the finance table. E.

A SABBATH AMONG THE CUMBERLANDS.

BY MISS ADDIE PURNELL.

(Read before the district meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Forest district, and published by request.)

The mountain-folk are out to-day—men, women, and children—on their way to Sunday-school and church. The day is crisp and cool, and the first touch of Autumn tips the tree-tops with carmine and gold. The custom so prevalent in the valley of leaving all the religion of the family to the women and children, while the men spend the Sabbath at the club and on the streets, has not yet reached these upper regions of land and sky. Six days the hardy sons and daughters of toil "labor and do all their work," hauling, mining, logging, milling, washing, hoeing, scrubbing, by the sweat of the brow, to earn bread for the little ones at home; but the seventh day all tools are laid aside, and they rest from their labors. No sound of busy life pollutes the sacred day. The smoke of the engine, the whistle of the train, the traffic of the outer world, are all left far away in the valley below. Shops are closed; ice and bread-wagon give out supplies for Sunday on Saturday afternoon. The postoffice even refuses to open, and the Sunday newspaper-man is forced to exist without his usual reading. It is Sunday everywhere. Mr. Thomas, president of the railroad, loved and honored, is known far and wide as "the working-man's friend." Would there were others like him!

Such a Sabbath is truly an earnest of that heavenly "rest that remaineth for the people of God"—an object-lesson in a land called Christian; and yet the violation of the Sabbath law is sanctioned by the press—often by the pulpit—of every hamlet and village; aye, and by almost every home. Yet the pledge of God's favor in all generations, to individuals and nations, is based on the keeping of the Sabbath day. The thousands admitted to American citizenship every year are introducing their European gala day for the American Sabbath, and unless something is done to stay the tide, the seventh day will only be a day of freer opportunity and license for disorder and crime. Is there no remedy? If the Christian Sabbath is to be preserved, it can only be done through the Christian home. What greater service to our country can engage the heart and hands of the women of the Home Mission Society than the rescue and preservation of the Christian Sabbath?

On page 78, the fourteenth annual report of the Woman's Home Mission Society, we find a strange record: "A motion presented by Mrs. Cope touching Sabbath observance was tabled." It is to be hoped Mrs. Cope will carry up her "motion touching Sabbath observance" to every Annual Conference until God shall put it on the heart and conscience of every woman in the church that the rescue of the Christian Sabbath is the solution of the great problem of how we may claim "our country for Christ." Mayhap the members who voted to table a motion touching Sunday observance were blessed with better laws than appear on the statutes of Mississippi.

During the session of the last Legislature, Senator Cox, of Prentiss county, urged the passage of a bill that would stop the running of freight trains on Sunday, and give the tired railroad men one day of the week at home. The corporation magnate sent 200 railroad employees to Jackson to lobby for the defeat of the bill, and the Legislature, obedient to the power behind the throne, and through the influence of members who were railroad attorneys, voted against the Sunday law; talked of "blue-laws" of Puritan days, and laughed to scorn the messenger of the King. "Ye shall keep my Sabbaths and reverence my sanctuary. If ye walk in my statutes and do my commandments, then shall the land yield her increase, and your threshing reach unto the vintage, and the vintage unto the sowing-time. But if ye will not do all these commandments, your strength shall be spent in vain, for your land shall not yield her increase. I will send the pestilence among you. Then shall the land enjoy her Sabbaths. As long as it lieth desolate, it shall rest, because it did not rest in your Sabbaths." So wrote the great lawgiver for Israel. The God of the Jew is no less the God of the Christian.

Perhaps the Mississippi legislator may think it an accident that the "rains descended, the floods came," and for weeks railroad traffic was suspended, while the fields, deserted and given up to weeds, lie idle, or fail to yield the accustomed increase.

When that other great anaconda, the saloon, was crushing out the life of the State, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union besieged the halls of legislation with petitions and memorials, and, like Esther of old and her maidens, betook themselves to fasting and prayer, and their cry for deliverance was heard. The time has come, in the history of our country, when the woman of the home, of every home, must lift her voice, and become the instrument in God's hand to rescue the key to Christian civilization—the Christian Sabbath; also the key to the American home. Jeremiah, the prophet, wrote (629 B. C.), "They that handle the law knew me not." It is as applicable in the year of our Lord 1900. Thus saith the Lord, "Take heed to yourselves, and bear no burden on the Sabbath day; neither carry forth a burden out of your houses; neither do ye any work, but hallow ye the Sabbath day." "Blessed is the man that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it." "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

Is it not time a united effort should be made by the people of God to rescue the Sabbath day?

The Christian Life.

UNJUST CRITICISM.

To criticise is easy. It requires no scholarship, no industry, no great labor to become an unmerciful critic. The smallest man can point out faults in the greatest. Small people often indulge in this kind of dealing with their brethren. Perhaps they are peculiarly tempted to do so by their very smallness. They have done nothing to enlarge themselves, and look with jealous eye on everyone who has labored to develop his resources. To see others outstripping them in the race torments them. A preacher who has a small congregation may feel unkindly toward another who has a large congregation, and feel himself called upon to say harsh and unkind things about him impugning his motives, disparaging his methods, underrating his abilities. In all this he may not be aware of the fact that he is endeavoring to drag his neighbor down from his lofty elevation to his own low level.

Conspicuous persons are always subject to harsh criticism. Their life is public and their conduct is exposed to inspection and comment. Nearly all men who hold high positions in Church and State suffer from these villainous attacks. What one of them has ever escaped? The wicked are not alone in shooting these poisoned arrows. Some church members, and even ministers of the gospel, have been known to engage in this unseemly business. It is not merely at secular officials that these fiery darts are aimed. Professing Christians too often speak unkindly and unjustly of their own brethren. This makes the pain worse. If it had been an enemy, it could have been borne with less agony. This was to be expected. "But it was thou, a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance. We took sweet counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in company."

Christian parents often complain bitterly of the church and the ministers in the presence of their children. Imaginary faults are invented where no real faults exist, and insignificant faults are exaggerated. The evil effect of this sort of criticism on the minds of young people can not be estimated. Is not this a sufficient explanation of the indifference of the children of many Christian parents? Is it any wonder that they abandon the church of their fathers? Thousands of young men, sons of official members in Christian churches, never enter the sanctuary. If we would know the reason, in many cases, we need only listen to the table conversation of these families for the past twenty years. Those children have listened to tirades of abuse against the ministers and the churches, to bickerings and fault-findings which have poisoned their minds and alienated them from the church. Some have become infidels, and some outcasts, and who shall say that the harsh criticism to which they have been treated in the home is not the principal cause?

We have heard men indulging in such ungenerous and unjust accusations who seemed to think they were doing God service. They regard themselves as peculiarly holy. They seem to suppose that the holiness which they have received gives them license to make severe charges against all those that fail to agree with them. According to these critics, the whole church is on the way to ruin. They tell us that most of the members of the church are in a backslidden state, if, indeed, they were ever converted; that the preachers are worldly self-seekers, and unfaithful to their vows; that the presiding elders and Bishops are corrupted and blinded by the wealth and fashion of the times. According to those critics, there is no soundness in the church. Is this true? Are these charges just?

Holiness makes men charitable, but some men who profess to be holy are exceedingly uncharitable and unjust. They do not mean to slander their brethren. They have been deluded by narrow views of a glorious doctrine and experience. The damage they are inflicting on themselves, on those whom they unjustly accuse, on those who believe in and follow them, and on the entire church, is very great. Satan is the great accuser of the brethren. Some man who really mean to be good and true unwittingly follow him in this thing. Let all harsh criticism be abandoned. God is love. His children are like him. Let us not love in word alone, but in deed and in truth.—New York Advocate.

CAN YOU PAY THE PRICE?

When church members are filled with the Spirit, they do not need to be scolded to a prayer meeting, or to be baited to church by some special attraction in the pulpit or the music gallery. Their purses open at the touch of charity, and their tongues are unloosed to speak for Christ. They are as anxious to win converts to Christ as the political "workers" are to win votes in the presidential election. In short, to be filled with the Holy Spirit is to have the only genuine revival. Do you thirst for the Holy Spirit? Are you ready to work with him? Are you willing to pay the price of a genuine revival—whatever dead limbs it may cut off or false hopes it may blow down? Then you may have it with all the joys and immeasurable blessings that it will bring. "Behold, I will make all things new." When Christ's promised Spirit comes, that will be fulfilled.—The Interior.

COME AT ONCE.

A young woman once refused to come to the Savior, saying: "There is too much to give up."

"Do you think God loves you?" I asked.

'Certainly."

"How much do you think he loves you?"

"Do you think if God loves you enough to give his Son to die for you, he will ask you to give up anything it is for your good to keep?"

"No."

"Do you wish to keep anything that is not for your good to keep?"

"No."

"Then you better come to Christ at once."

And she did.—Young People's Paper.

THE MORNING HOUR.

How irresistible the temptation to most Christians to give the first hour of the day, when they feel strongest and freshest, to what they consider their most pressing and important work, and to leave the study of the Word and communion with God to some more leisure and convenient time—a time which possibly may not come throughout the day. Robert E. Speer revealed one secret of his power and influence when he told a friend that he denied himself an hour's sleep in the early morning that he might spend that hour alone with his God and his Bible. Try it, dear reader, and note the result—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

We say that the sun sets, but it never does really set. It only seems to set. We speak of it as setting only because its evening condition looks like a going down. In reality it has only the seeming of setting, and meets us as bright as ever next morning. Sleep looks like death, but it is not death. Neither is death itself really death; it is only the shadow or the appearance of death. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil.—Gerard B. F. Hallock, D. D.

A minister of the gospel has the right to do what any Christian has a right to do. There is not one moral law for ministers and another for other Christians. At the same time there is such a thing as professional propriety, and every sensible minister will take care not to transcend the limits that are set by professional propriety.—The Watchman.

NOTES FROM GLOSTER.

The recent protracted meeting in our church here is regarded by some as one of the best ever held in Gloster. Our pastor, Rev. J. W. McLaurin, was assisted by two eminent ministers from Jackson, La.: Rev. Henry W. May, pastor of the church at that place, and Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Centenary College. The preaching, which was of a very high order, not only greatly benefited our membership and added twenty-one new members, but the whole community was blessed.

A good meeting was held in the Sharon Church some time ago, our pastor being assisted by Rev. Delos Cassels, who is now spending his first year in a theological school in Kentucky. Delos is a bright, promising, and truly consecrated son of Bro. J. R. Cassels, one of the leading Methodists of this community. The meeting resulted in much good, bringing several into the church. Up to date there have been forty-two accessions to the Methodist Church here during the year. While the attendance upon preaching, prayer meeting and Sunday-school has been larger than at any time since the division of the church, the members seem to be more alive and active than usual, and if the two churches would heartily and unanimously unite—for which many are praying—our church would be the best in the place. Some valuable improvements have been made in the new church, together with some minor improvements. Our house of worship, during this year, has been supplied with a splendid organ, beautiful lamps, an elegant carpet, and a nice, large heater. For these improvements credit is mainly due to the interest, ability, and gracious tact of our popular pastor and the members of the "Ladies' Aid."

We have lost during this year several of our strongest financial as well as moral supporters, but we hope to make a pretty good showing at Conference in this respect.

REPORT FROM MATHERSVILLE CHARGE.

Our fourth Quarterly Conference is over, and we had a pleasant session indeed. Our presiding elder, Bro. G. A. Gnice, was on hand and preached us two very fine sermons that fired my people with increased zeal to push the fight on to victory. This country has been visited with floods of rain and sickness, but, notwithstanding these disadvantages, our finances will exceed my highest expectations. We are on the upgrade spiritually, and are reaching up to loftier heights in that glorious experience that comes to us through faith in the Son of God.

R H. BARR.

Mathersville, Miss., Nov. 26, 1900.

REPORT FROM THE SIMSBORO CIRCUIT.

We have had some hindrances and more or less sickness all the year. First, measles and whooping cough; then scarlet fever and malarial fever. We have had rains that hindered us, but out of it all the Lord has brought us to the closing round. Our net increase will be 12 or 15. Our finances will be in advance at least 25 per cent. I have appointed a committee to ceil two churches, which work will be done during the Winter, and another committee to repair our church at Vienna. I have also appointed a Building Committee for a church where one is very much needed. There have been some conversions—25 or 30, at least. The people all over the circuit, however, need to be more consecrated, and then they would be more active. We need the co-operation of every member to have the success that is in the range of our possibilities.

THOS. J. MARTIN, P. C.

REPORT FROM MARIETTA CIRCUIT, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Since writing last I have had a great revival at Kirkville, which resulted in the salvation of some 25 souls, several accessions to our Church and some to the Baptist church. All denominations enjoyed and profited by the meeting. Altogether, I have had a good year. I have had over 100 conversions and 60 accessions, and our new church at Wheeler's is about completed, and when finished and furnished will be valued at $1,000. It is one of the best in the country outside of Booneville, and will, if properly cared for in the future, result in the up-building of the Marietta charge more than anything that has been done there for years.

We all feel that if the Lord had not been with us there, we could not have built such a church during such an unfavorable year. We are now holding a glorious revival in it.

H. C. PARROTT, P. C.

THE PASTOR POUNDED AT ETHEL, Miss.

This is my first year on the Ethel charge. We are very busy trying to round up for Conference. I have traveled about 1400 miles this year, have visited 130 families, have made 415 visits, and hope I have been instrumental in the hands of God in doing some good. I hope also to be able to make a good report at Conference. To our surprise, we had a donation storm at the parsonage last Friday night, the sixteenth instant. Quite a number of friends came, both children and grown folks, old and young, and we had an enjoyable time. These good friends brought to the inmates of the parsonage corn, potatoes, flour, sugar, coffee, rice, dried and canned fruits, jar of honey, a lot of fresh meat, besides a number of other good things, all amounting to about $15 worth, for which we were very grateful, and pray God's richest blessings on the donors.

SWEEPING REVIVAL AT LEESVILLE, LA.

I have just closed the greatest revival ever held in this section. Abe Mulkey, of Texas, was with us ten days. At the close of this meeting we had the pleasure of receiving forty candidates into the church at one time. So large was the class that we had to form extra lines down two aisles of our new church, while I stood on a chair in the center of the church and administered the vows. I can safely say we had one hundred conversions and reclamations during this meeting. Notwithstanding rain and cold, the church was crowded to its utmost capacity, namely 500, and many men unable to get in the house. At the first of the year we found an organization of twenty-nine members, with no house of worship. Now we have a house valued at three thousand dollars. Even though the material used was purchased at a reduced price, it cost twenty-two hundred dollars. Our membership now is one hundred and fifty-four, making one hundred and twenty-five this year. My stewards have pledged themselves for every dollar of assessment for pastor and presiding elder, and I will report all assessments ordered by the Conference paid in full. I have now in hand $30 on Twentieth Century Thank-offering, and believe I shall be able to report at least $50 at Conference. Our Sunday-school is in excellent condition. Our Epworth League is doing well, and our prayer meetings are well attended.

To Him who has redeemed and saved us we give all the praise.

"Shall the General Conference Refer the Licensing of Preachers Back from the District Conference to the Quarterly Conference?"

Replying to some points taken by Rev. W. M. Young in the ADVOCATE, of Nov. 15, under this caption, wherein he reviews my reply to him in the issue of Oct. 25, I beg leave to say:

My contention is, that the "Divine call" to the ministry arises in the "spiritual constitutionality," and not from any particular revival season. If this be true, the continued impression depends not on the mere emotional wave of the revival season, as contended by Bro. Young, but on the continuation of the religious consciousness. While one lasts, the other remains. One preacher even claims to have felt the call to preach before his conversion. This, I might add, is not far from my own experience.

Singularly enough, Bro. Young concedes the whole question when he says, "I resisted the call ten years." Surely, if Bro. Young had not had a conscious call more enduring than the brief experiences of a Summer revival season, good Father Kendall could never have persuaded so conscientious a man to accept a license even at the hands of the preferred Quarterly Conference. The Summer revival had come and gone ten times over in his case; and I venture the assertion that my good brother learned in these ten years the futility of fighting against God; so that since his entrance upon the sacred office of the gospel ministry he has been a "man of one work," to his own gratifying success and the glory of his Lord.

As to Bro. Young's not understanding my last proposition, that "there is too much comedy and not enough tragedy in the ordinary estimate of the Methodist preacher's career," I must think he stands alone among our brethren; yet, for his special benefit, I will venture to explain.

In the first place, I never before thought of the light in which I might "appear before my brethren." I write the convictions of an honest heart, and if that appears "ridiculous" to Bro. Young or anybody else, light must be the thought. But I was rather discussing a great theme, suggested by Bro. Young's complaint against licensing preachers by the District Conference, than replying to him personally.

I mean simply this: There are those, on the one hand, who view the ministry merely in the light of a profession, and enter upon it from a "bread-and-butter" consideration, instead of weighing the awful responsibilities involved. Then there are those, on the other hand, who only see the delightful side until they have "tasted and seen" that there are greater hardships to be endured here than in any other respectable vocation in life. They ought, like Bro. Young and myself, to feel some of the real tragic experiences before they sell out and go into something they know nothing about. These things that try men's hearts are calculated to turn back many who are fearful and faint-hearted, who saith there is a lion in the way, whose impressions are at best but transitory.

A sublimer tragedy was never enacted on the stage of human activity than that of the rise and progress of the Christian religion, very largely borne by the gospel ministry. May God give us grace, that we may not convert the tragic truth into mere fiction! Yours truly,

W. L. ANDERSON.

If the man does not stop the cough the cough stops the man; stops his appetite, his sleep, his pleasure and his work. So called "cough remedies" sometimes relieve but they don't go deep enough to cure. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures coughs and diseases of the respiratory organs perfectly and permanently. It stops the cough. It heals the lungs, stops the hemorrhage, if the lungs are bleeding, and by purifying the blood and increasing the action of the blood-making glands enriches every organ with the good blood which alone will make a good body.

"My husband had been coughing for years and people frankly told me that he would go into consumption," writes Mrs. John Shireman, of No. 865 25th Place, Chicago, Ill. "He had such terrible coughing spells, we not only grew much alarmed, but looked for the bursting of a blood vessel or a hemorrhage at almost any time. After three days' coughing he was too weak to cross the room. The doctor did him no good. I stated the case to a druggist, who handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. My husband's recovery was remarkable. In three days after he began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he was up and around, and in two more days he went to work. Two bottles cured him."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness. They produce permanent benefit and do not re-act on the system. One is a gentle laxative, two a cathartic dose.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1900.

It is better to be light-hearted than light-headed.

Asking your neighbor's pardon for an offense committed or for an injustice done him may seem harder than storming a battery, but it is a far more manly and courageous thing, and is the only course open to a true Christian.

The church member who fancies it will not matter for him now and then to post his books on the Sabbath, make a Sunday purchase, or go on a Sunday excursion, may be thoroughly respectable in the eyes of the world, but he lacks a vast deal of being righteous and God-fearing.

How lamentable is the fact that when a fellow-Christian is going down hill, some church members, instead of endeavoring to assist him, help to push him on down the road to ruin and despair by turning a cold shoulder and leaving him to himself. Many a disciple who is honest and cultured and truthful, is on the other hand proud and horribly selfish. How important it is for us all to heed the exhortation of the Apostle Paul: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

DEATH IN THE CUP.

A panic prevails among the beer-drinkers throughout England growing out of the fact that more than sixty persons have died recently in and around Manchester from the effects of arsenic poisoning in beer, and over a thousand persons are seriously ill from the same cause. In order to increase their profits, English brewers, in making cheap beer, have been using glucose or sugar, instead of malt and hops, impure sulphuric acid containing more or less arsenic being employed in the manufacture of glucose. According to an analysis made only a few days ago, some of the beers being sold in England contain arsenic sufficient to kill any persistent drinker. As a result of the scare, hundreds of gallons of beer have been poured into the sewers of Manchester and Liverpool, and drinkers are agitating the securing of legislation providing for the compulsory use by brewers of malt and hops.

A considerable falling off, for a time at least, in the consumption of beer in England is likely to be another result of this panic among beer guzzlers, scarcely any of whom will fail to be benefited by even temporary temperance. Would to heaven that we might have such a scare among beer and whisky drinkers both in England and America, that they would be afraid to imbibe any more of the damnable stuff that debauches both soul and body, and that is more destructive than war, pestilence, and famine combined!

Yes, death lurks in every cup of rum. The alcohol that is found in all forms of malt and distilled liquors is not less baneful and deadly than arsenic and other poisonous adulterations frequently detected in intoxicating beverages. Alcohol, it is true, does not kill so speedily as arsenic, but there are a thousand proofs of its frightfully deleterious and destructive nature.

ENTERING INTO OTHER MEN'S LABORS.

The successful man, the one who achieves gratifying results and who brings about the consummation of important plans and undertakings, whether it be in church or secular affairs, is almost, without exception, the recipient of high praise and general honor. Nor is it improper that the toiler who, by reason of diligence and skill, outstrips his fellow-toilers should be accorded higher honor than the rest. The servant who, by trading, gains ten pounds with the pound entrusted to him is deserving of larger reward than the servant who also, with a single pound, gains only five pounds. Faithfulness and ability, when they bring things to pass, are not only worthy of recognition, but are usually sure of it.

But while the world delights to honor those who succeed, whether in Church or State, or in the marketplace, it seldom stops to ask whether the one upon whom it lavishes adulation and admiration is entitled to all the merit and eclat of some great achievement or splendid result.

It not infrequently happens in the accomplishment of some important work, especially in the kingdom of Christ, that the real hero, the one who, amid huge difficulties and grave discouragements, laid the foundations for a grand superstructure, is almost unhonored and unsung, while he who comes after and finds things ready to his hand, receives the whole measure of praise, because, perchance, he appears upon the scene at the supreme moment of the completion of previous plans and efforts, or just when the cap-stone is to be laid. Many a glorious spiritual result that comes to pass in our day, or in connection with our work as individuals, has been made possible only by the zeal, consecration and self-sacrifice of those who have preceded us in the service of the Master. Had it not been for the marvelous faith, self-denial, and courage of the pioneers of Methodism in America, the work and lot of the Methodist itinerant of the present would be infinitely harder than it is. There is scarcely a pastoral charge anywhere that now is regarded as delightful and desirable but what once was uninviting and barren.

How often it is the case in the kingdom of Christ, as well as in secular affairs, that men "reap that whereon they bestowed no labor." Others labor and we enter into their labors. The evangelist who holds a grand meeting somewhere, during which scores are converted and brought into the church, oftimes receives most of the credit therefor. Yet were it not for the diligence, integrity, and faithfulness of the pastors of the community where the meeting is held, the efforts of the most gifted evangelist would result in failure. We do not mean by what we have said to make war on evangelists, nor do we mean to hint that they should not be honored for what they accomplish through their skill and consecration. We are of the conviction, however, that the devoted pastor who sows the seed of a splendid harvest should also be remembered and duly honored.

While it is true, the world over, that one sows, and another reaps, let us not be so ungrateful as to forget altogether the self-sacrificing sower who went forth when the season was bleak and the field uninviting, that he might scatter the precious seed. In many a city and town where today there is an elegant church-building, a comfortable parsonage and a well-organized membership, some poor itinerant in other days, though he faced many difficulties and endured no little discomfort, yet kept faithfully at his post and prepared the way for others. In nearly every mission field the same story is repeated. There are first weary years of seed-sowing and preparation, during which the servants of God many a time grow discouraged, and wonder when there will be signs of a gracious harvest. But their labor, though oftimes seemingly unproductive, is not thrown away. Others coming after them find a people prepared for the Lord, and witness a large and rapid ingathering into the church and the Master's kingdom.

While honoring those who, though favored of fortune, have proved themselves worthy of a good degree of honor, let us not be unappreciative of those who have toiled heroically in obscurity against heavy odds, and without whose patient and persistent efforts many a success which we today enjoy could not have been won. There is no grander hero than the servant of the Master who, with little prospect of earthly reward, does his best amid adverse circumstances and grievous discouragements.

CRUSADE AGAINST VICE IN NEW YORK.

On Nov. 27 a meeting of representative business men of New York City was held in the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of inaugurating a vigorous crusade against vice, which of late has grown so bold as to excite general indignation and the most serious alarm. A letter was read from Bishop Potter, who stated that he believed it expedient at this juncture for him to retire from the head of the movement on account of the fact that an ecclesiastic is often a "persona non grata" to many people in an effort of this kind, and advised the appointment of a strong committee of laymen to plan the tactics of the crusade, and push it. An address was delivered by Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, in which he charged the mayor with the responsibility for the present outrageous condition of affairs in Gotham. Charles S. Stewart, who presided over the meeting, mentioned the humiliating fact that certain members of the police force are in collusion with the criminals and the dens of vice, the proprietors of which pay the police monthly for protection. Men and women on the east side who have complained to the police have been told by them to get out if they did not like the conditions, and numbers have been forced to leave their homes and their business on account of the iniquity around them. A committee of fifteen prominent men has been appointed to take the steps necessary to bring to account those responsible for the existing abuses.

DEMANDS UPON CHINA.

"Administration officials continue sanguine that the ministers of the powers at Peking will soon reach a common ground of agreement in the demands to be made upon the Chinese imperial government in satisfaction for the Boxer outrages. The State Department is in communication with the ministers and ambassadors of the United States to the European courts, and advices which have come from them from time to time lead the officials here to hope that the powers will be brought to the position maintained by the United States in dealing with the Chinese, viz.: That there should not be demands made upon the imperial government which it is not able to fulfill. Our government has persistently held to this view in the progress of the negotiations between the ministers at Peking, and if the principle of this contention can be maintained in the combined note to be handed to the Chinese plenipotentiaries, a decided advantage will be had at the start."

A MISREPRESENTATION.

It is a well-known fact that it is a common thing for heterodox liberals to grossly misrepresent the views of the mass of orthodox believers in the Bible. One piece of misrepresentation is that which declares that the most of orthodox Christians delight in the idea that the finally impenitent will suffer torments in hell. This is one of the devil's lies, repeated by his agents, Universalist and Unitarian ministers. In a sermon recently preached by a Universalist minister, in a city not far from where I live, he is reported to have said: "For centuries men have been terrorized by the thought that God was going to vindicate his offended majesty by casting forth ordained thousands into a lake of fire, where their sufferings would serve to heighten the joys of the blessed." Then this broad man remarked: "From this view of punishment Universalism distinctly revolts." Yes, and a multitude of truly orthodox Christians revolt from such a falsehood—a lie which real Christians are not responsible for. Either that minister is densely ignorant of the views of orthodox people, or else he purposely caricatured their belief and their feelings. True Christians, the world over, contemplate the eternal doom of those who die unsaved with deep sadness. There may be many formal professors of religion who look with indifference upon the eternal destiny of the finally impenitent, but it is a gross libel on Christians to say that the future sufferings of the ungodly "would serve to heighten the joys of the blessed." But the evident object of Universalist preachers, and such as agree with them, is to present a grossly distorted representation of what orthodox people believe and of what they feel, just for the sake of getting their hearers to detest such views, and all the more readily believe in Universalism. To present false views, charging orthodox Christians with holding them, and then declaring that such views are not sustained by the Bible, is a very easy thing to do, and it may carry considerable weight with those silly souls who attend such so-called "preaching." But no such sophistry can remove the solemn truth that those who die in their sins "shall go away into eternal punishment," and "the smoke of their torment goeth up forever and ever."

C. H. WETHERBE.

DEATH OF SISTER LEGGETT.

A special to the New Orleans Picayune from Hazlehurst, Miss., dated Nov. 29, contains the following sad announcement of the death of Sister Leggett, wife of Rev. J. T. Leggett, of the Mississippi Conference:

The remains of Mrs. J. T. Leggett, who died here yesterday evening, were carried this morning to Woodville, Miss., via New Orleans, for interment. Her death was a great shock to the community. She was the wife of the Methodist minister of this place, who survives her, with four small children. She was Miss Kate Brown before her marriage, a daughter of a Methodist minister, who lived a number of years at Woodville, Miss. She was a most estimable woman, of many Christian virtues, whose death is a great loss to the church and the community.

THAT AUDITING COMMITTEE AGAIN.

At the last session of the Louisiana Conference an attempt was made to have an Auditing Committee appointed to receive the reports of and moneys collected by the pastors, and to check the one against the other, thus insuring the agreement of the reports of the treasurers of the various Conference funds with the report of the statistical secretary. The idea was to choose this committee from the treasurers already serving, thus in no wise increasing their labor (but lessening it), or in any way increasing the Conference machinery. It was also hoped that by having the pastors pay over all their moneys at one time and place, and at the same time file their statistical reports, to save much valuable time.

The need of such a committee has long been felt by the present statistical secretary, and the resolution was an attempt to remedy a grievous defect. The resolution was killed as soon as offered by a motion to lay on the table.

Now comes the Pacific Methodist Advocate with the same suggestion, and it receives also the strong endorsement of editor of the Wesleyan Advocate. Our own editor strengthens the good cause with these words: "As the case now stands, an Auditing Committee seems to be highly expedient."

By all means let us have this committee.

WM. G. EVANS.

ENTERTAINING MINISTERS DURING CONFERENCE.

Frequently it is said that in these times people are not as willing to entertain ministers during Conference sessions as they were in former years. In explanation of this representation, which appears to have some foundation, many things are put forth, such as the difference in the way of living, the necessity of keeping servants, apartments, instead of houses, and many other things.

There is one which probably has more to do with it than anything else: neglect of the common courtesies of life on the part of the guests. In some cases no attention is paid to the hours for meals or retirement; in others persons are brought home by the guests without previous notice, or the guests themselves remain away when expected; and others show no sense of obligation. In a Conference held during the last Spring a family belonging to another denomination, out of a fraternal spirit, entertained in the very best way they were capable of a young minister of prominence, who availed himself of everything that was done for him with every evidence of enjoying himself, but not a line has the family received since his departure, nor did he express his thanks in departing. He was pastor of a large and important church. This led the family, without making any reference to this case, to converse with a number of their friends, and seven others, who like themselves received guests who were bright and able, and pastors of important churches, had not heard a syllable since those whom they entertained had departed. Whoever receives entertainment without performing any services, and makes no acknowledgment either on departing or subsequently, is either discourteous or palpably careless, which comes to the same thing. Our belief is that it is never difficult, where there are families enough to do it, to secure entertainment for any religious body a second time if those who have been entertained the first time have obeyed the injunction of Solomon, "A man that hath friends must show himself friendly."—New York Advocate.

A NEW BOOK.

This book elucidates and enforces the meaning of the watchword which has been adopted by the Student Volunteer Movement, "The evangelization of the world in this generation," and contains a practical discussion of the various aspects of that grand and momentous undertaking, its difficulties as well as its possibilities being duly considered. In defining what this movement signifies, Mr. Mott states that it does not mean the conversion of the world within this generation. "Our part," he remarks, "consists in bringing the Gospel to bear on unsaved men. The results are with the men whom we would reach and with the Spirit of God. . . . It is not to be regarded as a prophecy. Stress is placed on what may be done and ought to be done, not on what is actually to occur."

The author makes it clear that the thing proposed is not a wild, impossible dream, but that it is perfectly feasible, reasonable, and a matter of supreme importance. According to a careful estimate, an increase of the present missionary force of the world from 15,000 to 50,000 would be sufficient to render possible the evangelization of every foreign land within a generation, and, as Mr. Mott says, the church in Christian lands is well able to supply the number of missionaries required for this work. In fact, less than one-fiftieth of the Christian students who will graduate during this generation would be necessary for the accomplishment of this noble project. Mr. Mott's volume is full of stirring facts and figures, and is of a most inspiring character. It is calculated to do much toward helping on the movement in the interest of which it is written, and ought to be widely read.

NOTES.

***

***

Dr. A. J. Gordon's church in Boston gave last year twice as much money for missions as it expended upon itself for all causes. A like missionary spirit ought to pervade every live church.

***

Said Pres. J. W. Bashford, of Ohio Wesleyan College, recently: "The training offered by our Christian colleges will be the best if, with equal material advantages, it is thoroughly Christian. Christ alone can develop perfect manhood."

***

The Union Thanksgiving service held in the Carondelet Street Church, on the twenty-ninth ultimo, was largely attended, over four hundred persons being present, and the occasion was quite impressive and enjoyable. Dr. W. H. LaPrade was at his best, and treated the audience to a magnificent and captivating discourse, using as his text, Rom. viii, 31, 32. The Thanksgiving offering, though not as large as was expected, amounted to $53.90, which will be applied in rebuilding our churches at Galveston.

We feel sure that all our readers have enjoyed the charming "Autumnalia" poems, contributed by one of the ADVOCATE patrons, that have recently appeared in our columns. The third and last of the series is printed in this week's issue, and will be found on the sixth page.

Last week some generous-hearted person at Alexandria, La., sent us a check for $10 as a Thanksgiving offering for missions. May heavenly benedictions rest upon the giver, whose name was withheld. The contribution has been forwarded to Nashville to Dr. W. R. Lambuth, and will be applied as directed.

Much apprehension is felt in Europe over the continued illness of the Czar, who is said to be of feeble constitution. His death would be regarded as an international calamity, and would very likely disturb the peace of Europe, since there is grave doubt as to whether his successor would prove so peaceably inclined.

The returns show that the constitutional amendment recently voted on in California, providing for the exemption of churches from taxation, was carried by a good majority. California is now in line in this matter with every other State in the Union. The church people in that great Western State look upon it as a signal victory, which was won only after a hard fight.

Rev. Dr. J. L. Pierce, of the Louisiana Conference, who for the past two years has served the church at Monroe, La., with great acceptability, has been transferred to the North Texas Conference, and stationed at First Church, Dallas. Dr. Pierce's many friends in Louisiana will part with him with no little regret. According to the daily papers, the Doctor preached his farewell sermon at Monroe on last Sunday evening.

The man is heard from again who declaims about "Christian nations sending missionaries to China and other heathen countries, and with them sending opium, intoxicants, and bullets." No Christian nations, as such, except the Russian, and perhaps some of the Catholic countries, send missionaries abroad. All the rest are sent by voluntary organizations, and these neither take nor send "opium, intoxicants, nor bullets."—New York Christian Advocate.

The assistant editor had the pleasure on last Sunday morning of worshiping with the congregation at Louisiana Avenue Church, where he heard a most excellent and impressive sermon by the pastor, Rev. R. H. Wynn, who is in great favor with his flock, and whose efforts are being attended with gratifying success. It being the first Sabbath of the month, the sacrament of Lord's Supper was celebrated, nearly every member of the congregation communing. Bro. Wynn's flock will be sorely disappointed should he not be returned to them. He is being greeted by fine congregations.

At the late session of the Arkansas Conference, Dr. Hoss, the brainy editor of the Nashville Advocate, said some spicy things about the troubles of an editor. He mentioned the fact—for it is a fact—that some people send an editor articles which they would not think of publishing if they were in the editor's place. It is all right, however, if the editor is unwise enough to take risk of shooting off the load. The Doctor also mentioned (tell it not in Gath; publish it not in Askelon) that some giraffes in our church hold their heads too high to become agents for their church papers. They would not, he asserted, step around the corner to get two subscribers.

Bishop R. K. Hargrove, who will this week preside over the North Mississippi Conference at West Point, and the week following over the Mississippi Conference at Brookhaven, is a man of striking and comely appearance, majestic bearing, and well-rounded character. Though his locks are white from the frosts of seventy winters, his face is ruddy and unwrinkled, and it is quite evident from his figure that he is robust and active. He is a strong and impressive preacher, an excellent executive officer, and is versed in practical affairs. He will receive a most cordial welcome at the hands of the Mississippi brethren. May he be richly endued with heavenly wisdom and grace for the important work before him.

Millsaps College.

It will be gratifying to our friends to know that the college is having a year of great prosperity. We have enrolled more than two hundred students, and the work of the session is progressing most satisfactorily. The boys come from every section of the State. North Mississippi has a larger representation than at any time before. The earnestness with which the students take hold of the work promises gratifying results.

It is a matter of pride, as well as of satisfaction, that our status as a college has been recognized and defined by the General Board of Education. We have a place, and an unquestioned place, among the very small number of recognized colleges of the first rank in Southern Methodism. The only thing that distresses us is the inadequacy of our resources. We ought to develop in several important directions, but we dare not assume obligations until we are prepared to meet them. The wrecks of some of our once promising colleges, and the deplorable embarrassments of others, warn us against reckless ventures. Yet we must suffer disparagement in public esteem unless we move forward. The demands of a growing institution are very great, and if we maintain even our present rank, our income for our rent expenses must be increased from some source. Facilities to meet the ever-expanding needs of developing departments must be enlarged. Our equipment in laboratories and libraries is wholly inadequate for the work expected of us. Before the next session begins we ought to have another building for dormitory purposes. We are looking longingly to the Twentieth Century Movement for help. May we not be disappointed.

ITEMS FROM COLUMBUS, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: Please give space to a few facts from Columbus. The record shows that during the past two years 270 have been added to the church, making a total membership of 700. We now have 3 Sunday-schools, with an aggregate enrollment of 550—a net gain of 2 schools and 250 scholars. The 3 Epworth Leagues have a membership of 180—a net gain of 2 Leagues and 140 members. All the other interests of the church in good condition. All assessments ordered by the Conference and other financial obligations ready to be reported in full at Conference. The Twentieth Century Movement is growing among our people. It is a great strain upon the ability of any faithful pastor to meet the growing demands of this large and very pleasant charge.

A Fine Report from Shaw, Miss.

I spent last Sunday in Shaw with Bro. H. C. Morehead, and we took up a collection for the Twentieth Century Fund, and the collection, with the amount already subscribed, amounted to over $300. I believe this is about the largest collection of any small place I have known of. Shaw is one of the nicest stations in the Delta. Bro. Morehead has a strong hold upon his people, and I am sure that his report will be about the best that will be made at our Annual Conference. Quite a number have been added to the church, and the pastor has already been paid his salary in full, and all the Conference collections will be paid.

CHINA WITH EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

On Friday, Nov. 23, the Epworth Leaguers of Carrollton Avenue Church, with their friends, spent a most enjoyable evening in China, at the home of Mrs. Jamison. Chrysanthemums were there in bewildering profusion, under the soft light shed by the many-colored swinging lanterns, and fetching "tea-girls," clad in the bright garbs of their sisters over the sea. The guests had been bidden by dainty and unique cards, on which the artist of the League had sketched the "Heathen Chinee" in all attitudes and expressions, and the writing on which, in true Chinese style, must be read from the top downwards.

As a fitting prelude to the evening's enjoyment, Rev. Geo. D. Parker, the president of the League, invoked the Divine blessing on the gathering.

Miss Wilkinson, in interesting word-pictures, led the company in a day's ramble through the woodlands and up the sunny mountain-slopes of the Celestial Empire, and a well-chosen party of conversationalists, led by Miss Eddie Bentley, told of the customs and manners of the yellow man, from the cradle—if he have such—to the grave, touching on the treatment and raising of children, manner of life, food, marriage, death, and period of mourning.

Mrs. Estopinal and Miss Wood recited, and read selections breathing the missionary spirit, followed by a vocal solo, "Cast Thy Bread upon the Waters," by Miss Williams.

Instrumental music was contributed by Mrs. Mulder on the organ, and Messrs. Bamberg and Haamer on the cornet and violin, and a vocal quartette by Misses Nicolaisen and Keenley, and Messrs. Bamberg and Ahten, besides several spirited missionary songs, joined in by the entire company.

During a vocal solo by Mr. Ahten the guests made a voluntary offering, dropping their "mites" into a Chinese bowl which stood ready to receive them, to be blessed in sending the "good tidings of great joy" to the lands that lie toward the sunrise.

A number of Chinese curios were displayed—pictures, coins, newspapers, shoes and fans, loaned by friends and an obliging and interested Chinaman neighbor.

Mrs. Stockton gave an interesting little talk on her acquaintance and dealings with the Chinamen in her mission class. She kindly presented the League with a handsome painted feather fan made in China, to be sold to help swell the collection.

During the informal program, and at its conclusion, the tea-girls deftly served the guests with Chinese tea and wafers, and American chocolate and cake.

A laughable feature of the evening's entertainment was a "chop-sticks and rice" contest, Miss Coleman carrying off the prize for eating the famous Chinese dish in the approved Chinese fashion.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Notes from Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss.

The fourth Quarterly Conference for Capitol Street Church has just been held. The results for the year are most gratifying. The salaries of pastor and presiding elder are paid in full. We hope to report all the Conference collections in full; if not, the deficit will be small. During the present year this church has had upon it demends that it never had before, and several hundred dollars heve been raised in excess of last year.

At the beginning of the year the Board of Stewards obligated themselves for the rent of the parsonage, and domiciled their pastor in a large, commodious residence, in comfort and convenience not excelled by any in the Conference.

The Woman's Home Mission Society—Mrs. T. B. Holloman, president—has been zealously active in the work entrusted to them. It is hoped that within another year their labors will be rewarded by the erection of a parsonage commensurate with the requirements of this church.

Our Woman's Foreign Missionary Society—Mrs. T. S. West, president—has shown a zeal for missionary enterprise not excelled anywhere, and will show a most gratifying report of their labors.

Following their footsteps is the Young People's Missionary Society, a band of consecrated young people, who are developing for still larger service.

The Sunday-school, League, and all departments of the church are working in the spirit of unity for the upbuilding of the Master's cause.

Without invidious distinction we may refer to our faithful and efficient Sunday-school superintendent, Bro. I. C. Enochs. It is said that when called away by business to distant cities he will time his return home at least by Saturday night, so as to be at his post of duty the next morning. Notwithstanding the large business interests that demand his attention no man is more devotedly loyal to all the great enterprises of the church, or held in higher esteem because of his large-hearted generosity.

Suffer me a word about our presiding elder. His labors have been abundant, and he has fully met the demands of his office. Well-rounded, fully equipped for the work of the ministry, sweet-spirited and lovable, he enjoys the confidence and affection of his brethren. I am sure that the sentiment of both preachers and laymen of the Jackson district is voiced in the hope that the present relation will continue for the next two years.

About forty accessions to the church will be reported.

Many thanks, and may God graciously bless the givers. Please, brethren and sisters, send me something.

Are Your Kidneys Weak?

Weak or Diseased Kidneys Poison the Blood, Break Down the Entire System and Bring on Bright's Disease.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, all our Readers May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolntely Free by Mail.

You know what happens to a sewer when it becomes clogged, don't you?

Do you know what happens to the human system when the kidneys become clogged? They are unable to throw out the impurities from the blood and become infected with poisons; they decay, fall apart and pass out in the urine; the blood, unfiltered, carries the poison all over the system, and if not checked death follows. The kidneys are the sewers of the human system.

Laboratory where Swamp-Root, the World-Famous Kidney Remedy, is Prepared.

When your kidneys are not doing their work, some of the symptoms which prove it to you are pain or dull ache in the back, excess of uric acid, gravel, rheumatic pains, sediment in the urine, scanty supply, scalding irritation in passing it, obliged to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night to empty the bladder; sleeplessness, nervous irritability, dizziness, irregular heart, breathlessness, sallow, unhealthy complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes; sometimes the feet, limbs or body bloat, loss of ambition, general weakness and debility.

When you are sick, then, no matter what you think the name of your disease is, the first thing you should do is to afford aid to your kidneys by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Perhaps you are in doubt about your kidneys and want to find out. Here's a simple test. Take from your urine passed when you arise in the morning about two ounces; place in a glass or bottle and let it stand for twenty-four hours. If upon examination you find any settlings or sediment, if it is milky or cloudy, or if particles float about in it, disease has gotten a foothold in your kidneys and Nature is calling for help.

If you have the slightest symptom of kidney or bladder trouble, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, you would profit by taking Swamp-Root every now and then as a preventative, and thus absolutely forestall kidney and bladder troubles.

The famous new discovery, Swamp-Root, has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE by which all of its readers who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail; also a book telling all about kidney and bladder diseases, and containing some of the thousands of testimonial letters from men and women reclaimed to lives of happiness and usefulness by the means of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a free sample bottle, and to be sure and state that they read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

AUTUMNALIA.—III.

The glorious panorama of the forests, displayed in the most brilliant colors, mingled in all possible shades and tints, is a sight worth traveling a hundred miles from the city to see. One who has seen the forests clad only in green would never imagine that one or two frosty nights could do such a world of delicate, rich, varied and magnificent painting. For miles upon miles one may see perpetually before the eye every possible combination of green, yellow, orange and red—an enrapturing feast of colors spread upon a canvas that only the world is broad enough to display. To see the leaves falling in such a paradise, on a quiet Autumn evening, is a pleasure which only the lovers of nature know how to enjoy.

FOLIA CADENTIA.

One by one they lose their hold;
Some are crimson, some are gold,
Some are pied and some are brown—
All come circling gently down.
Quitting shrubs and lofty tree.
Giddy things the leaves must be;
Wafted through the airy ocean,
Whirling all in glad commotion,
Swaying oft with unheard sound,
Veering coyly to the ground.
Trembling on the plain below,
Kissing breezes o'er them blow,
Soothing the vast company
With low, rustling harmony.
Fading each without a sigh,
Cheery deaths the leaves must die!
Covering on the hills and dales
Tiny plants from frosty gales,
Comfort they to others give,
Die that other leaves may live,
Beautify the mourning earth,
Give to future glories birth.
In autumnal splendors clad,
Their parting is not sad.
They gave Spring and Summer grace,
They give charm to Autumn's face.
Gums and oaks rejoice in red,
Shumachs blaze with crimson head,
Hickories change from green to gold,
Yellow poplars now behold—
Every tree its coloring knows
Constant as each tinting rose
Falling from their stations high,
Monarchs' crowns beneath us lie,
Realms bereft and kings made bare
Yield the tints that mingle here!
Mansion hall was never spread
With such carpet as we tread,
When the earth herself adorns
With the gifts of all her sons.

H.

THE LORD'S TENTH.

There was, many years ago, a lad of sixteen, who left home to seek his fortune. All his worldly possessions were tied up in a bundle, which he carried in his hand. As he trudged along, he met an old neighbor, the captain of a canal boat; and the following conversation took place, which changed the whole current of the boy's life:

"Well, William, where are you going?"

"I don't know," he answered. "Father is too poor to keep me at home any longer, and says I must now make a living for myself."

William then told his friend that the only trade he knew anything about was soap and candle making, at which he helped his father while at home.

"Well," said the old man, "let me pray with you and give you a little advice, and then I will let you go." They both knelt upon the towpath (the path along which the horses that drew the canal boat walked). The old man prayed earnestly for William, and then this advice was given: "Some one will soon be the leading soap-maker in New York. It can be you as well as any one. I hope it may be. Be a good man, give your heart to Christ, give the Lord all that belongs to him of every dollar you earn, make an honest soap, give a full pound, and I am certain you will be a great, good and rich man."

When the boy arrived in the city he found it hard to get work. Lonesome and far from home, he remembered his mother's words, and the last words of the canal boat captain. He was then and there led to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." He united with the church. He remembered his promise to the old captain. The first dollar he earned brought up the question of the Lord's part. He looked into the Bible, and found the Jews were commanded to give one-tenth. So he said, "If the Lord will take that, I will give that," and so he did. Ten cents of every dollar was sacred to the Lord.

After a few years, both partners died, and William came to be the sole owner of the business. He now resolved to keep his promise to the captain. He made an honest soap, gave a full pound, and instructed his bookkeeper to open an account with the Lord, and carry one-tenth of all his income to that account. He was prospered. His business grew, his family was blessed, his soap sold, and he grew rich faster than he ever hoped. He then decided to give the Lord two-tenths, and he prospered more than ever. Then three-tenths, then four-tenths, then five-tenths. He then educated his family, settled all his plans for life, and told the Lord he would give him all his income. He prospered more than ever.

This is the true story of Mr. Colgate, who has given millions of dollars to the Lord's cause, and left a name that will never die.—Morning Star.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Recently a young man suffering punishment for theft, told the story of his life to a sympathetic visitor, little dreaming that, between the lines, his listener was reading a partial excuse for his conduct.

"I was brought up on a farm," said he, "and knew nothing of the value of money until I came to town. I had never really owned a dollar. Sometimes mother would give me a little money, but she always told me how it was to be spent. Very often father gave me a calf or a colt, but when he saw fit, he sold my property without consulting me, and always pocketed the money. They were always good to me, and bought me what I needed. Poor old mother! This is very hard for her to bear. I never thought when I left home to seek a fortune that this would be the fortune. Sometimes I have thought that if I had known the value of money, I would never have come to this, and I have wished that I had started from home with a better knowledge of business."

"No wonder!" thought the visitor, "business principles based on the theory that 'might makes right' are not calculated to win success."

It was not, however, the fact that the boy had no idea of the value of money, or that his property was taken away from him without his knowledge or consent, that had the greatest influence in bringing the boy to State's prison; but the constant, though unconscious, influence for evil that the parents exerted over him by their appropriation of that which did not belong to them. They had in themselves the first principles of theft; these were inherited by their boy, and strengthened by the training he received, until, to their great consternation, the end came in disgrace.

That is only one of the ways in which crime can be traced home to beginnings so small as to cause no uneasiness. There is a great work for parents to do. They should remember to carefully study themselves, to see whether they can not discover a reason for the trait which seems so unaccountable in the child; and perhaps they may also discover its remedy.—National Stockman and Farmer.

GRACE M'KINLEY, SCHOOLMA'AM.

It is seldom that a young girl, who may have wealth and the highest social position, chooses the drudgery and irksome duties of a school-teacher. Such a unique specimen of fair American maidenhood is found in the orphan niece of President McKinley, Miss Grace McKinley. A year ago, last June, the President and Mrs. McKinley, with a party of friends—cabinet officers and other prominent officials—went to that staid and distinguished seat of learning, Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Massachusetts, to see Miss Grace take her degree of B. A. Few events in the official life of our present Executive have given him such genuine pleasure as this graduation. Miss Grace stood at the head of her class, while her record, during the entire course, had been one of praiseworthy endeavor. The President, to show his appreciation of her success, bestowed on his niece a beautiful diamond pin. The graduation dress, a dainty creation of white chiffon and lace, was Mrs. McKinley's gift. It was made at the White House, under the personal supervision of its gentle mistress.

It was after this great event that the President offered to adopt Miss Grace, formally, and thus make her the reigning belle of the nation—the social leader of the capital—the only young girl in the great presidential mansion at Washington.

This was surely a tempting offer, but it did not swerve this beautiful and brilliant girl from a long-cherished aspiration. She wished to use her gifts in a fitting way—in one to which she had endeavored to train herself during her long and severe probation at Mount Holyoke. She chose the arduous profession of a school-teacher, and this Fall, on her own application, sustained by her record at college, she secured a position in the high school of Middletown, Connecticut. She began her duties in September.—Success.

WHAT IS YOUR SHARE OF THE RESPONSIBILITY?

The extent of the liquor traffic in the United States can hardly be comprehended by the average mind. The amount of money involved and the number of men engaged are staggering to belief. A writer in Arnold's practical Sunday-school lesson commentary gives the following figures:

There are about 225,000 liquor-dealers and about 1,200,000 bar-tenders in the United States. More liquor is sold in one year than there is pork, wheat and corn combined. The cost of liquor for one year is nearly twice as much as the capital of all the national banks. Thirteen millions bushels of grain are annually distilled. In 1895 the output of silver was $64,000,000, the tariff receipts were $125,000,000, and the cost of all departments of government was $375,000,000f while the drink bill of this republic was $1,025,000,000. These figures are simply stupendous. The physical and moral results of this condition of affairs are shown by the fact that, in the State of Ohio alone, out of 9,430 insane people, 5,486 cases are traced to liquor; of 16,335 criminals 12,596 were drunk when they broke the law. In addition to all this eighty per cent. of all pauperism is chargeable to this hellish traffic. Will not God visit us in judgment for these things? I believe he will, unless as a people we quickly repent. The worst feature of this case is that the average Christian voter considers the silver or tariff questions of more importance than the temperance question. I am satisfied that the correct settlement of this great question lies with the professed followers of Christ. I fear that there is a mighty army of careless and wicked servants to-day who are not prepared to give a joyful account of their stewardship. As individual Christians we are not responsible for the destruction of this un-Christian traffic, but we are responsible for doing our utmost to outlaw and abolish it. Are we doing this in every way we can?—Michigan Advocate.

6. We never repent of having eaten too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain have cost us the evils which never happened.
9. Take things always by the smooth handle.

MARSHALL—Mrs. MATTIE MARSHALL was born near Clinton, Hinds county, Miss., Sept. 28, 1840, and died at her home in Jackson, Miss., Oct. 20, 1900.

On Dec. 11, 1867, she was united in marriage to Mr. H. C. Marshall, and of this happy union seven children were born, three of whom have gone on before to welcome the one that has just taken her departure, and four remain to mourn her loss and to cherish her memory.

At a very early age she was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, her subsequent life being that of the consistent Christian, affectionate wife, and tender, loving mother.

During her last sickness, which was protracted, she realized her approaching end, and to her loved ones, pastor and friends she talked of the future, with confident trust in Him whom she believed was able to keep that which was committed unto Him. As the time for her departure drew nigh, she called around her her loved ones, and bequeathed to them this message of love and comfort: "Don't be distressed, dear children; mother is so happy. She trusted Him in life, and she can trust Him in death."

Her end was peace. How the familiar figure and voice will be missed none can feel save those who knew and loved her best; but God, in His infinite goodness, will make a silver rift in the lowering cloud that has fallen over them. Her surviving loved ones may well accept the summing up of the inspired picture of the true woman, "A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised."

'Tis hard to break the tender cord
When love has bound the heart;
'Tis hard, so hard, to speak the words,
"We must forever part."

Dearest loved one, we must lay thee
In the peaceful grave's embrace;
But thy memory will be cherished
Till we see thy heavenly face.

C. F. EMBRY.

NEWMAN—On the eleventh of October, 1900 at her home in Wilkinson county, Miss., the spirit of Mrs. KATE HARRIET NEWMAN left the perishing body and returned to God. She was the daughter of Thomas Brannan, a man noted in Zion, and was born in this same county, Sept. 18, 1838. On the seventeenth of May, 1865, she was married to Josiah A. Knight, who died April 28, 1867. In 1870 she became the wife of Reuben M. Newman, who died in 1885. Of her six children, all by her first marriage, the following four survive: Mrs. Lizzie J. Cavin, Mrs. Josephine Bunch, Thomas B. Knight, and Mrs. Emma Letitia Leake. In 1864, under the ministry of Rev. E. A. Flowers, she joined the Methodist Church, of which she continued a consistent member. To her children and grandchildren her memory is precious. Through many months of affliction the Lord brought her to her last hours, and in these she was ready, and prayed to "depart and be with Christ." Sublime, glorious consummation! "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches;" "And the day of death (is better) than the day of one's birth." (Prov. xxii. 1, and Ecc. vii 1.)

J. WILSON BROWN.

Washington, Miss.

FLEMMING—Died Nov. 5, 1900, MARY JANE FLEMMING, aged twelve years.

Mary was the second daughter of Bro. and Sister John Flemming, of the fifth ward of West Feliciana parish. The funeral services were held at New Hope Church (of which her parents are members), and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends. As a daughter, she was dutiful and affectionate. She seems to have been the favorite with her brothers and sisters. We weep not as those who believe there is no resurrection of the dead, but in our bereavement we look forward to that day when all shall rise from the dead and stand before the Judge, even Jesus our Savior, who to the faithful will say, "Come, ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." We trust that at that day Mary will be numbered among the blessed. Let us, then, as parents, relatives, and friends, "rightly number our days, and apply our hearts unto wisdom." I pray God's blessings upon the bereaved family.

G. P. WHITE.

HOVER—DAVID BRAINARD, son of D. B. and Mary Z. Hover, was born in Wesson, Miss., Sept. 14, 1895, and died in Sancier, Miss., Nov. 1, 1900, being five years and a few weeks old.

For many weeks our darling lingered upon life's border-land. Neither medical skill nor the most devoted attentions of loving hearts could stay the hand of disease.

"Brother," as he was affectionately called, was a remarkably bright and loving child. Happy was the home where all day long his busy feet "made music through the halls," and his childish prattle was sweetest melody to the mother's ear. But, alas! the little form, with snowy hands folded over the breast, has been borne to the quiet graveyard. Wasted by suffering, even the shadow of death could not dim the beauty of that pure face. The very peace of eternity gathered over it, and a smile dwelt upon the pallid lips as though an angel had kissed them. For five happy years there was one in the home upon whose brow rested the seal of immortality. Now the gentle Shepherd has folded him in his arms, and the stricken parents are linked to the world of angels. He has fulfilled his appointed mission, and while the tired body lies in dreamless slumber 'neath the green sod in the quiet Hazlehoro Cemetery, the spirit is in that sun-bright clime whither we shall, if faithful, follow him. MRS. J. S. PARKER.

Gulfport, Miss.

KING—LUTHER ALLEN KING, child of J. N. and M. A. King, was born March 5, 1893, and died Nov. 8, 1900, aged seven years eight months and three days old.

Little Luther was afflicted with a complication of diseases, and never was able to walk, but was possessed with a good mind and a loving disposition. Tender were the ties that bound father and mother, brothers and sisters to little Luther. He will be sadly missed; but God knows best. He is now where there is no more pain, no more sorrow, and no more death. May a loving Savior sustain the father and mother and brothers and sisters in this hour of bereavement, and may they be able to say as the prophet of old, "But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me." F. N. SWARNEY, P. C.

Pine Grove, La.

CRAWLEY—Mrs. IDA R. ENOCHS CRAWLEY was born Sept. 2, 1866. She joined the church at the age of fourteen. She was married to Dr. D. B. Crawley on the eighteenth of January, 1888. She died at her home near Mountain Creek Baptist Church on the sixth of March, 1900. She leaves a loving husband, a fond mother and five small children to mourn her death. She possessed a bright, cultivated mind, and a lovable disposition, which made her the leader of a large circle of friends and neighbors. As a wife and mother, she directed the affairs of her home with prudence and justice; as a Christian, her life was above reproach. She knew, when she was taken sick, that she could not get well. She expressed a readiness to die, but said she would like to live to raise her children. May they all live so as to meet her!

HER PASTOR.

AKIN—Rev. JOHN AKIN was born in Pike county, Miss., Dec. 2, 1815, and died at the home of his son, William Akin, of Union parish, La., Sept. 16, 1900.

Bro. Akin joined the M. E. Church in 1825; was married to Miss Susan Garlington, Oct. 25, 1836. He was licensed to preach by Presiding Elder E. R. Alexander in 1855 in the bounds of what is now the Lisbon and Summerfield charge, where he has resided ever since.

Bro. Akin's field of labor was a wide one. He preached in camp and protracted meetings in North Louisiana, and now that he has gone, his works do follow him. May God bless and comfort the loved ones!

B. H. SHEPPARD, P. C.

SELMAN—Mr. J. E. SELMAN was born Oct. 13, 1863, and died at Linn, Sunflower county, Miss., Nov. 18, 1900. The remains were brought back to the cemetery at Bahala Chapel, Lawrence county. This is where he was reared, and his mother and other relatives are here. He leaves a widow and two little daughters, one of whom is an adopted child. He was a member of the Methodist Church at New Salem. He was truly religious—one that kept up a family altar. He spoke of his readiness for death. He will be sadly missed in the home, church, and the neighborhood. May God sustain the sorrowing ones!

It was out of the cloud that the deluge came, yet it was upon it that the bow was set. The cloud is a thing of darkness, yet God chooses it for the place where he bends the arch of light. Such is the way of our God. He knows that we need the cloud, and that a bright sky without speck or shadow would not suit us in our passage to the kingdom; therefore, he draws the cloud above us, not once in a lifetime, but many times. But lest the gloom should appall us, he braids the cloud with sunshine; nay, makes it the object which gleams to our eye with the very fairest hues of heaven.—H. Bonar.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to December, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Penna
Gentlemen
You say that you think I am the youngest person on your entire list of agents. This makes me prouder than ever of my success.

Continuing, this Bright Schoolgirl in Middletown, Conn., writes:

"I do not know of any other little girl who has earned thirty-five dollars in so short a time and in such a pleasant way as I have, and I am quite sure that none of your older agents are more pleased with their success."

What this Schoolgirl did others can do

The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post will willingly co-operate with others who want to accomplish the same result. A very liberal commission will be paid upon each subscription and renewal secured, besides offering each an opportunity to share in $18,000, to be awarded on May 1, 1901.

Depite the apparent British determination to pursue relentlessly the present policy of crushing the Boers, the belief is spreading that the government must offer terms in order to end the war. The Boers might now accept British supremacy, as manifested by the stationing of British garrisons in designated towns of the two republics, if their government was autonomous on the Canadian model. But even such a settlement would not be final, because the race hatred is ineradicable. The Dutch never would be content under British rule. It is agreed that the British position is hopeless as far as regards pacification of the colonies through a policy of unconditional surrender of the Boers. "The Boers might be reduced to subjection if another 100,000 men were sent out, which, of course, is impossible."

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thorough by up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

KRUGER IN FRANCE.

The recent landing of ex-President Kruger at Marseilles and his visit to the French capital has given the French people an excellent opportunity for the manifestation of the easily excited and demonstrative enthusiasm for which they are noted. So warmly has he been received that his tour through the country seemed more like a triumphal march than the journey of a conquered chieftain. While unquestionably the French strongly sympathize with the Boers, hatred of the English is no doubt responsible for some of the enthusiasm which has marked the reception of the Transvaal's ex-president. Kruger has, since his arrival, been quite outspoken in his denunciation of Great Britain, and seems to entertain some hope that France will demand of England that she submit the Boer troubles to arbitration. Since Germany has already approved England's course in South Africa, and since Russia refuses to interfere, it is extremely unlikely that the French Government will take any definite action in the matter. Political demonstrations on account of Kruger's presence have been forbidden.

While the Bonapartists and Revolutionists fancy that the present outburst of sympathy may result in the overturning of the government, the more statesmanlike, it is said, are of the opinion that "the dictates of common sense are, that the entire South African question is not worth the bones of a single French soldier."

Ex-President Kruger's proposals of arbitration are not taken seriously in England. 'It is too late. We must go through with it now at whatever cost.' That is England's unofficial reply to all such advances." So says a recent London cablegram to the New York Post.

The building will have two stories, be circular in shape, the upper room being the observation room. There will be a small room at the side, square in shape, through which stairs will lead up to the second story.

Port Gibson Female College,

Port Gibson, Miss.

Port Gibson Female College is one of the oldest female colleges in the Mississippi Conference. For more than fifty years she has been contributing to the training and development of Christian womanhood in this and other States.

Her course of study is academic rather than collegiate, which should commend the school to parents who have young girls to educate. The P. G. F. C. offers superior advantages for less money than any other school of like grade in the State. Methodist Parents who want to educate their daughters can do so as cheaply here as it is being done by the State at Columbus, i. e., if they give their girls the ornate branches.

We give board, including fuel, light, washing, tuition and music, or any one extra, for $160; without an extra, $130. Girls wishing to prepare themselves to teach can enter the middle of January and continue through the session for $75 with music or any other ornate branch; without an ornate branch, $65.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

FIRST DAY.

The North Mississippi Conference convened in its thirty-first annual session in the Methodist Church at West Point, Miss., Thursday, Dec. 6, 1900; Bishop R. K. Hargrove is the chair. The opening exercises consisted of a solemn and impressive communion service conducted by the presiding Bishop, the communicants being served by four elders. After the roll-call, to which nearly every member of the Conference, both lay and clerical, responded, Rev. T. W. Lewis was unanimously re-elected secretary. The following were chosen as his helpers, namely: J. M. Bradley, assistant secretary; R. M. Evans, recording secretary; J. R. Countiss and S. B. Meyers, statistical secretaries. The usual standing committees were then announced. Reports from our various church Boards and from other sources were presented and referred to the proper committees. Memorials from the Winona and Durant District Conferences were also received and submitted to the Committee on Books and Periodicals.

Question 20 of the Discipline was called, the nine presiding elders of the Conference made reports of their work, and their characters were passed.

President McIntosh made a short report of the work at Grenada College. One hundred and twelve boarding students have been matriculated.

A very gratifying report was submitted by Pres. W. B. Murrah, D. D., of Millsaps College, which showed that that noble institution is having a most prosperous session, and that an advance has been made in many directions. Over two hundred students have already been enrolled, whom twenty-three are young preachers, and twenty are the sons of preachers.

Rev. W. B. Lewis and the editor-in-chief of the ADVOCATE, both of the Mississippi Conference, were introduced.

The names of C. N. Terry, J. M. Hampton, W. R. Rainey, S. A. Ellis, J. W. Poston, T. M. Foster, A. P. Leech, A. P. Sage, J. S. Oakley, T. G. Freeman and J. B. Stone were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations.

Rev. J. A. Lowe was located at his own request.

The name of Rev. B. S. Rayner was referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for a supernumerary relation.

Question 20 being resumed, the characters of a large number of the clerical members of the Conference were passed in review, they were declared blameless in their life and official administration, and each gave a report of his year's work.

The name of Rev. M. E. Tumlin was referred to a committee for trial.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth, one of our Missionary Secretaries, was presented to the Conference, and made a short talk. He called attention to the fact that this Conference was entitled to elect seventeen ministerial and eleven lay delegates to the Missionary Conference which will be held in the Crescent City next April. A resolution was then adopted empowering the presiding elders to nominate said delegates.

Conference then adjourned with the benediction by the Bishop.

Rev. Richard Wilkinson, the beloved pastor at Aberdeen, Miss., preached an able and inspiring sermon at 3 o'clock P. M. in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

At night, commencing at 7:30 o'clock, a missionary rally was held, at which Dr. W. R. Lambuth delivered a stirring and highly instructive address on missions, upon which subject he is thoroughly at home, and in which no man in our church is more deeply interested. Subscriptions were obtained amounting to about $1,200 for the work in China. Same will be counted as a part of the Twentieth Century Thank-offering.

SECOND DAY.

Conference was called to order at 9 A. M., Bishop Hargrove in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by the editor of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. After the roll-call a motion was offered and carried to dispense with the further calling thereof. The Minutes of yesterday's session were then read and approved. Revs. Gregory, of the Presbyterian Church; Wier, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church; G. D. French, agent of the American Bible Society, and W. T. Griffin, agent of the Mississippi Orphans' Home, were next introduced to the Conference.

Bro. W. V. Connell offered a resolution looking to the settlement of a claim of $900, which the Joint Board of Finance holds against the Memphis Conference. Same was adopted.

The following, having been duly recommended by their District Conferences and by the Examining Committee, were admitted on trial, to-wit: J. G. Huggins, A. A. Martin, W. G. Harbin, W. H. Whitnell, J. A. Hall, V. C. Curtis, J. B. Randolph, T. J. Wilson, and B. C. Trigg.

W. E. M. Brogan, T. H. Porter, J. T. Lewis, W. B. Pinson, Jesse W. McGee, and G. W. Strickland were continued on trial, and advanced to the class of the second year.

R. I. Allen was readmitted.

Bro. Randall, a veteran of the Memphis Conference, was introduced.

The report of the Committee on Books and Periodicals, which was next submitted, provoked a heated discussion which occupied nearly the entire morning session. This report was as follows:

"Resolved, That this Conference appoint a committee of four to confer at once with Dr. Boswell and the members of this Conference who are on the Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, to ascertain definitely now whether they will assure us that the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE shall be an acceptable Conference organ at $1 per year, or, at most, not exceeding $1.50 per year, and in the event this assurance be not given, then this committee of four be, and is hereby, authorized to co-operate with the committee of the Mississippi Conference appointed at its session in 1899, in discussing the practicability of publishing in Mississippi a Methodist paper at $1 per annum, which shall be the organ of the two Mississippi Conferences of the M. E. Church, South, and if the enterprise shall be deemed by this joint commission feasible and desirable, this Conference authorizes, concurrently with the Mississippi Conference, the projection of the same.

"N. G. AUGUSTUS, Chair'n.
"R. W. JONES, Secretary."

An amendment was offered, which, however, was lost, to strike out the words "or, at most, not exceeding $1.50." A substitute was then offered, and passed by a small majority, that Mississippi Methodists start a paper of their own at $1 per annum. At this point Senator George offered a substitute for the whole, endorsing the recent action of the ADVOCATE Publishing Committee in electing Dr. Boswell editor. After a number of speeches had been made on both sides, this substitute finally prevailed by a large majority. The North Mississippi Conference has thus strongly reaffirmed its loyalty to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, which action postpones to the Greek kalends the starting of a Mississippi Methodist paper.

Presiding Elder J. W. Dorman, who has just finished a four years' term on the Greenville district, was this morning presented with a handsome gold watch by the preachers of his district as a token of their esteem and appreciation.

A delightful sermon was preached at three o'clock P. M. by Rev. W. B. Lewis, of the Mississippi Conference.

At 7 o'clock P. M. an Educational Rally was held, at which Chancellor Kirkland, of the Vanderbilt University, and Dr. J. D. Hammond, General Secretary of Education, made telling speeches.

THIRD DAY.

Conference met at the usual hour, Bishop Hargrove in the chair. Rev. R. G. Porter, familiarly known as "Gilderoy," conducted the devotional exercises.

The names of M. H. Hounoli, W. J. Burt and J. T. Cunningham were referred to the committee for a superannuated relation.

Chancellor Kirkland, of Vanderbilt University, and Dr. Hammond were introduced to the Conference.

J. B. Randolph, W. O. Sadler, J. A. Goad and T. J. Wilson were elected local deacons.

B. P. Patterson, J. E. Cunningham, R. E. Duke and R. A. Tucker were elected traveling elders.

The examination of the characters of the preachers was taken up, and the list was completed.

The Bishop made a strong plea for the Woman's Home Mission Society, urging its importance as the indispensable helper to the pastor in his work.

H. C. Parrott was located at his own request.

It was announced that J. C. Mimms had been transferred to the North Texas Conference, and that G. S. Morehead had transferred to the White River Conference.

J. H. Holder, E. C. Sullivan and W. R. Williams were admitted into full connection. A strong address was delivered to the young men by the Bishop.

A resolution recommending watch-night service on the last night of the century was unanimously adopted.

Rev. Geo. D. French addressed the Conference for the American Bible Society. His speech was a timely one.

Dr. Payne, president of the Mary Holmes College for the education of colored girls, located at West Point, was introduced to the Conference.

The committee of trial in the case of Rev. M. E. Tumlin on a charge of immorality made its report, expelling him from the ministry and membership in our church. He gave notice that he would take an appeal to the General Conference.

THIRD DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

Conference met at 3 o'clock, Rev. J. D. Cameron occupying the chair. Religious exercises were conducted by Rev. J. E. Thomas.

Prof. H. A. Hayes, State League president, made a fine speech in behalf of the Epworth League. He made a strong plea for the co-operation of the pastors in this great work.

Reports from the Committees on Sunday-schools, Books and Periodicals, Sabbath Observance, and the Spiritual State of the Church, were read, discussed, and adopted.

Dr. T. C. Wier offered a resolution asking that a committee of three be appointed from this Conference for the purpose of inviting the Alabama Conference and the North Alabama Conference to join us and make the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE their organ. R. M. Standefar, R. W. Jones and J. W. Boswell were appointed to look after the matter.

Conference adjourned to meet Monday morning at 9 o'clock A. M.

At 7 o'clock P. M. Dr. James Atkins, our Sunday-school Editor, delivered a splendid address on the best method of running a Sunday-school. His speech was thoroughly practical and highly enjoyable.

Following is the program of religious services which was carried out at West Point on Sunday:

M. E Church—At 9:30 A. M., love-feast; at 11 A. M., preaching by Bishop Hargrove, of Nashville, and ordination of deacons; at 3 P. M., sermon by Dr. J. W. Boswell, after which the ordination of elders; at 7 P. M., preaching by Dr. J. D. Hammond, of Nashville.

Cumberland Presbyterian Church—Preaching at 11 A. M. by Rev. James T. Atkins, of Nashville; at 3 P. M., children's service, conducted by J. E. Thomas and Dr. James Atkins; at 7 P. M by Rev. R. A Meek, of Starkville.

Baptist Church—Preaching at 11 A. M. by Dr. W. B. Murrah, president of Millsaps College; at 7 P. M. by Rev. R. M. Standefer, of Oxford.

Presbyterian Church—Preaching at 11 A. M. by Presiding Elder J. W. Dorman, of Greenville; at 7 P. M. by Rev. J. T. Murrah, of Clarksdale.

FIFTH DAY.

Conference met at 9 A. M. on Monday, Bishop Hargrove in the chair. Rev. J. A. Bowen led the devotional exercises. In accordance with a resolution previously adopted, a memorial service was next held in honor of Revs. J. A. Bates, R. C. Calloway, C. C. Grisham, F. A. Whitson, and F. A. Richardson, who had died during the year, appropriate memoirs respecting each being read, and tributes being paid to them by a number of the brethren. The report of the Joint Board of Finance was then read and adopted. The report of the Committee on Education, which was next submitted, contained a resolution calling for the abolition of intercollegiate foot-ball games, so far as Methodist colleges are concerned. This resolution precipitated a warm and lengthy discussion, but the report was finally adopted unchanged. A resolution was also passed asking for the abolition of the army canteen. Conference then adjourned to meet at 2 P. M.

FIFTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

Conference met at the appointed hour, and listened to a capital address by Dr. James Atkins, Sunday-school editor. It was decided to hold the next Conference at Winona. After the statistical secretary had read his report, Bishop Hargrove announced the following appointments for the ensuing year:

SORROW.

BY A "CONVICT."

Many a home is veiled in sorrow
O'er some darling gone astray;
Many an eye will weep to-morrow
That is sparkling bright to-day;
Many a heart contains a record
Of some bitter, burning wrong;
Many a life by sin is checkered,
Yet so longing to reform.

Many a vain, self-righteous mortal
Turns from anguish, blight, and pain,
Venturing not to cross sin's portal,
Lest the contact mar or stain;
Blood-bought souls to-day are starving
For the precious living bread;
Shall we sit with hard hands folded
While those millions go unfed?

There are bright homes all about us,
Bursting hearts that ache for love;
Hath the Father's eye o'er found us
Caring for the "wounded dove?"
Shall we, can we, dare to falter
To their pleading answer, No?
Oh, if all is on the altar,
Surely we will swiftly go.

THE NEW DEPARTURE.

BY REV. J. H. PRITCHETT, D. D.

Since the last annual meeting of our Board of Missions, a plan for holding a General Missionary Conference has been in process of formulation. Those to whom the preparatory work was committed think they have reached satisfactory conclusions touching most of the important points involved, and the results of their deliberations have been given to the public in the shape of a formal report.

The place chosen for the Conference is New Orleans. The time is April 24-29, 1901. The number of delegates provided for is nearly eleven hundred. The programme prepared is elaborate and suggestive. It is expected that every part of the church and every element in it will be represented, and that this, her foremost enterprise, will be considered from every available point of view.

It is deemed appropriate, by way of turning attention to this meeting and its far-reaching possibilities, to discuss, with the permission of our editors, two or three preliminary topics. The first that suggests itself is: The steps that logically lead up to this Conference.

Southern Methodism claims to be in regular ecclesiastical succession. This means that in spirit, doctrine, and economy she is thoroughly missionary. (An anti-missionary church or a non-missionary church is an anomaly—a misnomer.)

The renaissance of Christian missions and the rise of Methodism are not simply coincident; they are identical—identical in point of time; identical in the conditions that evoked them; identical in the spirit that inspired them; identical in the men that promoted them; identical in their influence upon the church and the world. In proof, consider a few facts:

In 1736 Bishop Butler, having declined the primacy of the English Church because he thought it too late to save its sinking fortunes, wrote in the Preface of his "Analogy" this sad sentence: "It has come, I know not how, to be taken for granted by many persons that Christianity is not so much a subject of inquiry, but that it is now at length discovered to be fictitious; and accordingly they treat it as if, in the present age, this were an agreed point among all people of discernment."

Of the clergy of that day, Bishop Ryle says: "The vast majority of them were sunk in worldliness, and neither knew nor cared anything about their profession. When they assembled it was generally to toast church and king; and to build up one another in earthly-mindedness, prejudice, ignorance, and formality.

In 1736 John Wesley went to Georgia, nominally to carry salvation to others, really to find his own need of it. Two years afterwards he began that wonderful career of preaching and organizing which he continued uninterruptedly for more than fifty years.

In 1736, at Gloucester, on Trinity Sunday, George Whitefield was ordained, and preached a sermon which, according to the complaint made to his Bishop, "drove fifteen people mad."

Fifty years of Wesley's ministry brings us to 1786. A mighty change had been wrought—not so much in society at large, not even in the church as a whole, nor yet in the entire body of the clergy, these to all human appearances remaining about the same; but out of them all the Holy Spirit had gathered a consecrated band with which to renew the battle of primitive Christianity for the conquest of the world. Prominent as leaders during this period, in addition to the Wesleys and Whitefield, must be mentioned Grimshaw, Berridge, the elder Venn, the Rowlands, Romaine, Hervey, Topiady, and Fletcher—all ardent Churchmen.

Of these men and their work, Bishop Ryle says: "The men who wrought deliverance for us were a few individuals, most of them clergymen, whose hearts God touched about the same time, in different parts of the country. They were not wealthy nor highly connected. They were not put forward by any church, party, society, or institution. They were simply men whom God stirred up and brought out to do his work, without previous concert, scheme, or plan."

These men were a unit in spirit, but unfortunately they were divided both as to creed and church polity. They labored in three distinct groups: (a) Wesley's "Methodist Societies." (b) The "Calvinistic Methodists." (c) And the Evangelical Church party.

Now, let us see how this threefold Methodist revival identifies itself with the very beginning of modern missions. In 1786 Dr. Coke made the first of his many missionary voyages across the Atlantic to carry the gospel to the slaves of the West Indies. In 1786 the Eclectic Society, composed of evangelical clergymen and those in sympathy with them, and the forerunner of the present "Church Missionary Society," for the first time discussed the subject of foreign missions. In 1786 William Carey having, according to his own testimony, received his religious awakening and spiritual uplift from the preaching of Thomas Scott, afterwards the first Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, made his first appeal to his Baptist brethren to give attention to the Lord's last command, only to be told by the chairman of the meeting to sit down, with the reminder that "When it pleases God to convert the heathen, he'll do it without your aid or mine." Six years later, however, by his persistent efforts, the Baptist Missionary Society was formed, and he went as their first missionary to India. In 1786 organized American Methodism was but two years old. For twenty years Mr. Wesley's preachers had been preaching the gospel and forming "societies" in an irregular way; now some ecclesiastical order was given to their work, and the organization began rapidly to align itself with the older churches of the land.

In the light of Wesley's maxim, "The world is my parish," and of Dr. Coke's practical exemplification of it, and in view of the wonderful impetus given to other churches, both in England and America, by the Methodist revival, it is difficult to understand the delay of Methodism on this continent in organizing a plan for the specific purpose of carrying the gospel into the regions beyond. For not until 1819 was such an organization effected, and not until 1833 was any attempt made to send a missionary abroad.

Several facts might be mentioned as serving to condone, somewhat, this seeming neglect; but without trying to give a reason why, it must, nevertheless, be stated as a fact that in 1844, when, in the providence of God, Episcopal Methodism became "two bands," though the Missionary Society had been in existence for twenty-five years, she had nothing abroad to witness her loyalty to the commission of Christ, except a small plant at Moravia, West Africa, and an undeveloped enterprise in South America. Among the North American Indians something had been done. In 1816, at Marietta, Ohio, a dissipated negro, John Stewart, was converted, and going among the Wyandotte Indians, was instrumental in converting a number of them. The news of this work seems to have awakened the church to the truth that Indians have souls amenable to the claims of the gospel, and it is said to have inspired the organization of the Missionary Society in 1819. Among the negro slaves, too, steps had been taken to bring them under gospel influences. But when we consider that God had sent us to one of these races, and had sent the other to us, thus conferring on us the high privilege of giving them both the gospel, what had been done by the church as late as 1844 seems hardly worthy of mention. In the division of the church the negro work wholly, and the Indian work mostly, fell to the Southern Church.

With this aside, however, I wish to put emphasis upon the proposition that 1844 marks the real point of departure in American Methodist missions, both North and South. In addition to her work both among the negroes and Indians, our church almost immediately, after completing her organization, enterprised a mission to China. This was fostered until the Civil War wrecked us at home and closed our way to everything abroad. When the fearful cataclysm had spent itself, and it was concluded in high places that if we were not dead, we ought to be, and that whatever was left of our estate ought to pass to another; when, in looking over the debris, it was found that we still had a constituency, which, though scattered and peeled, nevertheless about squaled in numbers our organization of twenty years before, the spirit of life and self-preservation came strongly upon us, and the work of reorganization at once began. During the quadrennium—1866-1870—the Annual Conferences were gotten well in line. As soon as practicable the negroes were given a separate organization co-ordinate with our own, the Indian and China Missions were resumed, and in the order given the following other fields were rapidly added: Mexico in 1873 (it has since grown into three Annual Conferences); Brazil, 1875 (now one of our most promising and prosperous Annual Conferences); Japan, 1886; Korea, 1896, and last, but not least, Cuba, 1899. Taken with our destitute home work, near and remote, these furnish a field worthy of the largest possible outlay of prayer and faith and consecrated endeavor. If, when we were comparatively a feeble folk both in numbers and material resources, God called us to enter these doors, what increased responsibility comes to us, with our enlarged resources of numbers and material wealth, to cause every part of these fields to bud and blossom as the rose.

The strength and efficiency of Methodism has ever been in her Conferences. The meeting called at New Orleans is intended to be pre-eminently a "Conference." It is time that our entire Methodism met, at least by representation, to confer about this, her enterprise of enterprises. Every part of her extensive and promising field will pass under review, plans of work at home and abroad will be discussed, each department—the evangelistic, the educational, the medical, and that of publication—will be considered on its individual merits and in its relation to the one great end sought to be reached; the various institutions of the church, the Sunday-school, the Epworth League, the woman's societies, will be challenged to consider as never before their several relations to this transcendent movement.

The prospective event bristles with numberless points of vital interest. The signs of the times are ominous of great things in the near future. The call for counsel and co-operation is imperative! The time, the place, the conditions are opportune!

In a later paper the work of the Conference will be more fully outlined, and its vast possibilities discussed.

IT IS HARMFUL.

I always deeply regret seeing in a Christian newspaper an editorial onslaught against some other editors who disagree with that editor, or some other Christians who decidedly dissent from some of the views of that editor.

The spirit which is shown in the editorials of some religious papers which I take is so much at variance with the spirit of Christ, and hence of true brotherly love, that a good deal of harm must come to a certain class of readers of such papers, especially young people. And the harm is not confined to the readers; the editors themselves are seriously harmed. One can not take coals of fire into his own bosom without getting burned. There is some excuse for one's saying bitter words while under sudden provocation, but there is no excuse for an editor, having plenty of time to think repeatedly before expressing himself on paper, to pen blistering epithets and mean insinuations against those who differ from him. No man has the moral right to be the editor of a Christian newspaper unless he can refrain from hurling bitter accusations towards those who disagree with him. It is my opinion that some editors of religious papers do much more harm than good. Of course, they claim to be loyal defenders of the truth and of justice and of self-respect, but the spirit which they manifest vitiates whatever good there may be in their motive. I confess that whenever I see in a religious paper the exhibition of abusiveness towards some one, my respect for the editor vanishes at once, I care not what good grounds he may claim to base his action on. Editors, no doubt, have reasons for being greatly provoked by what some other editors or persons say about them, but they ought to know that, if it be really necessary to vindicate themselves, the best possible way to do so is to employ speech which bears the marks of good temper. It is quite possible for one, while being very indignant, to so frame his speech as to not seem angry at all.

I write this from long experience. And I say, too, that one of the neatest things that an angered man can do, in replying to an offender, is to make his language so kind and gracious as to put the offender to shame. He will be actually sorry that he gave any offense.

C. H. WETHERBE.

TOBACCO.

DOES ITS USE DEBAR PREACHERS' WIVES FROM ATTENDING CONFERENCE?

In eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, upon my arrival at the seat of the Conference (which was a prominent city of the State of Louisiana), the host, after greeting the writer cordially, said, "I would like to see your wife, but am glad she did not come, as it is with great difficulty I have secured homes for the members of the Conference." The Conference convened in the basement of the church. Just before the close of the first session a motion was made to adjourn to meet in the auditorium, which was opposed, upon the grounds that members of that body would soil the new carpet by the use of tobacco; whereupon the presiding Bishop said, "Brethren, has it come to that pass that a Methodist Annual Conference is denied a decent sitting on account of the use of tobacco?" The motion prevailed, and the tobacconists were admonished not to soil the carpet. Before the final adjournment this fact was revealed to the writer that certain citizens of that place who had four years before entertained members of that Conference, in consequence of the fact that their guests had befouled with tobacco the rooms they occupied, refused to help to entertain any member of the Conference, lest they should have a similar experience.

Our next session of Conference was carried to the same place referred to in the foregoing, with the understanding that preachers' wives be entertained; but now, just on the eve of Conference, after a year's toil, self-denial and preparation upon the part of the few preachers' wives who could attend these important gatherings in our Zion, they are informed that there is no room for them. This is not because they indulge in the habit in question, nor because our Conference host has failed to make a persistent effort to secure entertainment for all (for he doubtless has). May we not conclude, however, that if all the members of our Conference, both lay and clerical, would abstain from the tobacco habit, ample entertainment for all would be much easier to secure? W. J. PORTER.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Louisiana Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: After three years of bad health, and confined to my bed a great deal of the time, I find myself now confined to my bed with acute rheumatism. I can not turn over, or rise up unassisted. Have been in this condition four days. Besides this present trouble, other previous troubles being known by my presiding elder caused him to advise me to take a supernumerary relation at the coming of our Annual Conference. Hence I came to Pollock to try to make a living for my family. However, I have been filling my appointments on the Glenmora circuit since I came here whenever I have been able to travel.

I will, if I am able to get on my feet before Conference, furnish the proper certificate to the Committee on Conference Relations in regard to my inability to do effective work. From present indications it looks like I will be in this bed for weeks, if not months.

I want the prayers of all my brethren and Christian people, that a speedy recovery may be mine.

Yours fraternally,

W. H. HILL.

The Christian Life.

THE GENERAL REVIVAL OF 1857.

BY REV. DANIEL DORCHESTER, D. D., WEST ROXBURY, MASS.

Revivals were few and small, from 1844 to 1857-8, and many devout souls bowed in deeped humiliation and prayer before God imploring a divine visitation. One faithful soul in New York City, Mr. J. C. Lanphere, of the Dutch Reformed Church, was especially conspicuous in turning the tide. When pursuing his daily rounds as a city missionary, he deeply travailed in spirit and inquired: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

It occurred to him, as by an inspiration, that a union business men's prayer meeting, daily, at noon, might be serviceable to the cause of religion. He appointed the first meeting in the vestry of the Fulton Street Church at noon, Sept. 22, 1857. When the hour arrived, the devoted missionary was the only one present; but he went forward before the altar and bowed in prayer, continuing to pray alone until 12:30, when another Christian man came in and, taking his position by the side of Mr. Lanphere, joined in prayer. Some others came in, to the number of six—the whole attendance at the first meeting. The next day, at the same hour, about thirty persons attended the meeting at the same place, and a deep spirit was manifest. The next day sixty or seventy came. After that the vestry was full of people, of all denominations, and the time was chiefly occupied with prayer.

From that place the influence spread to Brooklyn, Newburg, New Haven, Albany, Philadelphia, etc., all over the United States. The meetings were "union prayer meetings"—no sermons being preached. In these meetings was recognized, to a fuller degree than ever before, the old Methodist doctrine of the universal priesthood of Christian believers. There were few evangelical churches that were not visited by this gracious influence, and few cities and hamlets in the land were passed by. The accessions to the Methodist Church in a single year were 136,036. Other churches realized great increase, and probably not less than 500,000 converts were added to the churches.—Northwestern Advocate.

The Christian Sabbath is threatened in many directions. It is threatened by the mail service, by the Sunday railroad train, by the Sunday street car, by the Sunday newspaper, by the Sunday saloon, by the Sunday theater. It is threatened by every picnic, ball, dancing party, excursion or other gathering of social nature, the participants in which select Sunday as the day for their amusement. It is threatened on all sides and all the time, and will be preserved only by the most earnest efforts on the part of its friends.—St. Louis Advocate.

A REASON FOR DECLINING MORALS.

The National Vigilance Association of England met in London a few days ago. Various causes were assigned for the fact that the moral tone of London is so much lower than a generation ago. One speaker said this was owing to the spread of immoral plays, low illustrated papers and the gross misuse of "animated photography." The streets were worse, too. He thought that one could see worse scenes in London than in any European capital. If London could not be delivered from these corruptions, it must, he felt, go the way of the Cities of the Plain, becoming such a plague spot that it would have to be swept away. Rev. F. B. Meyer said that one reason why there were so many unfortunates was that working women only received the "miserable pittances of 10s. to 15s. a week." God's ire would fall harder upon their employers than upon the women themselves. The same influences are at work in American cities that are putrifying London. Degrading, moving pictures are the latest baleful influence. A nickel in the slot will give the peeper in the machine a degrading stimulus. These machines should be put away by law.—Central Advocate.

GAMBLING IN CHRISTIAN HOMES.

Progressive euchre, played for prizes, is a violation of the gambling laws of the State, and the parties who engage in it could not escape penalty if prosecuted. When we begin to enforce the law against this public vice, shall we overlook the springs from which the vice is fed, and nourished, in the parlors of Christian families?

Our observation of this custom, allowed to be a genteel pastime even in church society, has led us to recognize an important connection between the fashionable euchre club and the gamblers' den. There is no doubt about it at all. The training of our young people to be expert card players greatly strengthens against them the power of the tempter and destroyer. If we mean to suppress gambling, let progressive euchre follow the slot machines.—Arkansas Methodist.

NOT BUILT FOR KNEELING.

At the General Methodist Conference in Chicago the question of kneeling during prayer in church was discussed, and the point was made that city churches are not built to accommodate kneeling worshipers. An exchange suggests that while it may be that city churches are not built for kneeling, the main trouble is that some people are not built that way, either. But Christians should learn to kneel somewhere, though they may not kneel in church. They should have that feeling of awe and reverence in their souls which leads the believer to "bow his knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ."—The Advance.

If two or three persons go wrong in the matter of cards, or dancing, or theaters, the preacher has no right to lambast the whole congregation on account of the acts of the few. Let him go in person to the offenders and talk to them kindly about the matter, and in nine times out of ten he can remedy the trouble without calling even public attention to it at all. The people generally do not infract the rules of the church in this way, and they ought not to be made to suffer on account of the few.—Texas Advocate.

Dr. John G. Paton is a notable example of a good steward. There were $70,000 due him in the way of profits from his biography. Instead of holding any part of this for his own use, he gave the whole sum to the missionary society that had supported him, saying: "It is the Lord's. Pass on the bread of life to my brethren in the South Seas."—Christian Endeavor Herald.

Suppose our General Conference some day should require each church member's character to pass in review once a year before an ecclesiastical tribunal. Why not? Bishops, and connectional officers, and editors, and presiding elders, and pastors, and superannuates, and local preachers, and exhorters—all have to meet that requirement.—Midland Methodist.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Lillie Dear Evans was born in Attalla county, Miss., June 7, 1862, and entered into rest at Shannon, Miss., Nov. 13 1900.

She was the daughter of Capt. John Dear and Mrs. Bettie Brown Dear, and the wife of Rev. R. M. Evans, of the North Mississippi Annual Conference, of the M. E. Church, South. Her mother was a very brilliant woman, being for several years a first-grade teacher. Hence Sister Evans received excellent early advantages in home and school which well fitted her for the high and delicate position she has so nobly occupied. She spent quite a while in the high schools of Kosciusko, where she acquitted herself with credit.

She professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, at the tender age of 10 years, under the ministry of the saintly Rev. J. M. Weems, now of Meridian, Miss. She always loved, and often spoke of "Bro. Weems," and she adorned the Christian life with a noble, pure character and a vicarious devotion at the shrine of duty. Her exalted experience is a divine heritage to loved ones and a snow-white granite in the temple of the New Jerusalem.

On Nov. 29, 1883, she was happily married to Rev. R. M. Evans. This union was blessed with five children, four of whom, with the grief-stricken companion, mourn their irreparable loss. May our Savior sweeten their sorrow!

The writer and his family have received many tender ministries at her hands. In her parsonage homes at Coffeeville and Ackerman we have found out something of the inner depth of her noble soul. No family ever lived more affectionately, and no circle was ever more delightful. It was a positive benediction to "behold how they loved." It is very sad to think of a golden link being broken out of this happy home circle; but she has only gone up higher in the family, and awaits up there the tear-eyed survivors to welcome them into the circle around the throne of love.

May the loving ministries of the Holy Spirit strengthen and illuminate the companion and children for labor and waiting till our reaping by and by!

Her sacred remains were tenderly laid to rest in the cemetery at Shannon, Miss., on Nov. 14, Rev. W. W. Woollard, their presiding elder, officiating, assisted by Revs. S. B. Myers, J. W. Anderson, H. C. Parrott, and H. T. Cunningham.

REPORT FROM RURAL HILL CHARGE.

While I have not made any great progress, I think I can safely say that the work is in a better condition than when I took charge two years ago. But to God be all the praise. By the help of the Lord I have been enabled to fill about all of my appointments. We have had our presiding elder with us four times this year. On last Saturday and Sunday we had our presiding elder with us at Rural Hill. The congregation was large, the sermons were fine, all the five churches were represented, and the stewards reported for the presiding elder and preacher in charge $100. I will be able to report some of my collections in full. I have held six revival meetings this year. The first Sunday in August we began at Rural Hill. Bro. Shumaker, of Kosciusko, did most of the preaching, and Bro. R. P. Neblett, of Mississippi, led the singing. We had a delightful time. The second Sunday in August we had Bro. Massey, of Ethel, with us at Macedonia, where he preached five doctrinal sermons greatly to the edification of the congregation. The third Sunday at Mount Hope I had no ministerial help. But the Lord was with us, and caused our hearts to rejoice greatly. The fourth Sunday at White Hall we had Bro. Robert A. Whitmore with us, who rendered effective service, and the membership received to live closer to God. The first Sunday in September at Plattsburg we were assisted by Bros. Dye, Long and Curtis. Their preaching was greatly enjoyed, and the church took on new life. The last, but not the least, meeting was held at Center Ridge. The spirit of power was with us from the beginning, and we were made to feel constantly that it was good to be there. May God's richest blessing abide with all the people of Rural Hill circuit and these ministerial brethren who labored with me this year! Success to the ADVOCATE.

REPORT FROM HERMANVILLE, MISS.

There is not one clouded page written in our diary, dated at Hermanville. The people here are kind, generous and thoughtful. They have shown their appreciation of the labors of their pastor often, and in more ways than one. We have many consecrated souls in this charge who pray for his success, hold up his hands when the flood-tide of sin and vice seem to rise highest, and close the doors of their homes against all that would impede the spiritual progress of the church. We hope with such co-operation to soon have the charge aglow with spiritual light and love. How gladly do they supply the temporal needs of their pastor, and try to make him easy in pecuniary matters!

A few days ago the Ladies' Aid Society of Hermanville, joined by other friends of the pastor's family, made us a liberal pounding, which was highly appreciated by the inmates of the parsonage. These tokens of love and appreciation do much to impart fresh courage and renewed strength for the arduous labors of a pastor.

Sunday, Dec. 2, the pastor of this charge had the pleasure of uniting in matrimony Mr. D. V. Herlong, of Barlow, and Miss Mamie McKewen near Hermanville, Miss. We extend to the bright young couple our warmest congratulations. We wish them all the joy and success that attends the happy union. E. R. WITT.

REPORT FROM MIDDLETON CHARGE.

This, our fourth year on this charge, has been very satisfactory. However, we have been greatly disappointed in our most sanguine expectations.

The good Lord has permitted us to be sorely chastised by afflictions, and suffered the people here to lose almost their entire crops. Our last Quarterly Conference was held yesterday and the day before, with Rev. G. A. Gnice, P. E., in the chair, guiding the Conference judiciously and pleasantly, besides preaching us two soul-feeding sermons.

Bro. Guice is growing in favor with the people of this charge. We feel indisposed to say good-bye to many of the members on this charge, who are as loyal as can be found anywhere. As Paul said to the church at Ephesus I would say, "And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified." (Acts xxix, 32.) Pray for us.

J. C. ELLIS, P. C.

Middleton, Miss., Dec. 3, 1900.

LETTER FROM TYRO, MISS.

Our school and community had an interesting Thanksgiving service to-day, and as a result we send by this mail a check for ten dollars to the treasurer of the Orphans' Home at Water Valley. I esteem it worthy of note that our generous patron, Bro. Wm. Carter, gave, individually, five dollars of this amount.

Bro. W. J. Burt preached an interesting sermon, the first he has preached for several months, on account, as you are aware, of impaired health. We are glad to state that his health is much improved, although he is still physically weak.

When this Conference year closes he will have occupied the parsonage on this charge a full quadrennium, and it is no exaggeration to say that no pastor was ever stronger in the confidence and esteem of the people than he. E. T. KEETON.

Tyro, Miss., Nov. 29, 1900.

ON BOTH KNEES.

William Dawson once told this story to illustrate how humble the soul must be before it can find peace. He said that at a revival meeting a little lad who was need to Methodist ways went home to his mother and said: "Mother, John So-and-so is under conviction and seeking for peace, but he will not find it to-night, mother." "Why, William?" said she. "Because he is only down on one knee, mother, and he will never get peace until he is down on both knees." Until conviction of sin brings us down on both knees, until we are completely humbled, until we have no hope in ourselves left, we can not find the Savior.—D. L. Moody.

SHALL WE HAVE A REVIVAL?

Shall we have a revival? No, not you. Your heart is not right with God. You have not the mind, the thought of Christ. You are more concerned about the glory of your church, the record breaking "success" of your ministry, the increase of numbers and social standing, than you are about the salvation of the lost and the glory of God. "Let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord." His "revival" will be a man-made affair. God will have nothing to do with it.—The Evangelical.

Bishop Vincent never said a truer thing than this: "The measure of our religion is our helpfulness to other people." The religion of Jesus is perpetual ministry. Not the preacher only, but the people are to be true ministers of Christ. All the Lord's people are to be prophets. Every saved soul is to be the savior of others that are lost. Not prayers, not professions, but deeds are to weigh in the judgment. Wake up, Epworth Leaguers, if you have been "at ease in Zion," and get to work to-day. The poor, the sick, the prisoners, the hungry are at our doors. Feed them, visit them, help them. They are the very ones that Christ would minister unto if he were on the earth. They are his "little ones." Inasmuch as you do to them you do to the Christ.—Selected.

Let us watch and pray against the plague of unbrotherly words. It is enlisting with Satan in "hindering" earnest men. Let every victim of evil speech possess his soul in patience, do his duty as God gives him to see it, commit his cause to the tribunal of just men on earth and to the balances of the Judge of all the earth. The instinct of true hearts can be counted on to bring to pass right things. Remember the words of Wesley: "When I gave myself to God's service, I did not withhold my reputation. I know Mr. Toplady. I do not fight with chimney sweeps."—Richmond Christian Advocate.

Three Meals a Day.

How many years of her life does a woman spend over the hot cook stove getting those three meals a day? Backaching, head throbbing, nerves twitching, it's all the same, there are three meals a day to be prepared. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cannot lighten woman's labor, but it can and does increase her strength. It cures those diseases of the womanly organs which undermine woman's vitality.

"I cannot praise Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription too highly as a tonic for tired, worn-out women who are afflicted with female weakness," writes Mrs. Ira W. Holmes, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. "It has helped me very much and a skillful physician once said to me in answer to my question as to its efficacy, 'I know of cases where it has really worked wonders.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do not re-act upon the system. They are a good thing to keep in the house. One 'Pellet' is a laxative, two a cathartic dose. The medicine for every woman.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1900.

AT WEST POINT.

We had the pleasure of attending the session of the North Mississippi Conference at West Point. Bishop Hargrove presided with his usual dignity and grace. Without any seeming hurry he despatches business with marvelous rapidity. Being busy with publisher's business, we were so fortunate as to secure the services of Rev. T. H. Dorsey to write up the Conference proceedings.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth delivered a missionary address of remarkable power, and took a collection for Soochow University, which aggregated about $850.

At the Educational Rally excellent addresses were delivered by Drs. Hammond and Kirkland.

The Mississippi paper project was laid in the grave by a majority of about two to one.

The good people of West Point dispensed a most generous hospitality. The pastor, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, makes an admirable Conference host. We were delightfully entertained in the hospitable home of Bro. and Sister R. L. Smith, to whom we are indebted for many courtesies. We were fortunate in having as our cogenets Bro. Callicutt and Bro. and Sister Duncan—delightful companions all. W. C. B.

CONFESSION.

If the teaching of the gospels be true, the Lord does not want secret followers. Although Nicodemus came to Jesus by night, it may have been because that was the best time for a private conversation with the Savior. If fear did influence him, he afterward became more bold, for he and Joseph of Arimathea, after the crucifixion, were brave enough to avow their love for him in asking for his body, and in giving it decent burial. Hermit service is not the service God rewards. Now and then some silly church member says, "Oh, I can be just as good by remaining at home as I can by going to church." Another says: "I can be just as good a Christian out of the church as in it. A great many church members are inconsistent, and I can be more consistent outside of the church than many who belong to it."

Thus foolishly do some men reason. A man might as reasonably say, "I can be just as good a soldier out of the army as in it." Oh, thou thoughtless man, where didst thou learn that thy goodness will open to thee the gates of heaven? It is written, "By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified in his sight."

If a man were to be cast upon a desert island, where there was no other human being, or if he should happen to be thrown where all save himself were infidels, then he would have some excuse for not belonging to the church. But wherever the believer goes, whether among civilized or savage, among worldlings or Christians, it is his sacred duty and privilege to confess his Lord in word and deed. "Whosoever, therefore, shall confess me before men," says the Master, "him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven." How fearfully significant is the meaning contained in this last statement!

We are not creatures of fate, but creatures of habits of our own choosing. Availing ourselves of the offers of divine grace, we can, however,

"Make stepping-stones of our dead selves,
And rise to higher things."

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION.

The Southern Industrial Convention, which met in this city on Tuesday, of last week, and continued in session for four days, was one of the most notable and important gatherings with which the Crescent City has been honored in many a day; and by reason of the deep enthusiasm manifested, the distinguished ability of the speakers who were present, and the wide attention which this industrial assemblage attracted, it can hardly be questioned that the South will reap large benefits from the holding of this convention. Fresh attention has thus been called to her magnificent, but half exploited resources in soil, timber, and mining products; to the mildness and salubrity of her climate, to the advantageousness of her situation as a field for manufactures, and to her noble system of waterways.

The South has hitherto been largely an agricultural section, but we are now on the eve of great change in this respect. One important result of the convention just held will be to give a new impetus to manufacture in the Southern States, which are rapidly becoming recognized as offering unsurpassed facilities for varied industrial enterprises. The topics discussed in the convention were of a live and highly interesting character, several of them being of vast moment. A whole evening was devoted to the consideration of the Nicaragua Canal project, and a ringing resolution was passed urging Congress to take immediate and favorable action upon this matter. This resolution, coming from such a source, and being in line, too, with the report of the Nicaragua Canal Commission, ought to have considerable weight.

As was eminently proper, large attention was given to the subject of "Technical Education," masterly and valuable papers being read by Dr. Lyman Hall, president of the Georgia School of Technology; Prof. Brown Ayres, of Tulane University; Chancellor R. B. Fulton, of the University of Mississippi, and by Prof. J. V. Calhoun, State Superintendent of Education of Louisiana.

At the conclusion of the debate on the before-mentioned subject, the convention adopted a recommendation requesting Congress to assist in establishing textile schools in the Southern States.

The momentous topic of "Compulsory Arbitration" was vigorously handled by two distinguished speakers, after which the following significant resolutions, presented by the Committee on Labor and Capital, were unanimously adopted:

"We believe that the interests of labor and capital are absolutely and entirely interdependent.

"We believe that in most cases there is no difference between labor and capital which should not and can not be settled between the parties in interest without resort to extreme measures.

"We deprecate the attempts which are frequently made by agitators to stir up strife between labor and capital, and believe that they should be suppressed.

"We believe that the honest laborer should be paid liberal wages in cash, so that he can keep his family in comfort, educate his children, and fit himself for the position he occupies and one befitting an American citizen.

"We believe that courts of arbitration should be established both by the State and by the National Governments, to which courts all questions arising between employee and employer must be referred, and the decision of which courts shall be final.

"We believe that the findings of these courts would be fair and impartial, and would search out the cause of trouble and remove it, whether labor or capital was in fault, and that both sides would be willing to be thus adjudged, and much ill-feeling, strife and bloodshed would be avoided."

A resolution was also adopted recommending that the several States of the South, through their Legislatures, at an early date take such steps as are necessary to attract immigration this way, and requesting the commissioners of immigration to cooperate with the railroads in this matter.

Before adjournment a permanent organization was effected, to be known hereafter as the Southern Industrial Association, the next meeting of which will be held at Memphis, Tenn.

All the signs point toward the nearness of an era of general prosperity and rapid industrial progress in Dixie-land. Southern cities, in consequence, are destined to grow much faster than they have ever done before. Since the tide of immigration is already beginning to turn in this direction, the homogeneity which has thus far characterized our population will become less and less marked, while the development of manufactures will tend to draw more and more people from the farms which have hitherto maintained the bulk of our citizenship, and concentrate them in the cities. It is quite evident, then, that the churches of the South, in the coming century, will have to face new conditions and new and grave problems. Ought the followers of the Master to manifest less hopefulness and enthusiasm over the prospects of the South than statesmen, manufacturers, and business men? Shall we not resolve that, with the help of Almighty God, the victory shall be ours? Let progress be the watchword of the church as well as of the business world.

ANTI-CANTEEN AMENDMENT PASSES THE HOUSE.

We rejoice to be able to chronicle the fact that on last Friday, the seventh instant, in connection with the passage of the army reorganization bill, our national House of Representatives did itself the honor of adopting by a vote of 158 to 51 the anti-canteen substitute, offered by Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, for the canteen section of the bill. The amendment, the introduction of which occasioned a lively fight in the House, absolutely prohibits the sale of intoxicants at military posts, and is all that could be desired. Following is the exact wording thereof:

"The sale of or dealing in beer, wine or any intoxicating liquors by any person in any post, exchange or canteen or army transport, or upon any premises used for military purposes by the United States, is hereby prohibited. The Secretary of War is hereby directed to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect."

Mr. Littlefield reviewed the long-standing controversy over this subject, and after reading a letter from Adjutant-General Corbin claiming that 90 per cent. of the army officers favor the canteen system, he read also a statement made by the said general in 1892 condemning the canteen system as inimical to discipline and to the best interests of the soldier. Mr. Littlefield also read a statement by Gen. Ludlow, who testified to the good effects which followed the discouragement of the sale of liquor to our soldiers in Cuba.

If we mistake not, this action of the House on the canteen question meets with the cordial approbation of the majority of the people of the United States, who are not willing that the government shall have a hand in tempting and debauching our soldier boys, who, at best, are sorely beset with enticements to evil. A complete victory has not yet been won, as the amendment has to run the gauntlet in the Senate before it can become a law, but we think that public sentiment is too strongly against the perpetuation of the army canteen for our senators to throttle this reform measure.

The enemies of temperance, in Congress and out of it, try to make it appear that should this measure become a law, there will be no possible chance for the dram-loving soldier to gratify his thirst. Such a representation is, of course, absurd and untrue. While the amendment strictly prohibits the sale of intoxicants in any military camp or post, or upon any army transport, and thus prevents the government from having any share in the liquor traffic in connection with military affairs, it does not deny soldiers the privilege of buying liquor elsewhere, if they are bent upon having it. The removal of temptation from the military camp, not the absolute prohibition of liquor drinking, is the object aimed at, as we understand the matter. That the canteen is a source of much evil and of constant temptation is beyond question. Where soldiers or citizens have to go some distance and put themselves to some trouble in order to obtain whisky or beer, they are nearly always more temperate, and dram-drinking is then confined almost entirely to confirmed inebriates.

NOTES ANENT CRESCENT CITY CLERGY.

The resolute and resourceful Dr. S. S. Keener has proved himself to be a capital presiding elder, and as sub-bishop of the New Orleans diocese has rendered highly efficient and appreciated service. The general desire is that he be allowed to fill out a four years' term.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, the diligent young pastor at Parker Memorial, will report his Conference collections in full, a twenty per cent. increase over last year in the pastor's salary, 50 new members, and the largest Sunday-school in the city. Progress has been made in many directions.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine, the consecrated young pastor of the Tchonpitoulas Mission, has had a net gain in membership of eighteen. He has collected every dollar of his Conference assessments, and $54 on the Twentieth Century Fund. During the year a commodious and comfortable mission hall has been purchased. The great good he is doing can not be represented in dollars and cents.

Under the pastorate of the zealous and saintly Rev. B. F. White, the Dryades Street Church has advanced along many lines. A $2,800 debt has been paid, the Sunday-school attendance has been quadrupled, while the attendance upon church and prayer meeting has noticeably increased. Ten accessions will be reported. Bro. White has a live Epworth League, the members of which are active in benevolence.

Rev. F. N. Parker has done a fine year's work at Carondelet. Every assessment has been met in full. Including $1,300 in thank-offerings to the Twentieth Century Fund, the Carondelet Street congregation has contributed upwards of $7 000 to education. There has been a steady and gratifying increase of late in the church and prayer meeting attendance. Twenty-six accessions to the church will be reported. The membership are highly pleased with their pastor, and are not counting on any change.

Rev. John F. Foster has for four years served the Felicity Street Church with great faithfulness and acceptability, and, consequently, is ready for a swap with somebody. In the face of many grave difficulties he has kept the work of the church moving steadily forward, and will leave things in good shape for his successor. He will report a moderate number of accessions, about two-thirds on the Conference collections, $189 for the Twentieth Century Fund, and $2,800 in hand for a parsonage. The church is entirely out of debt.

Rev. K. W. Dodson has just finished a very successful year at Algiers, La. He has had twenty-five, or more, accessions to the church, and will report every assessment paid in full. A short time ago he organized a Junior League of seventy-five members, which is flourishing vigorously, and gives promise of accomplishing much good. About $2 per member has been paid on the Twentieth Century Fund. The Sunday-school has paid more for missions than during any preceding year. Bro. Dodson is highly esteemed by his flock, who are anxious for his return.

As the city pastors mentioned below were not at the preachers' meeting on Monday morning, we failed to get from them a more complete summary of their year's work.

The talented Dr. LaPrade has had a prosperous year at Rayne Memorial, and we are confident his finances will be up in full. His congregation are delighted with him.

Under the pastorate of Rev. R. H. Wynn, Louisiana Avenue is doing splendidly. Every department of church work is flourishing, and Bro. Wynn will carry up a fine report.

Rev. P. O. Lowrey has done excellently at Burgundy Street Church. He has fine congregations, a flourishing Sunday-school, a splendid League, and a new mission in successful operation.

Rev. George D. Parker's efforts at Carrollton Avenue have been attended with gratifying success. He has had a number of additions to the church, boasts one of the best Sunday-schools in the city, has a fine Epworth League, and will report a considerable sum for the Twentieth Century Fund. His collections are all in full.

MINISTERIAL COURTESY.

The editor of the Alabama Advocate, in commenting upon the subject of ministerial behavior at Conference, utters the following sage and not altogether inappropriate advice:

"Of course, we will be considerate. We will not lean back on ordinary chairs; we will not spit tobacco juice on the stove or hearth, or mantelpiece; we will not smoke unless we are absolutely sure it is pleasant to the family and companions. How any man of refined sensibility can get his consent to steep lace curtains, and quilts, and blankets in the fumes of tobacco, is passing strange. Yet ladies tell me that some of their preacher guests do this—even some in high places. We ought to so act in all respects as to leave a blessing when we are gone, and to be pleasantly remembered. We should so conduct ourselves as to leave a favorable impression for Christianity and our church."

Not seldom is it the case that the man who tears a reputation to tatters himself has no reputation to speak of.

The home instruction many children receive in regard to the importance of honoring the truth is so defective as to be practically worthless.

NOTES.

***

***

Counting the local preachers, the North Georgia Conference has within its bounds nearly one hundred thousand members.

***

During the past decade Detroit Methodism has grown faster than Detroit's population. The same is true also of Methodism in the State of Michigan.

***

First Church, Jackson, Miss., has had 126 accessions during the year, and has raised for all purposes, including the Twentieth Century Fund, nearly $10,300.

***

We are gratified to note that orders have been issued by the authorities at Washington forbidding in future the sailing of troops from San Francisco on Sunday.

***

Dr. W. C. Black, who retires from the editorial chair of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, has done seven years of noble and faithful work.—St. Louis Advocate.

***

The North Georgia Conference this year paid one hundred cents on the dollar to her missionaries in the home field. What a pity that every Conference does not do likewise!

***

***

A short time ago Japan passed a law prohibiting the use of tobacco by persons under twenty years of age, and making it a punishable offense for anybody to sell the weed to minors.

***

Miss Belle Kearney, the gifted temperance lecturer and author, recently addressed the Georgia Legislature, and also the North Georgia Conference. Her speeches on both occasions were highly commended by the papers.

***

A short time ago Bishop Galloway delivered an address in Little Rock, Ark., at the corner-stone laying of the new million-dollar capitol, as proxy for Governor Longino, of Mississippi. It is needless to say he met every expectation.

***

Rev. H. R. Singleton, after an absence covering a number of years, has been transferred from the White River Conference back to his home Conference, the Mississippi. He will be most cordially welcomed by his many old friends. During the past year, or more, he has been stationed at Searcy, Ark., where he has done a fine work.

Rev. T. H. Randle, of the Louisiana Conference, paid the ADVOCATE office an appreciated call on last Tuesday.

***

Dr. H. M. DuBose, the brilliant editor of the Epworth Era, favored the ADVOCATE office with a pleasant call on last Tuesday.

***

Says the Michigan Advocate: "One pastor found that under the terms of the Twentieth Century call his church should give $2,000 and secure 200 conversions. The money has been raised, and there have been in that church 170 converts so far."

***

A noble-hearted New Orleans Methodist family, the name of which we are not authorized to give, has given $5,000 to endow a chair in the Southern Methodist University at Soochow, China. We see it stated that the Waco district in Texas has contributed $1,000 to the same institution.

***

Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald, of the M. E. Church, South, contributes the leading article in The American Illustrated Methodist Magazine for December, "On Asbury's Trail in the Land of the Sky." The article is illustrated from photographs of scenes in the picturesque mountain districts of North Carolina.

***

We regret to see Dr. Black retire from our Southern Methodist journalism. He has done well—admirably both in his editorial and business connection with the paper. His burden has been heavy, and he retires with the consciousness of having done his duty, and done it well.—Wesleyan Advocate, Dec. 5.

***

Rev. P. R. Knickerbocker, who for the past two years has served the church at Crowley, La., with signal success, has been transferred to the White River Conference, and stationed at Searcy, Ark. Bro. Knickerbocker is a young man of much usefulness and fine promise, and we feel sure will prove to be a valuable addition to the new Conference of which he has just become a member. He will be greatly missed by his numerous friends in Louisiana.

***

Last week's issue of the Baptist, published at Jackson, Miss., contained the following note anent a sermon preached recently by the ADVOCATE editor at the First Methodist Church, Jackson: "Some time ago we heard Dr. Black preach a sermon on 'Everlasting Punishment,' which so pleased us that we present it in this issue of the Baptist, feeling certain that it will be appreciated by hundreds of our readers who honor this Bible doctrine, so much of late set in the background."

***

Brother layman, while Conference is in session, instead of indulging in idle speculation as to whether your pastor will be returned, or as to who and what sort of man your next pastor will be, would it not be far better to pray God's blessing to rest upon the work of the Conference? If the laymen at home would daily remember at a throne of grace this important annual convocation during the time of its sitting, surely their supplication would not only be well pleasing unto God, but would bring down a large measure of grace upon us all.

***

The brethren of the Louisiana Conference are delighted that the gifted and genial Bishop Galloway is to be with them a second time in succession. No man in the church is more generally beloved than he, nor have we a more attractive speaker or a more skillful presiding officer. He is well-nigh tireless in toil, ready for any and all occasions, and in constant and self-sacrificing service sets an example that ought to stimulate us all. May his usefulness increase with his years, and may the divine blessing rest upon him and upon the Conference he is to hold this week.

"Rev. J. W. Smith found $100 in bank to his credit when he reached Gate City, Va., his new field of labor. The Big Stone Gap folk heard about it and put $150 in bank to the credit of Rev. J. L. Weber, the new preacher in charge. In addition to this they are repairing and repapering the splendid parsonage, which is one of the best in any Conference."

If other charges were considerate enough to perform a similar good work, it would be a God-send to many a self-sacrificing itinerant, whose purse is usually anything but plethoric after a move.

The Mississippi Conference.

Excepting the tenderness of tone in which my father called the names of his own family, there were no words which fell from his lips so lovingly as the words, "The Mississippi Conference." Around his Conference centered his life interest, and his annual visit to Conference was the most joyous period to him.

We know so little of how the blessed dead are employed; but some think they have missions to earth,—even permission to participate in spirit in earth's purest joys.

It is a pleasure to me to think that my father knows it is earth's December—Conference time: that he is with his brethren as they "round up" the year's work.

Mortal ears are deaf to spiritual sounds; but, perhaps, when my father's name is called this year at Conference, from the battlements of heaven he will answer, "Ad anm."

NOTES FROM THE MISSION FIELDS.

(Forwarded by Dr. W. R. Lambuth.)

BRAZIL.

Rev. J. L. Kennedy, presiding elder of the Rio de Janeiro district, writes: "I have made a recent trip on my new circuit, Estrada Novo, 140 miles distant; spent 13 days, rode 50 miles on horseback, baptized 10 infants, 3 adults, and received 20 candidates. We now have, after my third visit (and the only three visits), 51 members, 70 candidates, 6 or 7 preaching-places, and a well-organized Board of Stewards in this new field, besides a densely populated rural district and a people aroused on the subject of the gospel. One of our bitter foes says the gospel has assumed the form of an epidemic up there. I say, Amen! Pray for us. We lack men and means, and have not any too much grace."

Rev. H. C. Tucker, agent of the American Bible Society in Brazil, writes: "The reports are encouraging from all parts of the field; the workers are generally well. Our Bible work is the best this year we have had yet. In eight months we have sold over 33,000 copies of the Scriptures—more than we distributed during the whole of last year."

CHINA.

Dr. A. P. Parker writes from Shanghai: "Daily prayer meetings are held morning and evening, and there is much earnest waiting upon God to learn the lessons that he would teach by this terrible visitation. News has been received of the murder of eleven more missionaries in the province of Shansi—nine men and women and two children—making over sixty murders in that province to date. A number of others are in hiding in different parts of that now dreadful province, and it is exceedingly doubtful whether they will be able to make their escape. The persecution and murder of native Christians still goes on in Shansi, Chili, and Shantung.

"The Fall term of the college has opened fairly well. We have about 125 pupils, and some thirty-odd more have registered and will come later. We will have to wait until things cool down before our schools fill up again, but I have no doubt that when these troubles are settled our schools will be full to overflowing, and our work will go forward by leaps and bounds. The church at home ought to be making preparation for the work here in China which is soon to open up in a grand way, such as has never been seen in this country before. Let us be ready for the great opportunity when it comes."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, now in session, is one of the most successful, both in attendance and in enthusiasm for the work in hand, ever held. The organization continues to grow, the reports showing an increase in membership during the past year of about 15,000. That its influence is also spreading may be seen from this extract from the annual report of Mrs. S. M. D. Fry, of Illinois, corresponding secretary: "During the past year we not only pressed the battle at home, but followed the flag into Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands. Mrs. Ruth Shaffner Etnier has been asked to take charge of our work in Porto Rico; Mrs. Major Roberts in Cuba, where Mrs. Kate Stewart, daughter-in-law of our Mother Stewart, organized the first Union in Havana. Mrs. Thatcher visited Havana during the year, and lent a helping hand in the work among the soldiers. Manila is not without our victory, either, for there is an energetic president of a new Union there, Mrs. Cornelia C. Moots, the corresponding secretary being Miss Annie A. Robbins, chief nurse Santa Mesa U. S. A. Hospital."

No portion of the President's annual message to Congress gave more satisfaction to those who advocate international arbitration as a substitute for war than the clause announcing that sixteen nations, including all of what are known as the "great powers," had ratified the convention adopted at The Hague conference for the reference of international disputes to an International Arbitration Bureau, composed of representatives from each of the signatory powers. The President also announced the completion of the representation of the United States in the arbitration court by the appointment of ex-President Harrison, Chief Justice Fuller, of the United States Supreme Court; Attorney General Griggs, and ex-Senator Grey.

It has more than once been sneeringly remarked that God is not in the United States Constitution. It is true that God is not named in the written Constitution, but he is in the hearts of the people, and few important State papers have ever been promulgated that did not specifically do him reverence. The President's message says: "Education, religion and morality have kept pace with our advancement in other directions, and while extending its power, the government has adhered to its foundation principles, and abated none of them in dealing with our new peoples and possessions. A nation so preserved and blessed gives reverent thanks to God, and invites his guidance and the continuance of his care and favor."

The committee of sixteen delegated by the Presbyterian General Assembly, at its meeting in St. Louis last Spring, to receive and consider recommendations for a revision of the Presbyterian creed, began its work in Washington this week, and will hold daily meetings until it reaches some decision, or demonstrates that it can not. Its proceedings will not be made public until its report is made to the General Assembly at its meeting in Philadelphia next May. The distinguished membership of the committee will give authority to its report. As a basis upon which to work, the committee has the votes taken in each of the 224 Presbyteries of the United States, together with all recommendations made by them.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

A LEAF FROM MY JOURNAL.

A neighbor's Thanksgiving turkey gobbles near by, awaiting decapitation. The recurrence of Thanksgiving, Methodist Annual Conference, and Christmas, but accentuates the desolation of the departed hero's widow, and augments her sorrow. After the honor of being the wife of a Methodist preacher for three and a half decades, one ever after turns to the approaching Conference as the supreme event of the year. Memories sweeter than honey from flowers of Eden cluster around this season of suspense in the parsonage. The very air has to me a nameless pathos, a memorial tenderness, that lingers like a benediction. My affection is bound to the itinerancy in strong cords, and clings like mantling ivy to friends whose deeds still linger like the perfume of violets, or the echo of far-away bells.

The preachers are now busy on the home-stretch, not only in bringing up the regular assessments, but swelling the educational fund befitting the close of the departing century and Methodism that was born in a college. The heroines of the parsonage are getting ready to either go or stay; leading a kind of dual existence; pursuing a tentative course; awaiting developments and the decision of the powers that be. This can be appreciated only by those who have been behind the scenes, renovating the parsonage and the wardrobe of its inmates, turning old carpets and dresses, taking an inventory of her own, and the parsonage crockery and house-furnishings, so as to leave a correct list with the Ladies' Aid Society. This glorious itinerancy has a variety, a stimulating glow in it, and the very uncertainty of the appointments is interesting. I retire from its roll more than ever impressed with its grandeur and possibilities. This nomadic, changeful life presents many phases that are an interesting study. It has a side of moral grandeur, a touch of pathos, and a view of the ludicrous, and these sometimes all pass in such swift review that one is alternately moved with sublimity, affected to tears, or convulsed with laughter, as the case may be, if one responds readily to all these phases. To the cultured feminine taste there are many things to laugh at (secretly); mismatched, incongruous things, that seem hard to harmonize, but by the alchemy of tact and love is transmuted into a mosaic that charms with its surprises and contrasts. It is a field of endless diversity, constantly opening up unexpected vistas of beauty and new avenues of usefulness. There is not a single dull day in it. What a strange, paradoxical life it is, this living a year at a time, "not knowing whither;" one day elegantly entertaining the Bishop and his cabinet, and the next scarcely able to stop a bread wagon.

No position in life involves more delicate relations than the Methodist pastorate; yet our preachers are equal to every demand upon them. They are the noblest types of manhood. Our own Bishop Galloway towers above McKinley, and the humblest preacher in the ranks is a greater hero than Wellington. And the tireless, thoughtful women (God bless them!), often abbreviating their rest and Christmas pleasures to minister to the outgoing and incoming pastors and families. But for them the Methodist itinerancy would not be possible.

Dr. Weems and Bro. Guice are putting in good work at Central and on the district, and are in favor with the people, who desire their return.

NOTICE.

It seems to me that there is too little concern about our organization. We certainly need a better organic form, and more interest in the perpetuation of our order. Many of our members would leave at death no other legacy for their family than, perhaps, a very small amount from the reserve fund.

Brethren, let us begin to work afresh. Let us see how many honorary members we can bring up to Conference, as was proposed by a brother some time ago.

Virginia College Goes Ahead.

TAKES POSSESSION OF A HOTEL WHERE ITS YOUNG WOMEN LIVE AND STUDY.

The management of Virginia College has brought system and order out of the chaos caused by the fire which destroyed the college building and its contents at Roanoke. After the fire the girl students were well cared for by the hospitable people of Roanoke, and many offers were made of buildings in which to continue the work of educating them. Miss Harris, president of the college, would accept no building that was not heated by steam, fearing that the students would suffer in health after being accustomed to the comforts of the college buildings. At length an excellent temporary location has been found in the handsome and sanitary building of the Buena Vista Hotel, at Buena Vista. Here the young women are pursuing their studies with the excellent faculty and administrative force of the college in direction, and they are hugely enjoying the novelty of college life in a comfortable resort hotel. The college rules and routine are followed, and no serious interruption of studies has been caused.

The sympathy of the friends and patrons of the school has been shown by the continuance in their places of nearly all the students and the willingness to send new ones. Arrangements are under consideration to continue the college in a new building of its own, in or near Roanoke.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention that you read this generous offer in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

THE BABY'S WALK.

BY L. E. JOHNSON.

My papa took me out to walk;
I thought it would be sport!
But papa's legs are very long,
And mine are very short.
And my papa began to talk,
And my papa forgot
He had a baby out to walk—
Oh, how I had to trot!

My papa went on fast and fast,
He dragged me like a cart!
I ran so that my little bones
Felt coming all apart.
My papa like a giant walked,
He walked with great long stride!
I didn't just know how to fly,
And I fell down and cried!

My papa thinks it's strange I'm tired
With such a little walk!
I'd like to tell my dear papa—
If I knew how to talk—
I'd like to tell him, when he says,

HAPPIEST CLASS OF PEOPLE.

In writing of "The Happiest Class of People" in the Woman's Home Companion, for October, John Gilmer Speed arrives at the following conclusion: "I have told you who are the unhappiest men, and now it is my pleasant duty to speak of the happiest state. Solomon indicated it in his petition, 'Give me neither riches nor poverty.' There is in that, as in most of the proverbs, both definition and description. Neither riches nor poverty. I need say little more. We all know what the alternative is—that middle state where the income safely exceeds the expenditure. Then a man can be happy—and he have a good temper and a robust digestion—it does not make much difference what goes on around him. He is safe, and for the time being, at least, his family is secure. The best thing about this happiest state is that it has within it such a tremendously large class. It is not only a man here and there that belongs within it; the men are legion. In this country it embraces all of the great middle class. And the very great majority of them do not even know that theirs is the happiest state; they do not dream how well they are off. Some of them, being wrong-headed men, envy their richer neighbors; some others throw away their valuable sufficiency in the endeavor to get riches; some others get riches, and then are not as happy as they were before. Let those who are in this happiest state continue in it if they can, for the world at large and the country at home has great need for them. They constitute the great conservative force—the force which prevents the democratic country from going pell-mell to smash; they represent the solid honesty which stands midway between the madness of a too rapid social reform and the insatiable greed of the unscrupulous who look upon the whole world as a gold mine that belongs to them by right of inheritance or purchase. Happy should be the land where this class is very great; and it is greater in the United States than anywhere else in the world."

COLDS.

Late Fall and early Winter find us more or less afflicted by colds, and happy is the woman that gets through the year without a sniffle. The remedies are many and diverse, but the best way to cure a cold is not to have one, and this happy condition can be brought about by a little forethought and painstaking. It is not too much air that makes one sneeze and feel the head a fountain of living water, but not enough air. My neighbor stuffs cotton around the window frames and even pokes it into the keyhole, but she wakes some morning with a severe headache, nose stopped up, and almost sneezes the top of her head off, and wonders after all her care she should catch a cold. Ah! my dear! more fresh air in the heated house night and day would make good blood, and good blood is a proof against these unpleasant distempers. That piece of mince pie you ate last night, on top of a hearty supper, invited the little cold devil to enter, much to your discomfort. Standing at the open door for a few last words with a dear friend has paved the way to many a sickness as well as not having warm flannel next the skin, or cooling off suddenly, after frying those cakes for that husband of yours. One lady is sorely troubled by catarrh in Fall and early Winter. Her medicine chest is the backyard. From April to November she makes it a rule to work one hour in the open air. She wards off many a cold in this way, and is in good health at sixty-five years old. She keeps the air indoors as pure as possible. There is always a window partly open, where the fresh air can reach the sitting-room, and has a warm fire to make it comfortable. She also has window shelves filled with pot plants. These help to keep the rooms free from impure air, and the care of them occupies her mind; she has no time to catch cold.—Green's Fruit Grower.

WINSTON CHURCHILL MAKES CONFESSION.

"As a boy, I was not fond of books. Perhaps that was because my uncle, with whom I lived after the death of my parents, possessed a large library. When you have a few books only, you read; many books, when within the reach of your arm, do not always create a taste for literature; at least, this was so in my case. After my graduation at Annapolis in 1894, I accepted a position on the Army and Navy Journal. During the five months that I remained with that publication, I made my first attempt at fiction. It was a short story—about twelve thousand words in length—which I called 'Keegan's Elopement.' This I submitted to the Century Magazine, and, after a very anxious and trying four weeks, received a note of acceptance.

"I shall never forget those four weeks. I spent most of my leisure moments in pacing up and down and across Union Square, looking up at the Century office windows, anxiously wondering whether or not my story would be accepted. The seventy-five dollars which I received for the story encouraged me to write two more short stories. These were rejected. I realized, after they were returned, that they were so bad that it would be of no use to send them out the second time. My next effort in the way of fiction was called 'By Order of the Admiral,' and was accepted by the Century people.

"It was quite three years before my first story was used, and I had almost concluded that their only reason for buying it was to rid the world of so much bad literature—a case of public-spirited philanthropy."—Success.

MINISTERS' CHILDREN.

The salaries of the clergy of the United States do not average $500 a year, and yet as a class they are the best educated, most active, refined, and elevated of the nation. With less culture, with less character, with less mental power, there are men all over this land who earn from $1,000 to $5,000 a year. But look at the results. Taking them as they come, the biographies of a hundred clergymen who have families show that of their sons, 110 became ministers; and of the remainder of their sons, by far the largest part rose to eminence as professional men, merchants and scholars. As to their daughters, their names are merged into others; but there is a significant fact, which we do not remember to have seen noticed in that connection, that not only here, but in England, where titles are so highly prized, and the possession of gentle blood is a passport to high places, it is very often referred to as a matter of note, as indicating safety and respectability, "his mother was the daughter of a clergyman." We will venture the opinion that three-fourths of the great men of this nation are not over two degrees removed from clergymen's families, or from families strictly religious. When it can be said of a man or woman that his father or grandfather was a clergyman, there is a feeling within us of a certain elevation of character—a kind of guaranty of respectability of blood, of purity, and integrity.—Dr. Haven.

TOO BUSY TO BE KIND.

"I sometimes think we women, nowadays, are in danger of being too busy to be really useful," said an old lady, thoughtfully. "We hear so much about making every minute count, and always having some work or course of study for spare hours, and having our activities all systematized, that there is no place left for small wayside kindnesses. We go to see the sick neighbor and relieve the poor neighbor, but for the common, everyday neighbor, who has not fallen by the way, so far as we can see, we haven't a minute to spare. But everybody who needs a cup of cold water isn't calling the fact out to the world, and there are a great many little pauses by the way that are no waste of time. The old-fashioned exchange of garden flowers over the back fence and friendly chat about domestic matters helped to brighten weary days, and brought more cheer than many a sermon. We ought not to be too busy to inquire for the girl away at school, or to be interested in the letter from the boy at sea. It's a comfort to the mother's lonely heart to feel that somebody else cares for that which means so much to her. Especially we ought not to be too busy to give and receive little kindnesses in our own home." May no one be able to say of us that we are too busy to be kind. —The Young Woman.

Temperance.

THE LIQUOR PRESCRIPTION.

We believe that no physician should ever write a prescription for alcohol in any form, for any purpose, for any one. But it is not now our purpose to defend that proposition or enlarge upon it. We grant there are many honest and noble physicians who use alcoholics in their practice and prescribe them legitimately, and with this class we have no quarrel. But we write now of that other class of medical men, and we blush for our profession when we say that their number is large, who write prescriptions for any kind of liquor, in any quantity, for any person.

This they do without reserve, caring nothing for the degree of dissipation to which the person applying has gone, or for the reason he designs for the use of the beverage. The man who wants so much beer or whisky asks the doctor for a prescription, and the latter, conscienceless and without honor, complies with the request, pockets a paltry dime or quarter, and sends the debauchee on his way! Yes, that doctor is not only without honor and conscience, but he is utterly lost to all self respect. Not only so, but he is a criminal of the most dangerous kind. Most dangerous because, while doing this damnable business, he poses as a man of respectability and honor, and a promoter of the welfare of the community in which he lives. Dangerous is he because he is a hypocrite. He "steals the livery of heaven to serve the devil in."

We write of what we know. In a village near us prescriptions are written in great numbers by graduates of the best colleges in the United States for ten cents apiece, and in our own Columbus suburb a large business in this line is done for the same pittance. Our so-called drug store, whose proprietor is now on trial before the court for doing a saloon business without payment of the Dow tax, has sold fully 1,200 bottles of beer in the last three months, and this on the prescription of physicians. These prescriptions are given to any one who applies, and range from one half dozen to six dozen bottles each. New Albany, a village just east of us, is having a similar experience. And the same conscienceless thing is done by physicians everywhere in their relations to whisky traffic as carried on by nearly all "pharmacies" and drug stores.—Sanative Medicines.

"TOUCH NOT."

No Methodist can sign a petition for any saloon or rent property for use in the liquor traffic without violating the law of his church and conscience. The indignation and disgust of a Conference ought to prevent the presence in the body of any Methodist who will hire his houses for immoral purposes, provided the rent is prompt. The Jewish Church would not allow a shekel to come into the treasury of the Lord if the wages are profits of vileness. Better for the preacher to feed on a cold pone and a herring than on viands tainted by the touch of a corrupt man.—Richmond Advocate.

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

CANNON—MARY E. CANNON (nee White) died at her home in Bentonia, Yazoo county, Miss., Oct. 14, 1900. Her illness was of few days, but full of pain. Everything that loved ones and friends could do was done to keep her, but death came and took her. But death did not find her unprepared. She had in her girlhood days sought and found Jesus as her Savior, to whom, until the day of her death, she gave her life in truest devotion. She did not seem to know that death was so near, and said nothing about dying; but she had undying faith in God and in him who is the resurrection and the life. So death did not find her unprepared. I have been her pastor since January, 1897; I have been in her company a great many times during these four years; I never saw a more devout Christian anywhere than she was. Her place at home and in the church will be hard to fill. Her life as wife and mother was one of rare devotion. It was in these relations that her Christian character had its best illustration. She diligently sought to do her whole duty to her husband and children.

Sister Cannon was born in Lauderdale county, Miss., Oct. 15, 1847. She joined the Methodist Church when quite young. She was married to William A. Cannon, Dec. 20, 1871, with whom she lived happily until the day of her death. She now rests from the toil and sufferings of life, and her many kind deeds solace with us. She leaves a husband and seven children, besides other relatives and many friends, to mourn. May God comfort the bereaved ones till they meet in heaven! C. C. EVANS, Pastor.

PRESLEY—Mrs. M. E. PRESLEY (nee Boyd) was born July 7, 1834, in Chester district, S. C. She professed religion in early girlhood and joined the Presbyterian Church. In 1857 she, with her family, moved to Mississippi. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at Coldwater, Miss., soon after she arrived from South Carolina, and was one of the charter members of this church. She was one of the best, truest, and most faithful members in our church. Born of the best family, reared in the wholesome and pure atmosphere of a religious home, she always exhibited the culture, refinement and simplicity of a strong, well-poised and transfigured soul.

Sister Presley was a member of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and she was decidedly missionary in interest, sympathy, and hope. She walked before the church and the community as a bright, hopeful, loyal, optimistic Christian, who needed to make no apology, for "the love of Christ constrained her." She was wise, useful, consecrated, earnest, and devout. In October, 1872, she was married to Mr. J. S. Presley, who, with two brothers, are left to feel and weep over their loss. On Aug. 11, 1900, she quietly and peacefully fell on sleep. Her life was one beautiful day of sunshine and encouragement. All who met her felt the inspiration of a better life. Now she rests in heaven, free from toil and trouble. God will keep alive at Coldwater for years to come the sweet, cheering, triumphant influence of her consecrated life.

L. M. LIPSCOMB.

HENRY—Mrs. HENRIETTA M. HENRY (nee Hought) was born in Chambers county, Ala., in 1852. Her parents moved to Louisiana when she was quite a child. She was converted and joined the church at Arizona, Claiborne parish, under the preaching of Rev. N. A. Cravens, during either the year 1871 or 1872; was married in December, 1875, to D. L. Henry, and died in the triumphs of seving faith, Sept. 13, 1900, near Knowles P. O., Lincoln parish, La.

Sister Henry was a member of Sa'em Church, Simsboro circuit. She was a true, noble woman; a devoted wife and mother. She was the joy and comfort of her home. She dearly loved the church of her choice, and was constant in her attendance upon the means of grace. She was a ripe Christian and ready for her departure. It was my privilege to visit her a few days before she passed to her reward. She expressed herself as ready for the change, and anxious to be released from pain. She bore her sufferings with much patience. She was not sionlly constituted, and fell that she was physically too frail to recover. She died as she had lived—in great peace.

THOS. J. MARTIN, P. C.

BRYAN—The subject of this sketch, Bro. JAS L. BRYAN, was born Nov. 7 1849 and died Oct. 25, 1900, aged fifty-one years nine months and eighteen days. For the last several years of his life he was a consistent member of the Methodist Church. The preacher found in him a ready friend and supporter. He stood foremost in business, schools, and other enterprises. For the last few months of his life he was an invalid, and bore with but little complaint and admirable fortitude indescribable pain. He was a friend to the man to whom he was a friend; a man of no false pretension. During the last few weeks of his life the esteem in which he was held was manifest by the numbers that came to see him. Realizing a few months before he died his proximate death, he was spoken to pointedly about his soul's salvation. He gave decided expression to his reconciliation to his Heavenly Father. More than once he spoke to the subject, having convictions of hope. Loving his family dearly, he longed to live; but, as God saw proper to take him, we can only command his loved ones to him who is faithful and just in all his ways. HIS PASTOR.

Calhoun, La.

HOLMES—Mrs. MAMIE HOLMES (nee Sadler) was born in Galveston, Texas, Nov. 27, 1876; joined the Southern Methodist Church in 1888; was married to Mr. Geo. W. Holmes in Corinth, Miss., Dec. 29, 1897, and moved to Hernando, Miss., where she lived until death—Nov. 15, 1900. Her parents say, "Mamie was always a Christian." She was an earnest worker in the church. The holy influence of her songs and prayers will ever abide with us. Her home life was beautiful. She was a dutiful, loving child; a faithful, confiding wife; a fond mother, and a true, helpful friend—hopeful, cheerful, and happy. She leaves fond parents, devoted brothers and sisters, a sad husband and little child, and a host of friends, to mourn her loss; and how the church she loved so well will miss her! But "the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord," for giving us such a life for a while to encourage and help us. She is gone from us now, and some glad day (if we are faithful) we hope to meet her in the happy home of eternal joy. Her pastor,

J. H. SMITH.

LEA—On Sept. 22, 1900, the death angel again visited the home of Mr. W. E. Lea, and triumphantly bore the sweet spirit of his son, GROVER, to that beautiful beyond. Grover was loved by all who knew him for his many excellent traits of character. He was truly a dutiful son and an affectionate brother. It seems so hard to see one so young taken away; yet God is a wise and unerring Father, and he knows best.

Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care;
The opening bud to heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there.

Father, brothers, and sisters, Grover can not come to you, but you have the sweet consolation that you can go to him; so live, then, that when your work here is ended, you will all meet around God's bright throne, where deaths and partings are unknown.

HIS COUSIN.

MONTS—Resolutions of respect regarding the death of Sister I. MONTS:

Whereas, God, in his wisdom, has seen proper to remove from our midst Sister Monts, the wife of our beloved and respected superintendent, Bro. Isaac Monts; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, as a Sunday-school, feel and deplore her loss from our midst, and do hereby extend to Bro. Monts our heartfelt sympathies, and assure him that his sorrow is our sorrow, and that we shall pray that the God of all grace may sustain him.

Resolved, That we, as a Sunday-school, recognizing in her, as we do, a true Christian and devout mother in Israel, strive to emulate her pure life and many Christian graces.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to Bro. Monts, and also that a copy be spread upon the Minutes of the Sunday-school; also that a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

(Signed) A. S. SUMNER, superintendent; A. M. REA, secretary; L. M. ELLIOTT, treasurer, committee.

We are never out of the reach of temptation. Both at home and abroad we are liable to meet with allurements to evil; the morning opens with perils, the shades of evening find us still in jeopardy. They are well kept whom God keeps, but woe unto those who go forth into the world, or even dare to walk their own house unarmed. Those who think themselves secure are more exposed to danger than any others. The armor-bearer of sin is self-confidence. Be not sure. We need a watchman for the night as well as a guardian for the day. Oh, for the constraining love of Jesus to keep us active and useful.—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to December, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.

This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.
No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.
No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.
No. 7½ Machine, Drop head cabinet, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $38. Our price, $23.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
513 Camp St., New Orleans

A Gift to Give.

It is often difficult to decide what to get your friends for holiday gifts. Here is a suggestion:

"Good morning, Jennie, I have brought you a nice present," said Gertrude, as she handed her friend a neatly wrapped package.

The pale, weary looking girl, who was slowly recovering from severe illness, opened the bundle and held up a large bottle of clear, rich medicine.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla!" she exclaimed. "I have been reading about it to-day and wished I had a bottle."

On New Year's Day Jennie was able to be out on the street and to her friends who remarked how well she was looking she simply said, "Hood's Sarsaparilla," and every one of them knew it was this great medicine that had given back her health.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL STUDIES; OR, EXPOSITORY AND HOMILETICAL NOTES ON THE INTERNATIONAL LESSONS FOR 1901. By E. E. Hoss, D. D., LL.D. Editor Nashville Christian Advocate. With maps and numerous illustrations. 12 mo. 496 pages. Cloth. Price, 50 cents. Nashville, Tenn., Dallas, Texas: Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agents.

This handy and highly useful volume, just from the press, is, in our opinion, the best collection of Sunday-school lesson notes that our distinguished friend, Dr. Hoss, has given the public. The comments are terse, forceful, accurate, and comprehensive, without being tedious, and will prove very helpful to pastors, Sunday-school teachers and earnest Bible students. Numerous happy quotations from the best authorities are given, while the somewhat profuse illustrations which are provided lend additional interest to the volume. Considering its excellence in connection with its low price, we think it ought to have a large sale.

A SHORT HISTORY OF METHODISM. By John W. Boswell, D. D., Assistant Editor of the Christian Advocate, Nashville 16 mo. 167 pages. Cloth. Price, 60 cents. Nashville, Tenn., and Dallas, Texas: Publishing House of the M. E Church, South, Barbee & Smith, Agents.

The author of this modest little volume has evidently done his work well, and has given the church and the reading public a reliable, readable, and highly satisfactory account, in brief compass, of the rise, progress, and distinctive features of the great Wesleyan revival movement that has appropriately been denominated "Methodism." This book contains much useful and inspiring information, and will be read with great interest by young and old who have not time to peruse larger works on the subject. Those who read it, however, are almost certain to want to know more about the mighty movement that Methodism has become. The creed, polity, and discipline of Methodism are herein lucidly set forth, the duties of the different officers of the church, lay and clerical, being also forcibly stated. The concluding chapters tell of the work of the church in missions, education, Sunday-schools, etc., and describe the various branches of our denomination. A portrait of the author is given as a frontispiece. We predict for it an extensive circulation.

We have just received a copy of a new booklet by Rev. I. L. Peebles, of the Mississippi Conference, entitled, "Spiritualism, or Spiritism; and What It Is." We have not had time to examine as yet, but we have no doubt that it is an excellent little treatise on the subject. It may be obtained from our Publishing House at Nashville for 30 cents.

He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace. And the men who have this life in them, are the true lords or kings of the earth—they, and they only.—John Ruskin.

A SHARP REBUKE.

"You should either properly perform your duties or resign your position as chief of police."

Such was the rebuke administered a few days ago to Chief Devery by Bernard J. York, president of the New York Police Board, at the conclusion of a discussion regarding the police system of protecting crime. The New York Chief of Police can hardly afford to be derelict in duty after this.

It is said of Midas that whatever he touched turned to gold. In these days, if you touch some men with gold, they will turn to anything.—Epworth Herald.

A Slave Holder's Daughter.

Cloth, 12 Mo, Fully Illustrated. $1.

This is a book which photographs the new South in contrast with the old. It deals especially with the evolution of Southern women—their surprising energy in leaping from the lap of the old, feudal, luxurious life to meet the stern realities of to-day. The author herself belongs by birthright to the old regime, while in full sympathy with the new condition. She writes from the inside, and pictures in her vivid and throbbing pages the situation down in Dixie as it relates to the negro question, the woman question, temperance, the economist, etc. All those who would have an inside knowledge of Dixie's Land as it is to-day should read it.

Port Gibson Female College,

Port Gibson, Miss.

Port Gibson Female College is one of the oldest female colleges in the Mississippi Conference. For more than fifty years she has been contributing to the training and development of Christian womanhood in this and other States.

Her course of study is academic rather than collegiate, which should commend the school to parents who have young girls to educate. The P. G. F. C. offers superior advantages for less money than any other school of like grade in the State. Methodist Parents who want to educate their daughters can do so as cheaply here as it is being done by the State at Columbus, i. e., if they give their girls the ornate branches.

We give board, including fuel, light, washing, tuition and music, or any one extra, for $160; without an extra, $130. Girls wishing to prepare themselves to teach can enter the middle of January and continue through the session for $75, with music or any other ornate branch; without an ornate branch, $65.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The fifty-fifth session of tha Lonisiana Conference was called to order in the Methodist Church at Baton Ronge by Bishop Galloway, at 9 o'clock, Thursday morning, Dec. 13, 1900. After devotional exercises, conducted by the Bishop, the roll-call revealed the presence of most of the preachers and a few lay delegates. Of the connectional corps, Drs. DuBose, Hammond, Atkins and Tigert were present at the opening session, besides Mr. W. C. Everett, of the Publishing House, and Dr. G. D. French, representing the American Bible Society. Dr. Pritchett, by a mistake as to the date, arrived a day too soon, and was obliged to leave before the Conference opened, much to the regret of the Conference. Rev. P. L. Cobb is present in the interest of the Mission Board. On the night before the Conference opened Dr. DuBose preached an able and profitable sermon. Dr. Sawyer was nominated for secretary, but declined the nomination on the ground of his long service in that capacity. Rev. F. S. Parker was elected secretary, with Rev. Robert H. Wynn, assistant, and Rev. W. G. Evans, statistical secretary. Bros. Cobern, of the Western Virginia Conference, and Smith, of the Alabama Conference, were introdnced. The connectional officers present were introdnced to the Conference, and made some statement of their work. After the penal questions of organisation were settled and the standing committees appointed, Question 20 was called, and the names of the superannuated preachers were called and their characters were passed. A brotherly letter from Dr. R. S. Trippett, of Doncaster, England, was read by Dr. Sawyer. Rev. J. M. Johnson reported his experience and work during the year. Rev. Wilson Moore reported himself able to take work again, and was restored to the effective list. The other superannnates, for various reasons, were not present. Revs. B. F. White and Honston Armstrong were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the superannuated relation, and W. H. Hill and Tatum M. Wafer for the supernumerary relation. Dr. DuBose made an instructive address on the League work, and reported that the work was progressing more solidly and satisfactorily than ever before. This is Dr. DuBose's first visit to tha Lonisiana Conference, and he seems to have impressed the Conference very favorably. A communication was read from tha Board of Missions in reference to the General Missionary Conference to be held in New Orleans next Spring. On motion the Board of Missions was authorized to appoint delegates to that Conference. Dr. French made an address on the Bible cause. Under the call of Question 2, Daniel E. Kelly and L. L. Roberts were continued in the class of the first year, and their characters passed. Jno. G. Sloane, H. N. Brown and C. D. Atkinson ware advanced to the second yaar. Under Question 12, P. R. Knickerbocker, T. M. Wafer, W. H. Benton and W. A. Clark were continued in the class of tha fourth year. P. O. Lowrey, C. C. Wier and A. W. Turner were elected to eldar's orders. S. S. Riggs was elected a local deacon. Dr. Atkins made a strong address in behalf of better Sunday-school work, and urged the claims of the Children's Visitor. Rev. E. L. Siler, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Baton Rouge, was introdnced to the Conference. The Conference decided to appoint each year an Auditing Committee, whose duty shall be to check all monays reported, so as to make them tally with the statistical reports. On the call of Question 20 tha following preachers made their reports and their characters passed: S. S. Keener, F. N. Parker, W. H. LaPrade, J. F. Foster, R. H. Wynn, K. W. Dodson, J. J. Kelly, J. B. Kent, I. T. Reames, F. G. Hocutt, F. S. Parker, E. N. Evans, S. S. Bogan. A committee was appointed to investigate charges against Rev. R. P. Howell, at his own request. After announcements the Conference adjourned.

The evening of the first day was devoted to the educational cause. The audience was well entertained by an able and thoughtful address by Dr. Hammond, setting forth the underlying principles of the Twentieth Century Movement, and the imperative necessity of adequate provision for Christian education. He was followed by Bishop Galloway in a short, characteristic address.

SECOND DAY.

On Friday morning the Conference was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. R. S. Isbell. After the calling of the roll, and the Minutes read, the report of the New Orleans Depository was read by W. B. Thomson. Dr. Cooper read the report of Centenary College. Dr. S. S. Keener presented the report of the Legal Conference.

The Committee on Conference Relations reported, recommending Revs. W. H. Hill and Tatum M. Wafer for the supernumerary, and R. S. Trippett, George Jackson, M. C. Manly, J. M. Johnson, Jas. L. Wright, J. F. Senrlock, A. D. McVoy, B. F. White and Honston Armstrong for the superannnated relation.

The committee in the case of Rev. R. P. Howell reported that they had investigated all the facts in the case, and decided that no trial was necessary.

Dr. J. H. Kirkland, chancellor of Vanderbilt University, was introduced.

Dr. Tigert made an address to the Conference full of valuable information and suggestion, besides urgent exhortation to subscribe for the Review.

Under Question 20 the following preachers made their reports, and their characters were passed, viz.: R. Randle, T. J. Upton, J. I. Hoffpauir.

The name of J. F. Wynn, at his own request, was referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the superannnated relation.

The characters of C. W. Crisler and V. D. Skipper were passed.

H. W. Rickey, J. B. Cassity, A. J. Notestine, H. W. May, P. M. Brown, I. W. Cooper, C. W. Carter, T. K. Faunt LeRoy, W. J. Porter, R. W. Vanghan, W. W. Drake, C. T. Munholland, R. W. Tnoker, Jno. A. Anders reported their charges, and their characters were passed.

Dr. Kirkland addressed the Conference felicitously on the subject of education, especially with reference to the Vanderbilt University.

Dr. I. W. Cooper made a few remarks and took a collection to help three young preachers in attendance at Centenary College.

An appeal from the Clinton Quarterly Conference was presented from the decision of the presiding elder, to the effect that a person could not be elected a steward while holding membership in a different charge from that in which he is appointed.

Prof. H. B. Carre set forth the plan recently inaugurated to endow a chair in Centenary College to the memory of the late lamented Prof. George H. Wiley, whose impress upon the old students of the college will abide for generations.

Dr. Bolling made an address on behalf of Mansfield Female College.

Dr. LaPrade introdnced Report No. 1 from the Board of Education, recommending the acceptance of the property known as the Johnston Collegiate Institute at Greensburg, which was offered to the Conference free of debt or incumbrance. The report was adopted.

BISHOP C. B. GALLOWAY.

SECOND DAY—EVENING.

The Conference met at 7:30 P. M., with a good audience of visitors to hear the cause of church extension presented. After song, Scripture reading, and prayer, the chairman of the Church Extension Board, Rev. F. S. Parker, introduced Mrs. F. A. Lyons, president of the Conference Woman's Home Mission Society, who set forth in an interesting manner the different branches of work pursued by that society. Dr. Bolling, of Shreveport, was then introduced, and held the attention of the audience for some time on the subject of church extension. At the close of his address Rev. F. S. Parker took a collection for the ruined churches of Galveston.

THIRD DAY.

After devotional exercises conducted by Rev. J. M. Brown, and the reading of the Minutes, Rev. F. N. Parker reported from the Committee on Conference Relations, recommending Rev. J. F. Wynn for the superannuated relation, and the report was adopted.

Rev. W. G. Evans was elected editor of the Minutes on the resignation of Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer.

Rev. T. J. Upton presented a resolution petitioning Congress to remove the revenue tax on legacies.

Rev. S. S. Keener asked and was granted permission to introduce the memoir of Rev. Alfred E. Clay into the report of the Committee on Memoirs.

Revs. H. B. Carre, of the Baton Rouge district, and Nelson F. Hoffpauir, of the Shreveport district, were admitted on trial.

Dr. J. W. Boswell, editor-elect of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, was introduced to the Conference.

E. L. Alford was continued on trial in the class of the first year. J. H. Montgomery was continued in the class of the second year.

Rev. J. M. Brown presented the report of the Committee on Publishing Interests.

W. C. Everett, of the Dallas branch of the Publishing House, addressed the Conference.

Dr. Boswell spoke in reference to the interests of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. Before the adoption of the report Bishop Galloway expressed his gratification that the Mississippi Conferences had decided not to establish a new paper in Mississippi, and to rally to the support of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, and exhorted the Conference to support the Conference organ more heartily.

Rev. I. T. Reames made a statement in reference to the White Castle charge.

The first Sunday in March was set apart as Good Literature Day.

The following preachers, having been passed by the Committee on Examination, and made their reports, were admitted into full connection: G. D. Parcell, W. R. Harvell, M. F. Johnson, W. G. Roberts, G. D. Parker, Martin Hebert, Barnett Wright.

On the occasion of their reception the Bishop made an impressive address, in which he emphasized the imperative necessity of a personal experience of religion as the first requisite of ministerial preparation. He warned against an official ministry and a vicarious study of the Bible in place of a ministry constrained by the love of Christ. He warned against harmful dogmatism on any side of the question of sanctification, exhorting to seek after the thing itself, and if there is any height or depth in Christian experience that we have not reached, to reach out after it. The need of the time is a revived and spirit-baptized ministry. The Bishop expressed his conviction of the fact that preaching would always be a necessity. He insisted on pastoral visiting, done in the right way, and especially the cultivation of the pastoral work by a man who feels his weakness in that direction. The entire address made a favorable and helpful impression.

Under Question 20 the characters of the following brethren were passed and their reports made, viz.: Jno. T. Sawyer, W. T. Bolling, J. E. Denson, M. G. Jenkins, J. L. P. Sheppard, H. J. Boltz, H. W. Bowman, T. S. Randle, J. O. Bennett, W. G. Evans, J. S. Sanders, J. M. Brown, R. J. Harp.

Prof. Nicholson, on behalf of the State University, tendered the use of the Garig Hall for the services on Sunday, and invited the preachers and delegates to visit the university.

S. S. Holladay was announced as having withdrawn from our church.

The following preachers' characters were passed: J. B. Williams, Berry T. Crews, W. F. Henderson, C. P. Smith, W. E. Aiken, C. F. Stapler, J. M. Franklin, S. J. Davies, B. H. Sheppard, H. R. Singleton, J. H. Brown, H. M. Banks, J. M. Henry, J. L. Pierce, S. H. Whatley, N. S. Cornell, H. O. White, R. A. Davis, T. H. McClendon, D. C. Barr, Wm. Schuhle, W. H. Hatfield.

The Bishop decided the question presented on appeal from the Clinton Quarterly Conference, affirming the decision of the presiding elder.

Rev. P. L. Cobb made some remarks to the Conference.

New Iberia, Ruston and Alexandria were nominated as the seat of the next Conference, and New Iberia was chosen.

After announcements the Conference adjourned with the benediction by the Bishop.

Up to the time of going to press no report had been received of the last day's session of the Louisiana Conference.

AH! WHO WOULD LIVE ALWAY?

BY M. L. GUSTINE.

Ah! who would live alway? The happiest here
Feel, sometimes, as tho' life had lost all its cheer,
And long for the rest that shall ever endure
In the "House of Our Father," whose foundation is sure;

Would joyfully pass from this sad earth away,
Where all things are transient, and soon must decay,
To a home that the Savior hath purchased with blood;
The glorious mansion where dwelleth our God.

Its pleasures we know not, for "ear hath not heard"
Of the beauties of heaven, or the joys they afford,
As they will be revealed when our spirits, set free
From these bodies of sin, shall ascend, Lord, to thee!

WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

It was the good fortune of this writer, not long ago, to visit Whitworth College, as the guest of Rev. M. L. Burton, the business manager of that institution. It was an encouraging visit. A somewhat extended knowledge of "female colleges" in the Southern States has led the writer to believe that most of them are more or less shams, and it was a refreshment of spirit to find one that is modest in its claims, and honest in its work. To be content to rely on honest work, to issue no flashy, "picture-book catalogue," to refrain from extravagant praises of their own school, and to be genuinely religious without exploiting their piety as a bait to catch pupils—such simony that—is the ideal that President Watkins and Business Manager Burton have set before themselves. And such an ideal in a college for girls is almost an innovation in the South.

We need deep conviction on this subject as a prerequisite to sound conversion. Patriotism is a virtue when it is enlightened, but it is a Chinese trait when it leads us to deny any imperfection in our "flowery kingdom."

Our schools for girls are wofully behind those of the North. Applicants for admission to Wellesley are given eleven problems in Plane and Solid Geometry, nine of them being originals. The time of the examination is limited to two hours. Vassar requires four books of Cæsar, six Orations of Cicero, and six books of Virgil for admission to the Freshman class. I have carefully studied this subject, and know whereof I speak.

In the present state of our secondary education it is out of the question for a Southern college for women to set its standard so high. Nor could such a school get pupils in the present state of public opinion—at least, in this section. But a more lamentable thing is that the claims set forth in catalogues are by no means lived up to. As a young lady from a school of wide reputation and many pupils said to me not long ago, "They have those things in their catalogue, but they lack a great deal of teaching them."

Whitworth is, I am convinced, not superficial. Genuineness is the dominant feature of the work done there.

That Messrs. Watkins and Burton should discard catch-penny methods stamps them as men of courage and foresight as well as of honor. The superficiality of our female colleges has been due to two things. The chief of these has been the general misconception of what education means, especially for girls, combined with a foolish cupidity that thinks the cheapest the best. Even now many people care very little whether their girls get genuine scholarship, unless they must teach for a living. They are eager for "extras," forgetting that extras are mere filagree work, unless backed by a trained mind. Nothing is more pitiable than to see this intellectual gauze covering a scrawny mind that is naked and not ashamed. "Give them a finishing touch," is the thought of many parents, and, in response to the thought, there has arisen a multitude of veneering establishments miscalled colleges. And close competition has led to a vast output of intellectual shoddy—at shoddy prices. The Doctor Jenkinson of Goldsmith's immortal story has a number of successors in our day who use rags of learning to hide a lust for gain, and many parents will emulate or surpass Moses, since they carry more to the educational fakir, and come back with less.

To polish young women, not to veneer them, is the aim of Whitworth College, so that they will have both vigor of mind and beauty of accomplishments, and will be in the fabric of our society as Corinthian pillars—grace crowning strength.

Whitworth is not a cheap school. That is, it will not cut prices foolishly to beat a competitor. To give good training, it employs good teachers. Good teachers command good salaries; good salaries call for reasonably high prices.

Whitworth charges $180 per year for board and literary tuition. What a student gets is worth more. The faculty is competent. Especially was I charmed with the piano-playing of Prof. Patterson, the Director of Music, and with the beautiful singing of Mrs. Patterson, who teaches vocal music. Both have been trained in the best schools of Germany. And I see graduates of Vanderbilt and of Wellesley in the literary faculty. The buildings are ample, the situation retired, and the fare excellent. Brookhaven is very healthful.

My intention in writing this article is to call to the attention of parents who have girls to educate this fine institution. If you want as good an education as can be given a girl in this section of the South, Whitworth College is worthy of your attention. It broadens and deepens scholarship; it takes good care of the health of pupils; it strengthens character; it refines taste in literature, music, art, and manners; and it cultivates piety. Not blatant piety—that type is abhorred—but the unpretending goodness that the Father loves.

RESOLUTIONS RESPECTING BRO. BAILEY'S REMOVAL.

At a meeting of the Board of Stewards and Trustees of the Moss Point M. E. Church, South, held at Moss Point, Miss., on the twenty-fifth day of November, 1900, the following were unanimously adopted:

That at the end of this Conference year—1900—we deeply regret to sever our relations with the Rev. R. W. Bailey as our pastor, on account of his continued sickness, which necessitates his removal to a place where his health, we hope, may be fully restored. We hereby tender to Bro. Bailey our most sincere and heart-felt sympathies in his affliction, and trust that he may soon be fully restored to the work of our church and to the Master's cause.

That during this Conference year his service as pastor of our church, although he has labored under great physical weakness during most of the year, has been a most happy and agreeable association to us, and we trust a spiritual advancement to the church.

To him and his dear ones we part with the hope we may meet again on earth; but should this be denied, we hope to meet again in that great beyond where parting is unknown, and where joy and peace ever reigns.

Resolved, That a copy of this paper be presented to Bro. Bailey, and the secretary record it on the Minutes of the church.

MR EDITOR: The Woman's Board of Home Missions, by its recent action, ordered that the following regarding Mrs. Hargrove's resignation, the election of Mrs. MacDonell, her successor, etc., be sent to our church papers for publication.

MRS. JAMES ATKINS,
Rec. Sec., pro tem.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 10, 1900.

To the Woman's Board of Home Missions of the M. E. Church, South,

I respectfully present my resignation as General Secretary of the society, to take effect on the eleventh day of October, 1900.

I hoped, when in New Orleans, to be able to complete the term of office for which I had been elected, and which would close in the Spring of 1903, or I should have tendered my resignation to the Board while in annual session. Since that time my physicians insist upon my abandoning work which involves so much responsibility. I have been lovingly anxious to complete two quadrenniums of service, having been appointed General Secretary by the General Conference which met at Memphis in 1894 (though elected Oct. 11, 1898, and serving by authority of the Central Committee). I must leave the work for the sake of my health, which is seriously threatened, but I hope not yet undermined. My reluctance to take this step is due to the fact that I love the work, sometimes I think, better than I do myself.

Through God's blessing, in the face of almost insurmountable difficulties, our members have grown in seven years from 11,107 local and connectional members, most of whom were local, to 23,351 connectional members; our annual receipts from $5,048 to $40,901; from having no possessions to owning property valued at $80,000, and our local funds have increased from $3,926 to $20,549.

The work yet to be undertaken by our Woman's Home Mission Society appeals to heart and brain, and is almost appalling in magnitude, and gladly would I work on and on. I shall watch the outward growth of the society with eager joy, and pray God's richest blessings upon officers and members.

Yours affectionately,
MRS. R. K. HARGROVE.

Whereas, Our beloved General Secretary, Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, has been obliged, in obedience to the urgent demand of her physician, to resign her position as secretary of the Woman's Board of Home Missions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in view of the exigencies of Mrs. Hargrove's health, and of her duty to those nearest her, we accept her resignation, to take effect Dec. 1, and that we do so with a grateful sense of God's goodness to us and to the work we are trying to do for him, in that it has so long been blessed with her wisdom and consecration. We thank him for the blessing which has attended her abundant labors, as well as for the inspiration of her example, and for the devotion which has known fatigue and discouragement only to conquer them. We feel that we should ill have learned the lesson her faith has taught if we allowed our fears to overcome us in this time of sorrow; so that, irreparable as the loss seems to our work, we do trust that He who has been so gracious to us in the yesterdays that are past will raise up an efficient worker to take her place in the coming to-morrows, and that the work to which she has given her whole strength and time for so many years will not be allowed to suffer when her tired hands lay it down.

We rejoice to know that while she retires from the office, she does not give up the work, and that her prayers are ours now as always; and we earnestly pray that the blessing of God may rest upon her; that the Lord himself will give her peace at all times and in all ways; that in his own time her health may be restored so that she may resume the active work for which she is so well qualified, and that this time of waiting may issue, both for this life and for the fuller life beyond, in a broader and nobler service of the God she loves.

MISS BELLE H. BENNETT,
President.
MRS. J. D. HAMMOND,
First Vice-Pres.
MRS. W. D. KIRKLAND,
Treasurer.
MRS. JAMES ATKINS,
Cor. Sec. Tenn. Conf.

The Woman's Board of Home Missions met in pursuance to a call of the president, Dec. 1, with the first vice-president in the chair.

The committee appointed to correspond with reference to supplying the vacancy in office of General Secretary, presented its report, nominating Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, of Macon, Ga.

The following persons cast their votes for Mrs. MacDonell: Miss B. H. Bennett, president; Mrs. J. D. Hammond, first vice-president; Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, general secretary; Mrs. W. D. Kirkland, general treasurer; Miss Emily Allen, recording secretary; Mrs. L. P. Smith, corresponding secretary, North Texas Conference; Miss Mary Helm, alternate, Louisville Conference; Mrs. James Atkins, corresponding secretary, Tennessee Conference. Mrs. MacDonell was then declared duly elected. We give below Mrs. MacDonell's letter of acceptance:

To the Woman's Board of Home Missions:

Your notice of my election to the office of General Secretary has been received. It is but natural that I should be grateful for the confidence which you thus manifest in calling me to a trust of such great importance.

In accepting the office, I receive it as a work to be done not unto man, but unto our Father, and I shall seek to prosecute it with energy and faithfulness. I feel my own insufficiency for this great work, but our Father has promised that his strength shall be made perfect in our weakness; so I come to you with the consciousness that it is "not by might, nor by power," but by the Spirit of God that I shall serve.

Looking to you for hearty co-operation and support in prayer, I am,

Yours sincerely,
MRS. R. W. MACDONELL.

The following clipping from the Alabama Christian Advocate deserves a careful reading from every woman in the church. The conversion and perfect consecration of one idolator is an earnest of the assurance—"I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance."

It is peculiarly interesting also to remember that the lovely "Birdie" of this Christian home in the heart of China is our own Miss Ng—the former portege of Louisiana Conference Society. May we not forget to continue our prayers for her!—that a strong radiance of heavenly light from her bright home will extend in every direction over the darkness around her.

CHINA.

Shanghai, Oct. 22, 1900.

My Dear Bro. Urquhart:

Thirteen years ago, when I was working in the Shanghai day schools of our mission, I found in one of them one of the brightest girls along some lines I had ever seen in China, and it is of her that I would like to talk to my friends through the Advocate to-day.

Her mind attracted me very much, but her unquestioning reception of Christ, and her willingness to witness for him, attracted me more. She was the first pupil in any of the Shanghai day schools to believe and be baptised. She belongs to an unusually nice family, but they had lost their money, hence their willingness to send her to a Christian charity school. I will say here, in this connection, that the mother and all the children have been converted through her and through influences started by the school. Her father died without making any public confession. Her mother, Mrs. Ng, is now a Bible Woman in our home in Soochow, and the children are all Christians and receiving a Christian education.

Her father was proud of his social standing, so when she began to be something of a young lady, though really not over fourteen, he refused to allow her to attend school any longer, because he did not want her to be on the street. I wanted to see her educated—just couldn't bear to give her up—but it seemed that there was nothing to be done. Finally, I proposed to the family to put her in McTyeire School, I bearing all the school expenses if they would furnish most of her clothes. They kept the proposition under consideration for months, then reluctantly agreed. I paid the money, and Miss Haygood and Miss Richardson did the moulding of her into a vessel meet for the Master's use.

After she left school, she came to us as a Bible Woman, and a general helper in the work, to which she was faithful and true.

About two years ago, a devoted Christian physician in the Imperial Chinese army, near Tuntsin, a Christian gentleman in every sense of the word, asked a missionary who was coming south to find him a true, Christian, educated wife. The missionary referred the matter to Miss Haygood, and she referred him to me recommending my girl. After some correspondence between the young physician, Dr. Chung, and myself, with the young lady's consent they became betrothed, and were married this year in our home in Soochow, on the twenty-first of May. They proceeded immediately to Shantung, his home, and the scene of most of the earlier Boxer troubles, which began almost as soon as they were settled in their new house.

They seem to have been intended for each other from the first, and God's hand is visible in every step of their preparation for each other. He loves her as tenderly and devotedly as any American gentleman could love the wife of his own choice. He prayed over the matter so much, and was so anxious for God's will to be done in it, that a mistake could hardly have been made. He takes most beautiful care of her—his "Birdy," as he calls her—and she will not leave him alone in danger unless he refuses to let her stay. Last Sunday I received a letter from him showing their faith and courage through that trying time. If my letter is not too long, I wish you would publish his and mine in the Advocate—mine simply because it explains his.

It is only one case among many hundreds, or thousands, that might be cited exemplifying the faith and courage of the native Christians. I hope you can use the photo of them which I send, and I also send some interesting papers that may be of service to you.

Most sincerely,
JENNIE M. ATKINSON.

Imp. Army Dispensary, Weihsein (about 30 miles from Chingchowfu), Oct. 3, 1900.

My Dear Miss Atkinson:

Your exceedingly longed-for letter of Sept. 11 reached me finally on the thirtieth ultimo. O! how we were delighted to hear from you! It seemed as if we obtained a jewel! Now, bless the Lord, all our anxiety and wondar melt. I knew how you must have felt for us, and especially for my poor, loved Birdy. It was very loving of you, indeed, Mother Atkinson, to have had such anxiety for us both, and kind intention to bring my Birdy to Japan to be with you and dear Miss Williams. I would have let her return to Shanghai for a while prior to my application for leave of absence to accompany her to Chefoo, were it only possible for her to travel with but 1 or 2 servants during that terrible time. I also passed thro' some experience as that you had immediately before leaving Soochow. In the first part of July, as things looked darker and darker every day, my appetite for meal and sleep both went away from me. Every yell or shout outside just made my heart throb and throb as if I had had a hard run! In the night I could hardly sleep without the aid of some medicine for several days. I was not afraid to die for Christ, neither was Birdy, but simply because I couldn't help. Tho' being in the camp staff and living near it, we relied very little on its influence, but in one accord committed ourselves into His hand to be what He would have us to be, and to pass thro' what He would have us to pass, knowing that "all things work together for good to those that love Him." Yes, we determined to stand for Him to the last of all things, even our lives, but the dear Lord has graciously given us back both!

It is peaceful here and in Chingchowfu now. And though it is safe to travel at present, as peace is being restored, Birdy is not coming down to Shanghai unless peace be not successfully made. I have been ordered here to take the place of my comrade, Dr. Klang, who has gone home on leave of absence; but my Birdy is with me, thus saving my anxiety about her. She has been very happy with me all the time; so please not be anxious. Should she return to Shanghai alone bye and bye, under unforeseen circumstances, she could have two men and an amah to escort her, at least to Chefoo, where I could have some missionary friends to see that she got a steamer.

I remember I have written you four letters, and this going to be the fifth. Have you received them all by this time, Miss Atkinson?

Please direct letters to Chingchowfu, as before, with or without Chinese characters on the envelopes.

When you meet Miss Richardson, will you kindly ask her whether she has received my letter written soon after our arrival in Chingchowfu?

With best regards to Miss Williams, and the same to yourself, I am,

Yours most sincerely,
W. P. CHUNG.

THE TEACHING FUNCTION OF THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

While the opportunity for collecting a magnificent sum of money is given in the Sunday-school, the value of the financial feature is insignificant when compared with the value of the Sunday-school as a means of disseminating information on the subject of missions.

In the first place, a million children are gathered each month in the missionary society. They have been studying the Bible from Sunday to Sunday, and have at least the rudiments of a missionary conviction. The facts of modern missions, "the fuel for missionary fires," is all that is needed to kindle a conflagration that will sweep around the world.

In every Sunday-school a programme from ten to thirty minutes long, to include the preliminary or closing exercises, but not to interfere with the regular study of the lesson, should be carried out on Missionary Day. There are a number of songs both in the Hymnal and the Young People's Hymnal, and it is only necessary to look at the subject index to find them grouped under the head of missions.

The following list of subjects has been agreed upon by the Sunday-school and Missionary Secretaries for the half year beginning with January, 1901:

HONESTY.

The following paragraph needs no comment:

"Mark Twain's return to his native land to abide the remainder of his days—may they be many!—should not be suffered to go unnoticed by us or any other journal which is interested in the maintenance of lofty ethical ideals. He has won high rank as a man of letters, and that quite as much in serious as in humorous creations. But his greatest life-work has been his obedience to a high code of honor, which led him when not young, after his own fortune had been swept away, to set to work in 1895 paying debts which he thought honor, if not law, made it obligatory for him to cancel. These obligations amounted to $200,000. To-day the debts are paid, and he has won besides a second competency. By so doing he has won a place alongside Sir Walter Scott and George William Curtis in the ranks of men of letters whose sense of honor was keen to the point of toil and agony, and he has set an example to the world at large which it will do well to heed."—Exchange.

THOUGHTS OF AN OLD MAN!

MR. EDITOR: That Methodism, in some measnre, has lost power and influence is a fact noticed, deplored, and acknowledged by everyone acquainted with her history. And onr editors and their correspondents have written much on the snbject; some snggesting this thing, some the other; while to me it seems that they have either overlooked or ignored the real cause of our decline.

I have been a member of the Methodist Church fifty-two years, for a large part of which time I have studied her history, read her literatnre, rejoiced in her triumphs, and now grieve at her loss of power. I have served her as layman, steward, recording steward, class leader, Sunday-school superintendent, local elder, and itinerant preacher. I am somewhat acqnainted with her history. I know that not only our rank and file, bnt a large part of our ablest ministers have come from the sturdy, country-raised boys of the rural districts. The bone and sinew of Methodism has been found in the country-raised boys. This has not resulted from the ungraded country school, bnt in spite of it. The superiority of the country-raised boy over the town boy lies in his environment of the home and farm life. It calls for application of intellect. Seeds must be sown before the harvest, and the soil prepared before the sowing. He learns nature, and to observe times and seasons and relations. He learns industry. Wood is to be cut, cows to milk, teams to harness, and drive stock to house and pen. This enltivates early rising, industry, care, responsibility. His judgment is enltivated. He must handle machinery, study the seasons, and the soil, and their relations. He sees more of practical application than of theory. He becomes self-reliant because he learns that he can do something and produce something. He becomes honest and trustful because he deals more with honest nature than with treacherous combinations of men. And much more might be said in his favor, bnt this is sufficient, and from strong country boys we Methodists used to replenish our ranks and fill our pulpits. We used to cultivate the country; we used to have strong circuits, with strong men on them, and save and enlist the country boys in our Methodism, bnt we have quit it and gone to town.

A Presbyterian preacher told me this joke on himself: An old soldier-mate of his called him where a crowd was gathering, and said: "Bill, I have learned where you Presbyterians come from. I was ont here in the hills, and heard an old-time Hard-shell preach. He was cntting the sects all off at the knees. When he came to yon he said: 'Yes, these old blne Presbyterians, who are they? I will tell you. They are nobody in the world bnt the old Hard-shells dressed np and gone to town.'" Just so the old Methodism of the past has dressed up and gone to town, and hence is being shorn of her former strength.

We used to have strong circnits, with strong men on them. These circuits used to pay from five to eight hundred dollars, and report from 50 to 200 additions on profession of faith. Now, these circuits pay from two to three hundred dollars, and report very few additions. Why is this? Why, every town of any note has been cut off and made a station, and the smaller towns have been conpled two and two, and made into what we call a double-barreled station.

When Conference meets, what the Bishop and his cabinet considers the best preachers are sent to the stations, the second best to the double-barreled stations, and what are left are divided ont among the little, impoverished circuits—impoverished because the merchant, the lawyer, the doctor, the county official, the banker and men of money are in town; and the honest farmers, from whom we used to fill our pews and pulpits, are left isolated and alone, with less than one-eighth of the help, gospel, and care of the shepherds that the town gets. The average country church gets one sermon per month, 12 per year; the town merchant, lawyer, doctor, officer, etc., gets 8 sermons per month, 96 per year, and have the preachers' services and influences at prayer meeting, Sunday-school, Epworth League, etc.

We have made it too expensive to be a Methodist. This is keeping many ont of our church. In our little town of Amory there are about 16 old Methodists whom I have failed to indnce to attach themselves to the church. Some of them evade the truth; others tell us they can not stand the expense. Sometimes they ask to come and "join us" where it will not cost so much.

Our little church here in Amory last year, as our Minutes show, paid for all purposes $1,117.75, and while I have not the figures before me, I am safe in saying that this is more than all the other churches in the place together paid. A man may be truly called and well qualified to preach the gospel, and yet be a poor tax collector.

Now, Bro. Editor, I have not written this paper in the spirit of personal complaint. The church and Conference have done more for me than I have deserved. Since I joined Conference I have worn black clothes and fared sumptuously, educated my children and saved money.

Since writing I have read Bro. Lagrone, in last issue of ADVOCATE, and will only add the question. He remarks, in regard to what Bro. Lewis, Porter and Harrison have said, "If these are facts, why publish them?" If Luther and his co-laborers, had said of the conditions of the church in his day, "These are facts, bnt let's hide them; don't say anything about them," when would the Reformation have come? Lord, help us all to turn on the light, find the trouble, repent, and reform.

K. M. HARRISON.

Forest, Miss., Nov. 16, 1900.

Rev. H. C. Morrison, Louisville, Ky.—

DEAR BROTHER: Are yon aware that the letters of J. N. Whitehead and others from Boykin, Miss., put Bro. R. S. Gale and me in the attitude of "fighting holiness"? Yon certainly know where I stand and what I profess. Bro. Gale is in the experience of entire sanctification, and preaches the doctrine and leads others into the experience. He and I are in perfect accord, and oppose only disorganization and come-outism.

Mr. Whitehead came into the bounds of the Raleigh circuit on the invitation of unauthorized persons, and treated Bro. Gale with marked discourtesy. While he appears to have done some good, he has done far more harm. His presence was wholly unnecessary anywhere in the bounds of this district, and especially in the bounds of the Raleigh circuit. It is such evangelists as he who bring reproach on the doctrine of entire sanctification, provoke strife and confusion, encourage a disregard for church vows, and insubordination to all authority. Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN, P. E.,
Forest Dist., Miss. Conf., M. E. Ch., South.

P. S.—Yon have failed to publish either of two communications from Bro. Gale. In justice to him, please give place to the foregoing in the columns of the Pentecostal Herald, and oblige, T. L. M.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 20, 1900.

Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., Forest, Miss.—

DEAR BROTHER: Your favor concerning Bro. J. N. Whitehead to hand. We regret this difference that seems to have sprung up between yon and he, bnt we have always endeavored to keep from the columns of our paper everything of a personal or antagonistic nature, and we thought we had done so with reference to Bro. Whitehead's communications. We don't think it would be prudent, Bro. Mellen, to give place to your communication in our paper without giving Bro. Whitehead a chance to reply, and as we don't care to get into this controversy, we think it best to withhold your article. Yon can rest assured, however, that Bro. Whitehead's articles will be carefully scanned, and nothing of a personal or objectionable nature will go into our paper.

Hoping that this may meet with your approval, and assuring yon of our brotherly regard, we are,

THE BENEFITS OF THE CURFEW MOVEMENT.

Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts says as to the Curfew movement: "The street at any time is not an ideal playground for a child. The vile posters, the open saloons, the frequent sound of profane language and scenes of cruelty, initiate him into phases of life of which he had better remain in ignorance until there is developed in him moral sinew to withstand such temptations. It would be best for old and young alike if these things which make for unrighteousness could be purged away. But the street, dangerous by day, becomes a positive school of crime after nightfall. This is so because evil flaunts itself more openly than in the daytime, and because boys in school in the daytime are free to engage in petty stealing and acts of rowdyism. No child who is permitted to rove the streets at night can develop into a virtuous citizen. It is the duty of Sunday-school teachers to discover the relation of their scholars to this matter, and if they find that they are thus exposed, to counsel with the parents concerning it. A more far-reaching and effective way to deal with the difficulty will be to move for the establishment of the curfew. The curfew is a simple regulation that at an hour agreed upon by the best citizens, usually 8 P. M. in Winter and 9 P. M. in Summer, a bell shall be rung which calls in from the street all children under sixteen years of age unaccompanied by parents or guardians. There is probably no class of officers better qualified to judge of the desirability of curfew than the sheriffs. The sheriffs of the United States, in convention at Denver three years ago, adopted the following resolution: 'Resolved, That it is the sense of this Convention that the City Councils of all cities should enact and enforce the curfew ordinance with as much promptness as possible.'"—Selected.

An old minister, who had preached the gospel for fifty years, was dying. He called for the Bible, and said, "Find me the first Epistle of John, the first chapter, and the seventh verse;" and, when they found it for him, he put his trembling finger on it, and said: "I die in the faith of that verse." What is it? "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."—Exchange.

"Ouch!"

That is about the mildest form of outcry a man makes when rheumatism suddenly tweaks him. In its worst forms rheumatism is a living death. The victim, incapable of moving hand or foot, has no part in the great procession of life, on which he gazes with hopeless eyes. A great many sufferers from rheumatism, who had given up hope, have been cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A medicine which will cleanse the blood from uric acid and other poisons, will cure rheumatism. "Golden Medical Discovery" has no equal in its power to cleanse the blood and to enrich it. "Discovery" contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

"I had been troubled with rheumatism for twelve years," writes Mr. R. McKnight, of Cades, Williamsburg County, S. C., "so bad at times I could not leave my bed. I was badly crippled. Tried many doctors and two of them gave me up to die. None of them did me much good. The pains in my back, hips, and legs (and at times in my head), would nearly kill me. My appetite was very bad. Everybody who saw me said I must die. I took five bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of 'Pellets,' and to-day my health is good after suffering twelve years with rheumatism."

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1900.

BISHOP R. K. HARGROVE.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

FIRST DAY.

The eighty-seventh annual session of the Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South, convened in the beautiful little city of Brookhaven, Thursday, Dec. 13, at 9 A. M.; Bishop Hargrove in the chair. The Bishop opened the session by reading a portion of the tenth chapter of Luke, singing four stanzas of the hymn, "Draw near, O Son of God, draw near," and prayer. Rev. J. A. B. Jones, for nearly a generation the assistant to Dr. C. G. Andrews, was elected secretary, with the following assistants: B. F. Jones, T. W. Adams, G. S. Harmon, J. T. Leggett, and R. Selby. The usual standing committees nominated by the presiding elders were then appointed.

Papers from the various General Boards were referred to the proper committees without reading.

The following visiting brethren were introduced to the Conference: G. W. Bachman, of the North Mississippi Conference; J. W. Boswell, editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and W. H. Sanders, who has been transferred to us from the North Mississippi Conference.

Bro. Holloman presented a paper from Dr. Lambuth in reference to the Missionary Conference to be held in New Orleans, La., next Spring, and the same was referred to the Board of Missions.

Bro. Weems presented a statement showing the cost of printing the Minutes of last year, and the probable cost for the present session.

Question 20 was called, the characters of the following brethren were passed, and they were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the superannuated relation:

J. A. Vance, R. A. Sibley, N. B. Young, P. Howard, L. P. Meador, R. B. Downer, E. A. Flowers, J. W. Harmon, H. R. Caldwell, J. H. Evans, W. B. Hines, D. G. W. Ellis, T. W. Brown, P. A. Johnston, W. W. Hurst, J. H. Holland, W. G. Backus, R. W. Bailey, H. B. Trevillon.

The characters of the following were passed, and they were referred to the committee for the supernumerary relation: J. W. Sandell, C. A. Powell.

Question 20 was continued, and the names of the presiding elders were called, and their characters passed: E. H. Mounger, T. B. Holloman, T. L. Mellen, G. A. Guice, W. W. Simmons, H. W. Featherstun, W. L. C. Hunnicutt.

The characters of a large number of pastors were passed, and each made a report of his work.

The committee appointed last session to consider the practicability of establishing a Mississippi paper reported that, in view of the fact that the North Mississippi Conference decided not to join us in this enterprise, they deemed such a movement inexpedient.

The name of B. F. Lewis was added to Committee on Admission in place of C. A. Powell.

After sundry announcements, the Conference adjourned.

SECOND DAY.

Conference met at 8:30 o'clock; Bishop Hargrove in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt. The roll was then called, after which a motion was offered and adopted to dispense with the further calling of the same. A report from the Forest District High School was referred without reading to the Board of Education. It was moved and carried that the presiding elders nominate the delegates from this Conference to the General Missionary Conference to be held next April.

Question 20 was next called, the characters of all the brethren not previously considered were passed in review, and they were declared blameless in life and official administration, each pastor making a report of his work.

Rev. George D. French, agent of the American Bible Society; Dr. J. H. Pritchett, one of our Missionary Secretaries, and Dr. James Atkins, Sunday-school Editor, were introduced to the Conference. The Conference then listened to strong addresses by Dr. French and Dr. Atkins in behalf of the causes they represent.

Rev. Robt. Selby was elected railroad secretary. Rev. T. B. Cottrell was elected assistant secretary in place of Rev. T. W. Adams, whose duties as Conference host precluded his serving in that capacity.

The following having stood approved examinations, and having been duly recommended, were admitted on trial, to-wit: Herbert W. Watkins, Henry Polk Lewis, J. L. Redd, G. W. Hiveley, C. C. Gibson, C. N. Guice.

The following were continued on trial in the class of the second year: J. W. Campbell, F. L. Crowson, J. J. Golden, L. F. Alford, and M. A. Thurman.

Thos. J. O'Neal, W. A. Terry and H. A. Gatlin were advanced to the class of the third year. G. S. Harmon and R. L. Phillips were continued in the class of the third year.

H. J. Moore, G. W. Huff, T. H. King, R. A. Sibley and L. E. Alford were advanced to the class of the fourth year.

J. H. Foreman, J. C. Ellis, C. M. Crossley, H. B. Trevillion and Geo. P. McKeown were continued in the class of the fourth year.

The following having stood approved examinations on the fourth year's course of study, were elected to elder's orders, to-wit: H. C. Brown, G. M. Hull, and John A. Moore.

Rev. W. D. Dominick, who this year has served the Silver Creek circuit as a supply, was re-admitted into full connection. It was decided to hold the next session of Conference at McComb City.

After sundry announcements, Conference adjourned with the benediction by Bro. F. M. Williams.

THIRD DAY.

Conference opened at 8:30 A. M.; Bishop Hargrove in the chair. Rev. P. D. Hardin conducted the religious exercises.

The report of the Committee on Conference Relations was submitted and adopted, by virtue of which the following were granted a superannuated relation, to wit: J. A. Vance, R. A. Sibley, L. P. Meador, R. B. Downer, E. A. Flowers, J. W. Harmon, H. R. Caldwell, J. H. Evans, W. B. Hines, D. G. W. Ellis, T. W. Brown, P. A. Johnston, W. W. Hurst, J. H. Holland, H. B. Trevillion, W. G. Backus, P. Howard, R. W. Bailey. C. A. Powell and J. W. Sandell were put upon the supernumerary list.

The Committee on Sabbath Observance next submitted a report, which was read by J. S. Parker, strongly urging upon our preachers and people to do all in their power to discourage Sabbath desecration. Same was adopted.

The report of the Sunday-school Board showed that $689 had been disbursed by the Board during the year.

The report of the Committee on Publishing Interests called attention to the gratifying showing made by our Publishing House, recommended that this Conference give the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE its hearty support, and endorsed the action of the Publishing Committee in electing Dr. Boswell editor. Pending the adoption of the report, Dr. J. J. Tigert, editor of the Bi-Monthly Review, addressed the Conference, as did also Dr. H. M. DuBose, our gifted and popular Epworth League Secretary, whose speech scintillated with bright and instructive things, and who never fails to completely captivate his audience. His address, we feel sure, will result in giving a new impetus to the Epworth League work in our Conference.

Dr. DuBose stated that if 5,000 additional subscribers to the Era can be obtained, the deficit in its running expenses will be entirely wiped out.

Dr. J. H. Pritchett, one of our Missionary Secretaries, was now introduced, and made a short, but stirring address in behalf of our foreign mission work. He mentioned that, despite the pessimistic wail that we hear now and then in this country, not a note of discouragement has come from any of our missionaries at the front. Those who are in China are particularly hopeful.

Dr. W. B. Murrah, president of Millsaps College, and Chancellor Kirkland, of Vanderbilt University, were next introduced to the Conference. The latter made an earnest appeal for the diligent prosecution of our Twentieth Century Educational Movement, and directed attention to the fact that Mr. Sam Cupples, of St. Louis, has agreed to contribute $50,000 towards endowing the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University as soon as the church contributes $100,000 for the same purpose. He asked that we keep in mind that twenty per cent. of the thank-offerings are to go to the University. "Other claims," he said, "you have with you always, but this educational claim is specific, and the opportunity now before us will soon be gone forever." It is greatly to be regretted that Chancellor Kirkland was given so little time to address the Conference, especially as this was his first visit thereto.

W. A. Terry, Thos. J. O'Neal and H. A. Gatlin, having stood approved examinations on the second year's course of study, and having been on trial two years, were admitted into full connection, after answering satisfactorily the usual disciplinary questions. Bishop Hargrove's address to the class, though brief, was pointed, and full of good things. Among other things he said: "Don't be so straight that you will lean backward. You'll have to have a great deal of religion that you don't enjoy as well as of religion that you do enjoy. Be a gentleman. Study the arts of social life and its graces. Many a man fails at this point."

The committee appointed to investigate the case of Rev. G. R. Ellis brought in a report exonerating him from all charges. His name was, at his own request, referred for a supernumerary relation.

The report of the Board of Directors of the Orphans' Home was submitted and adopted. The report stated that 55 children are now being cared for in the Home, and that $3,081.04 has been received this year from the Mississippi Conference for the support of our orphanage. The re-election of Rev. W. T. Griffin as field agent for same was also recommended. After some little debate the report was adopted unchanged.

At his own request, the name of Rev. J. W. McLaurin was referred for a supernumerary relation.

Revs. R. A. Breland and K. S. Enochs were located at their own request.

The report of the Committee on Bible Cause, which was next adopted, recommended an assessment on the Conference of $1,000 for that worthy object. The sum of $706.92 has been collected for this cause this year.

The following transfers to this Conference were announced: H. R. Singleton, W. H. Sanders, V. D. Skipper, C. W. Crisler, E. L. Alford, and F. A. Grimes.

Shortly before adjournment Dr. J. D. Hammond, Secretary of the Board of Education, delivered a vigorous address in behalf of the Twentieth Century Movement.

It was moved, and carried, that we have an afternoon session, commencing at 2:30 o'clock. After sundry announcements Conference adjourned with the benediction.

The following program of services was announced for to-morrow:

THIRD DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

Conference convened at 2:30 P. M., Rev. Dr. J. M. Weems occupying the chair at the request of Bishop Hargrove. Rev. W. B. Lewis conducted the devotional exercises.

The report of the Joint Board of Finance was then read, after which Pres. J. W. Beeson submitted his annual report regarding East Mississippi Female College, which institution, under his wise and skillful management, is enjoying a phenomenal degree of prosperity, and is attracting wide attention.

Mrs. J. P. Drake, of Summit, Miss., was introduced, and addressed the Conference earnestly and forcefully in behalf of home missions and the Woman's Home Mission Society. She was followed by Mrs. H. W. Featherstun, who presented with vigor and grace the claims and work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

The report on temperance was next read by Rev. W. M. Sullivan, pending the adoption of which Mrs. H. B. Kells, president of the Mississippi W. C. T. U., on invitation, addressed the Conference briefly on the subject of temperance. Her speech was listened to with great interest. The report on temperance, which was unanimously adopted, reaffirms the uncompromising opposition of the church to the liquor traffic, and urges both laymen and preachers to exert all reasonable means for its suppression; requests all ministers of the Conference to co-operate with the W. C. T. U. in their efforts to secure the scientific temperance instruction of children; requests Mississippi's senators to use their influence in favor of the pending House bill for the abolition of the army canteen, and concludes by urging the passage of a State prohibitory law in Mississippi, for the reason that "we believe the only way to hold the counties we have already is to banish whisky from the adjoining counties."

A motion was also passed directing the secretary to wire the action of the Conference on the army canteen question to our senators at Washington.

Pending the adoption of the report on Epworth Leagues, the Conference had the pleasure of listening to a stirring and enjoyable address by Dr. H. M. DuBose, our talented Epworth League Secretary, who is a member of the Mississippi Conference.

Reports on Church Extension, State of the Church, and District Conference Records, were also submitted and adopted.

The Committee on Conference Relations recommended that the request of Rev. J. W. McLaurin for a supernumerary relation be granted, but refused to make a similar recommendation in the case of Rev. G. R. Ellis.

The Board of Education next submitted a report relating to the Twentieth Century Fund, and providing for the appropriation to Whitworth College of about $1,600, which amount is needed to remove the mortgages which now encumber that institution. The report, after a good deal of discussion, was so amended as to appropriate $400 of the Twentieth Century Fund for the immediate needs of Port Gibson Female College. It was stated in the report that the amount of paid and unpaid subscriptions to the Twentieth Century Fund in this Conference is $15,400, of which sum only $3,353.09 has yet come into the hands of the treasurer.

The following resolution, offered by Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, was then adopted almost unanimously: "Resolved, That the Mississippi Conference does most decidedly disapprove of the encouragement or allowance of inter-collegiate ball-playing, especially by the students of Methodist colleges."

A request was presented by Presiding Elder Hunnicutt from the Gloster Quarterly Conference for the restoration of the credentials of Dr. J. R. Whittington, a local deacon, who, about two years ago, voluntarily withdrew from the ministry and membership of our church. On motion, it was voted to restore his credentials.

Rev. T. L. Mellen offered a resolution, which was adopted, requesting our Bishops to convene the Mississippi Conference hereafter on Wednesday, instead of on Thursday.

Some resolutions passed by the Conference Brotherhood were submitted and adopted, in which it was urged that every member of the Conference become a member of the Brotherhood, and containing a request for the publication of the Constitution and By-laws in our Conference Minutes.

The report of Conference Board of Missions was next read by Rev. H. W. Van Hook.

After several announcements Conference adjourned to meet in memorial session to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at three o'clock.

FIFTH DAY.

Conference was called to order at 8:30 A. M.; Bishop Hargrove presiding. Rev. G. H. Galloway led the devotional exercises.

The following delegates, nominated by the presiding elders to the General Missionary Conference, to be held in New Orleans next April, were then announced and approved, to-wit: Clerical—T. L. Mellen, W. L. C. Hunnicutt, G. A. Guice, W. W. Simmons, H. W. Featherstun, J. M. Morse, H. G. Hawkins, J. P. Drake, D. P. Bradford, L. S. Jones, W. L. Linfield, and R. D. Norsworthy. Lay—C. W. Taylor, F. L. Tatum, E. S. Drake, Dr. V. Russell, R. L. Bennett, W. L. Nugent, Dr. W. Heidelberg, T. M. Evans, J. F. Robinson, and J. J. Taylor.

The ordination papers of Rev. E. C. Guice, of Wesson, Miss., who comes to us from the Baptist Church, were examined and approved, and he having affirmed in the presence of the Conference his full acceptance of our doctrines and discipline, was admitted by vote into full connection.

Resolutions of cordial thanks to the people of Brookhaven for their gracious hospitality, to the Rev. T. W. Adams for his faithfulness as Conference host, to the various railroads, to the New Orleans and Jackson papers, and the Protestant Churches of Brookhaven for their kindness and courtesy, were adopted by a rising vote.

A resolution was unanimously adopted requesting Bishop Hargrove to have his sermon on Judas Iscariot, preached yesterday, published in pamphlet form, and pledging the co-operation of the brethren in circulating same.

A resolution, offered by Revs. B. S. Rayner and W. C. Black, was adopted, requesting the agents of our Publishing House to publish the memoir of the late Dr. C. G. Andrews read at the memorial session on yesterday by Rev. A. F. Watkins, and pledging the assistance of the brethren in its sale and circulation.

Rev. D. F. Guice, of the Natchez district, was located on the ground of secularity.

A resolution was passed requesting the publication by Rev. B. F. Jones of the second volume of the "History of Methodism in Mississippi," written by the lamented John G. Jones. Some resolutions, offered by Revs. H. W. Featherstun and T. L. Mellen, requiring that trustees elected to places on the Boards of Trustees of our Conference schools shall be confirmed by the Annual Conference, and providing that trustees of said institutions shall annually submit a report to the Conference Board of Education, occasioned a lengthy and animated discussion, but were finally adopted by a good majority.

The Board of Education then submitted a supplemental report requesting that the committee appointed by our last Annual Conference to examine the titles of our college property furnish full abstracts of all the titles of same, together with a statement of the indebtedness or incumbrances upon same. The report also calls for the emendation of charters where amendments are deemed necessary.

J. P. Carruth and M. L. Burton were appointed to places on the Board of Directors of our Orphans' Home at Water Valley.

Bishop Hargrove retired for a short final conference with the presiding elders, Dr. J. M. Weems being called to the chair.

Quite a sensation was produced during the closing session by the introduction of a resolution strongly condemning the use of tobacco by ministers of the gospel, the habit being pronounced injurious to ministerial usefulness and to the spiritual life of the tobacco user. It was passed by a large majority.

The statistical secretary read out the usual statistical items, for which, however, we have not room for this week. An increase of 1,349 in membership over last year was reported.

The reading of the appointments then followed, after which Conference adjourned sine die with the Doxology and the benediction.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Dr. W. B. Murrah, the eloquent and scholarly president of Millsaps College, was a most welcome visitor to the Conference.

***

We are indebted to Rev. B. F. Lewis for the well-written account of the first day's proceedings of the Mississippi Conference.

***

***

Pastor T. W. Adams proved himself to be an admirable Conference host, and was untiring in his efforts to provide for the comfort and welfare of the brethren.

***

Bishop Hargrove is evidently a skillful presiding officer as well as a kingly man. His presidency gave eminent satisfaction. Everybody, in fact, was highly pleased with him.

***

We were glad to note the presence of the genial and active Rev. G. W. Bachman, colportenr of the North Mississippi Conference, who was on hand with a supply of good books.

***

On Saturday evening a missionary rally was held, at which a splendid and exhanstive address was delivered to a packed house by Dr. J. H. Pritchett, one of our Missionary Secretaries.

***

On Thursday evening Rev. T. L. Mellen preached an able and stirring missionary sermon. During the Conference session Revs. W. M. Sullivan and A. T. Bell also preached excellent and highly enjoyable sermons.

***

Rev. J. E. Carpenter, the gifted and popular pastor at Natchez, besides having every assessment paid in full, was presented by his flock shortly before Conference with a fine horse and buggy as a token of their esteem and appreciation.

***

During their stay in Brookhaven the editor and assistant editor enjoyed the generous and cordial hospitality of Dr. J. T. Butler, to whom and his noble family we are indebted for numerous courtesies and favors. We were so fortunate as to have as our co-guests Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Weems, of Meridian.

***

Dr. John W. Boswell, the new editor of the ADVOCATE, attended the Conference upon the opening day, and was cordially welcomed by the brethren. On Wednesday evening he preached the opening sermon, which was strong, forceful, and highly edifying. He will take charge of the ADVOCATE on the first of January, next.

The brainy and brawny Dr. John J. Tigert, who is always a welcome visitor to our Conference, delivered a forceful, humorous speech in behalf of the Bi-Monthly Review. If in his Conference talks he would leave out all irrelevant matter, we think his remarks would be much more appreciated, especially when the Conference is crowded with unfinished business.

***

Bishop Hargrove's sermon on Sunday, at eleven A. M., on the apostasy of Judas Iscariot, was a masterly effort, and produced a profound impression. The brethren were so delighted with it that the next day they passed a resolution requesting its publication. At the conclusion of the Bishop's sermon Revs. Henry C Brown, George M. Hull, and John A. Moore were ordained elders.

***

On Sunday afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock, a deeply impressive memorial service was held in honor of the three brethren who have died during the year. The memoir of Dr. C. G. Andrews was read by Rev. A. F. Watkins, that of Rev. Geo. Bancroft by Rev. D. Scarborough, and that of Rev. A. B. Nicholson by Rev. J. T. Leggett. Following the reading of these, touching and appropriate tributes were paid by a number of the brethren to each of these departed heroes.

***

Among the most interested listeners to the Conference proceedings were the Whitworth College girls, who attended each day's session, and brightened the Conference room by their presence. We rejoice to note that under the able and efficient administration of President Watkins and Manager Burton, Whitworth is having a most prosperous session. Eighty-six boarders are in attendance, and fifty-three day pupils have been enrolled. This renowned institution has flattering prospects indeed.

AT BATON ROUGE.

We had the pleasure of attending the Louisiana Conference at Baton Rouge. Our time being occupied with matters pertaining to the publisher's department, we were so fortunate as to utilize the facile pen of Rev. W. W. Drake in reporting the proceedings.

Bishop Galloway's presidency—as was to be expected—gave universal satisfaction. In the chair he has few equals and no superiors.

Dr. DuBose represented the Epworth League in his own unique and eloquent way. He also preached a sermon which was highly spoken of.

Our Sunday-school interests were presented by Dr. Atkins in a striking and forceful address.

The claims of the American Bible Society were well presented by Dr. G. D. French.

Dr. Hammond presented the cause of Christian education with his characteristic dignity and grace. Dr. Kirkland delivered an address of remarkable cogency in the same interest.

The good people of Baton Rouge dispensed a most generous hospitality. We were most delightfully entertained in the elegant home of Bro. and Sister J. R. Holmes, having as co-guests Bishop Galloway, and Revs. Singleton, May, W. G. Evans and R. H. Wynn. The pastor, Bro. E. N. Evans, gave diligent and courteous attention to the duties of a Conference host.

We were pleased to meet at Baton Rouge Miss Carrie Schwing, who at the last commencement completed the curriculum of Centenary College. Although she carried off the honors of the class, she did not receive a diploma, but only a "certificate." Well, we will outgrow this sort of conservatism after a while, and write our girls' certificates on parchment instead of paper. Mark the prediction!

Port Gibson Female College,

Port Gibson, Miss.

Port Gibson Female College is one of the oldest female colleges in the Mississippi Conference. For more than fifty years she has been contributing to the training and development of Christian womanhood in this and other States.

Her course of study is academic rather than collegiate, which should commend the school to parents who have young girls to educate. The P. G. F. C. offers superior advantages for less money than any other school of like grade in the State. Methodist Parents who want to educate their daughters can do so as cheaply here as it is being done by the State at Columbus, i. e., if they give their girls the ornate branches.

We give board, incinding fuel, light, washing, tuition and music, or any one extra, for $160; without an extra, $130. Girls wishing to prepare themselves to teach can enter the middle of January and continue through the session for $75, with music or any other ornate branch; without an ornate branch, $65.

NOTICE.

Any one desiring holly for Xmas address, MISS LILLIE BELLEW, Sancler, Miss.

Here is the latest "prosperity" news of the canteen brand. A dispatch from Vancouver, British Columbia, says: "The outgoing steamship 'Empress of China,' which sails from this point for the Orient, on Monday, will carry a record-breaking cargo of beer for the Philippines. Fifty thousand barrels, brought hither in seventy-five trains, are consigned to Manila."

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

Address

REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

A Slave Holder's Daughter.

BY BELLE KEARNEY.

Cloth, 12 Mo, Fully Illustrated. $1.

This is a book which photographs the new South in contrast with the old. It deals especially with the evolution of Southern women—their surprising energy in leaping from the lap of the old, feudal, luxurious life to meet the stern realities of to-day. The author herself belongs by birthright to the old regime, while in full sympathy with the new condition. She writes from the inside, and pictures in her vivid and throbbing pages the situation down in Dixie as it relates to the people, education, the woman question, temperance, the economist, etc. All those who would have an inside knowledge of Dixie's Land as it is to-day should read it.

FREE TO SUFFERERS.

The New Cure for Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail; also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes are sold by all first-class druggists.

THE REASON.

I've often sat here and wondered,
Whatever the reason could be.
That no matter how naughty I've been to her,
Mama's always so good to me.

To-day, when my very best doll tore her frock,
I punished that child most severely.
And locked her up in a cold, dark room,
Till she should repent sincerely!

But after I'd turned the key in the lock
I felt so unhappy and sorry and sad
That I just had to bring her right out again,
For I loved her, tho' she was bad.

Then it came to me all in a minute,
As I rocked with my doll on my knee,
That mamma is only a great big girl,

TUBERCULOSIS.

It would be almost superfluous to tell our readers, as probably they know it as well as we do, that, while tuberculosis is an infectious and preventible disease, and that, while as many people die from it as from all the other infectious diseases put together, there are only three or four parts of the country in which any special means are adopted with a view to its eradication.

In Boston and New York and Philadelphia they have been building hospitals for tuberculous patients, wherein patients are not only segregated from the rest of the community for the rest of the community's advantage, but are treated along lines that varied experience with the disease suggests. One of the expedients they have recourse to in these places is—that practicing physicians shall notify the Board of Health of any tuberculous cases which they encounter in their rounds, in order that, if the patients can not be conveyed to the hospitals for consumptives, their families may at least be taught to treat the patients intelligently, and that the infection may not be allowed to flow out upon the community in the neighborhood. Good results have come from the notification of cases, from the isolation of patients, and from the treatment in the consumptive hospitals; and yet the places in which these arrangements for tuberculous patients have been adopted can be numbered on the fingers of one's hand.

"The treatment of tuberculosis," says an article in the current number of the Philadelphia Medical Journal, "is one of the reproaches of the medical profession." And we have not any doubt, from what we have observed, but that the charge is well-founded. The medical profession, as a general rule, does not seem to take any great interest in warning the community against the danger that arises from leaving tuberculous cases, which are all infections, scattered throughout populous places, or in instructing the community as to what measures should be taken to ward off the danger of infection.

This failure on the part of the profession is a ground for surprise; for, generally in cases of disease, even when it militates against their own material interests, the members of the medical profession are altruistic enough to sound a clear note of warning to the public.

The building of hospitals for consumptives, the notification by practitioners of tuberculous cases, and the isolation or segregation of patients, will no doubt come soon in every enlightened community, as they have come already in a few communities; and the volume of mortality from the disease will then be greatly diminished from its present proportions, as has been the cases in the few centres referred to.

The treatment for tuberculosis that is producing far away the best results at the present day in the United States, in Great Britain and in Germany, is the non-drug treatment. The patient takes no medicine at all, but is made to live in the open air during as many of the twenty-four hours in the day as possible; he is induced to eat all the food he can, the food being of the most nutritious character; and he is not compelled to take much exercise, copious rest in the sunshine being one of the best assistants towards recovery.

It was until recently believed that the exposure of consumptives to the open air must be in places high above the sea-level, and that damp air was deleterious. This has been found to be a mistake. Living in the open air, even if the air be damp as in many low-lying localities, or smoky as in Pittsburg, is immensely better for a consumptive patient than living in a closed room. And, in fact, there are places in the United States as well as abroad where, having not the means to build expensive hospitals for consumptives, they erect tents open all round at the sides, and make patients sleep there, properly-garbed, of course, to avoid catching cold, as well as spend their days there when the weather is too inclement for them to go outside.

And this open-air treatment, with "superalimentation," as it is called, is productive of far better result than any drug-treatment that has ever yet been devised.

Readers of The Times-Democrat desiring to know more of this treatment of tuberculosis should provide themselves with a copy of the Philadelphia Medical Journal of Dec. 1; they will there find information on the subject that is of extreme interest.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

DISCOURAGED WORKERS.

I heard once of a man who dreamed that he was swept into heaven, and he was there in the glory world; and oh, he was so delighted to think that he had at last made heaven—that he had got there. And all at once one came and said:

"Come, I want to show you something." And he took him to the battlements, and he said: "Look down yonder; what do you see?"

"I see a very dark world."

"Look, and see if you know it."

"Why, yes," he said; "that is the world I have come from."

"What do you see?'

"Why, men are blindfolded there; many are going over a precipice."

"Well, will you stay here and enjoy heaven, or will you go back to earth and spend a little longer time, and tell those men about this world?"

He was a worker who had been discouraged, like Elijah. He awoke from his sleep, and said: "I have never wished myself dead since."—Exchange.

The greatest danger of departure from the old and true ideas of home life is found in homes of wealth. Glitter and show are not the ends of life. Social distinction is not all for which we live. Let us have the old-fashioned homes of love and duty and purity. Guard the home, and you guard the republic. Destroy the home, and you inevitably kill the nation.—Stewart L. Woodford.

A FUNNY DENTIST.

Johnnie had a loose tooth.

"That tooth must come out!" said his mother, "because pretty soon another little tooth will come pushing along behind it," went on mother, "and I want it to come straight and even. Let mother pull this one for you, dear."

"Oh, no," cried the little boy, "it will hurt," and he put his hand tight over his mouth and ran out to play in the yard.

Pretty soon Uncle Ed swung the gate open. He had a big sweet apple in his pocket for Johnnie.

"But you must ask your mother if you may eat it," said he.

Mother said "Yes," and the little boy sat down by the window to eat it. It was a very sweet apple, and Johnnie enjoyed it very much. All at once he gave a little cry:

"Why—why—here's a bone in my apple, mother!"

"Oh, I guess not," said mother; "I guess it's a seed."

"No," persisted Johnnie; "it's white and hard."

A twinkle came into mother's eyes at that.

"Let me see it," said she, and Johnnie showed it to her. "Go and look in your mouth, dear," mother said then.

"Oh, mother," cried Johnnie, "there's a hole come where my tooth was. Why-ee! did the apple pull it, mother?"

But mother only laughed, and then Johnnie laughed, too.—Our Little Ones.

HIS HEAVY BASKET.

Passing along a busy street the other day, I saw a boy carrying a basket full to the brim, which seemed to tax his strength to its utmost capacity. Indeed, at times it looked by his jerks and extra efforts as if its weight would bear him down beneath it in spite of his plucky determination. I observed to him:

"My boy, that basket is rather heavy for you to carry, is it not?"

"Yes, sir," he replied. Then an even more determined expression came into his bright young face, as he added, "But I'd rather carry it than that my mother should have to do it."

Brave boy. He had the right idea of life, although his clothes were shabby and old.—Selected.

Temperance.

DRUNKENNESS AMONG WOMEN.

Americans visiting some European countries are not only shocked at the sight of women serving intoxicating drinks to men in bar-rooms, but at the number of intoxicated women to be seen on the streets. Public sentiment has thus far prevented the employment of women as barmaids in American saloons, but if the use of intoxicating liquors by women increases at the rate it seems to have been going during recent years, the time is not distant when that shameful spectacle will be witnessed here.

Heart-breaking reports of the drinking habits of women are frequently printed in papers in all parts of the country. Drunkenness among women in Chicago was a subject of special discussion last week by the National Executive Board of the Woman's Keeley Rescue League. It was there declared that thousands of Chicago women, including many of high social standing, have been and are resorting to the Keeley cure and other treatments to free themselves of the dreadful habit. Proprietors of drug stores and candy stores were condemned for selling "spiked" drinks to young girls, many of whom, it was alleged, were often induced to drink intoxicants when under the impression that they were partaking of a harmless beverage. "It is this practice of mixing intoxicants with soda-fountain drinks," said Mrs. M. Palmer, editor of the Banner of Gold, the official organ of the League, "that causes many of our young women to become addicted to the habit, and that is greatly responsible for the frightful increase of inebriety among our sex" Mrs. Ida B. Cole, national corresponding secretary, said:

"I am surprised at the amount of liquor sold to women residents of Hyde Park, where I live, under the cover of groceries. Several times men have called at my house soliciting orders for beer, wine and whisky, assuring me that I need have no fear of detection. I was told at a grocery store that every grocery dealer in Hyde Park sold liquor, not only at retail, but at wholesale."

Mrs. I. N. Ives, of Bloomington, vice-president of the National League, said that wine suppers after the theater often caused girls to cultivate a taste for intoxicants.

Such statements should put parents on their guard to protect their daughters as well as sons from the heartless scoundrels who would ruin young lives in order that they might put a few more dollars in their cash drawers.—Northwestern Advocate.

A PRIVILEGED CLASS.

There is but one class in the community that arrogates to itself the privilege of breaking the law of the State with impunity, and that is the liquor-selling class. The thief is pursued, the murderer is hunted to his hiding-place, and the greater the keenness that the detection requires, the greater the popular applause, while other thieves and murderers discreetly maintain their silence; but the moment a law-breaking liquor seller is detected in his crime and justice is demanded, at that moment many who are supposed to be right-thinking men and women begin to shout "persecution" and "injustice" and "spotter evidence," sympathy is aroused, and the law-breaking liquor seller himself howls the loudest of all the pack. When will people learn that law-breaking is law-breaking, and that the man who steals $1,000 is no worse a thief than the man who steals a boy, while the murderer is a murderer just the same, whether he administers the drug in a single potion or metes it out in 10,000 potions of beer? Attorneys are retained by liquor leagues, whose duty it is to defend every member of the league who is arrested for law-breaking, and liquor dealers join the league and pay their fees to secure in advance the services of these attorneys to defend them if they chance to be caught at their law-breaking, and are called to account. If this is not setting out in advance with the intention of breaking the law, and taking chances of detection and escape, it is hard to define the act.—New York Liberator.

OBITUARIES.

TURNER—SIMON W. TURNER was born in Haywood county, Tenn., July 27, 1837, and was brought to Mississippi when six years old. His father settled five miles northeast of Carrollton, and Bro. Turner, the subject of this sketch, lived and died within a mile of the place his father settled nearly sixty years ago. Bro. Turner married Miss Mary Morman about twenty-six years ago, and she and five children are left behind to mourn his death. On Nov. 10, 1900, he passed away, and on Monday morning, Nov. 12, he was buried in the cemetery near Eden Church in the presence of a great multitude of friends, who came to do honor to his memory. "He was a good man, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost." About forty-five years ago he was soundly converted to God, and his religion was his stay and comfort during all these years. As a soldier boy, he was true to God; as a husband, kind and gentle; as a father, loving and tender; as a Christian, earnest, consistent, and happy. His piety was fervent and his zeal was intense, and, unlike some natures, he did not waver and vacillate, but his path grew brighter and brighter as he toiled up the steeps of life. He was severely wounded during the war, and suffered intensely at times, but he was always cheerful and hopeful. A nobler man, a better Christian, a purer spirit I have not known. He was sick for several weeks before he died, and friends came from far and near to see him and receive his blessing. It was a happy scene when he shouted the praises of God as he went down into the dark valley, but the light of eternal day was on his face, and he told us all was well. To his bereaved widow and sorrowing children we commend the love and grace of God. T. W. LAWIS.

MAY—ALLIE J., daughter of Bro. J. R. and Sister Sally F. May, was born March 18, 1878, in Bolivar county, Miss., and died Feb. 3 1900, at her home in Sunflower county, Miss. (Sandy Bayou), where she had lived since she was five years old, aged twenty-one years ten months and fifteen days. Here she grew to beautiful young womanhood. At the age of fifteen she was converted under the preaching of our sainted McNabb, and joined the M. E. Church, South. She ever afterwards lived a pure, sweet Christian life, following in His steps, and delighting to do what she could for His cause.

Allie was a young woman of rare attainments and Christian graces. For a number of years she was our honored and much-loved Sunday-school secretary and treasurer. Aside from these duties, she was a great help to her pastor in raising the Conference collections. The last year ('99) of the Rev. Jno. R. Conrides' ministry she and Sister Ide Burney (who preceded Allie by several months to the glorified home) took the Conference collections and raised several dollars more than the assessment of their church.

Allie was a great help to me the first year ('99) of my ministry, collecting what she could. Last year, on account of failing health, she was unable to render this valuable assistance in church work. To say she will be missed in church and society is putting it but timely. As she lived, so she died. Truly the end of that young and useful life was great peace. To the bereft ones we will say, "She is not dead, but sleepeth." J. W. McGEE.
Jackson, Miss.

SHARP—Mrs. MARY SHARP, wife of R. W. Sharp, died at the home of Dr. J. W. Sharp, Wall Hill, Miss., where she had been removed by loving hands from her home near by, that she might be more tenderly cared for. She had been sick for some months, and gradually descended to the brink of the river of death. I was permitted to talk with her several times during her sickness, and such intercourse was a great blessing to me. She said the grace of God sustained her in her afflictions as nothing else could.

Sister Sharp was possessed with an amiable disposition that was as sunshine to all with whom she came in contact. She was converted at the age of twenty, and she loved and trusted the Lord. She committed herself fully to Jesus, and he manifested his presence to her as never before, and as the end drew near she looked out into the great beyond, and longed to be delivered from pain and suffering, and to be with her Lord. She would say, "How much longer?" as if waiting for a train. On the sixth of October, at 5 P. M., it being her birthday, she gently passed over the river, and is in the home of the good. At her own request she was buried at Ashland, the home of her childhood. Her friends and former associates gave unmistakable evidence of their appreciation of her life, and sorrow because of her death. Thus ended a beautiful life in a triumphant death.

May the Lord bless the sorrowing ones, and especially the precious boy whom she leaves behind; and may they all meet in the "sweet by and by!" G. H. JACOBS.

MAY—ROBERT F. MAY, son of J. R. and S. F. May, was born Feb. 7, 1874, in Holmes county, Miss., and at the age of two years his parents moved to Bolivar county, where he spent seven years of his early childhood. From thence they moved to Sunflower county, where Bro. Robert spent the remainder of his life. At the age of nineteen he professed religion in the revival of '93, held by our sainted McNabb. He ever afterwards lived an acceptable member of the M. E. Church, South. In 1897 he was happily married to Miss Mattie Burney, to whom he was devotion itself. God gave them a sweet little blue-eyed girl to gladden their hearts and home.

Bro. Robert was a devoted husband, obedient son, loving father, and a true friend. On Jan. 17, 1900, measles laid its wasting hand upon him. He struggled bravely for thirteen days, and then took congestion of the lungs, which soon caused his death. His mother writes me that he passed away as one falling asleep, and looked as if he was only resting from the long thirteen days' and nights' struggle with disease.

In the death of Bro. Robert the community has lost a good man, the neighborhood a good neighbor, the wife a good husband, and the little blue-eyed girl a noble father. Let us remember Sister Mattie and the little babe to the Father of the fatherless and widow.

DAVIS—Whereas, God, in his infinite love and wisdom, has seen fit to take from us our little friend, ALLIE DAVIS, daughter of our pastor, vice-president of the Waterproof Junior Epworth League, and one of the zealous and regular attendants of the Sunday-school; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of our dear little friend, we feel assured that God has taken her to make up his precious jewels.

Resolved, That while we bow with grief at our loss, we rejoice in the assurance that death for her had no sting, and that her short, sweet life passed away so peacefully and quiet—only a little sigh, and her gentle spirit had passed over the "valley of death."

Resolved, That to the bereaved and sorrowing family we extend our heartfelt sympathies, though they have the comforting assurance that she is "safe in the arms of Jesus."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, read before the Sunday-school, be sent to her parents, and to be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Committee: Elizabeth W. Gorton, Baxter C. Andrews, J. T. Moseley.

MURPHY—While in active session at Campti, La., Oct. 13, 1900, the fourth Quarterly Conference, Wesley charge, Shreveport district, Louisiana Annual Conference, passed the following resolutions, to-wit:

Whereas, It has pleased "Him who doeth all things well" to remove from our midst the soul of our devoted brother and co-laborer, THOMAS E MURPHY, an active member of this Quarterly Conference; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Murphy we have sustained a great and heartfelt loss. A good and useful man has passed away. He was pure in character, sincere in purpose, firm in convictions, and unwavering in his devotion to right. The church and community have lost a true and faithful leader, and his family a kind and devoted husband and father.

Resolved, That we hereby extend to the bereaved family and relatives our heartfelt sympathies and prayers.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the widow of our deceased brother, and also a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

HENDERSON—Mrs. EVA HENDERSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lane, was born AUG. 17, 1879; married to Mr. T. D. Henderson, May 3, 1899, and died Sept. 20, 1900.

How short this life for Miss Eva! But she lived a sweet Christian. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1892. Her faith was proven by her works. She contributed from her own hands to the Master's cause, and was so thoughtful of her preacher. Loved ones, mourn not; the world is better and heaven brighter to-day for Miss Eva having lived.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to December, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

With the additional grants made by the recent session of Parliament, the expenses of the war in South Africa will have footed up close to $600,000,000, and the end is not yet in sight. The recrudescence of Boer activity and the capture of 500 men of General Clements' force, not far from Pretoria, have awakened the British to the fact that fresh supplies of troops will have to be sent to Africa, and further financial sacrifices submitted to.

The Fire Board, under the advice of the board's counsel, has voted to take legal proceedings against the City Council to force that body to budget for the Fire Department the amount required by the board. The contention made by the board is that the Fire Department is in no way controlled by the city, but is absolutely under the charge of the Fire Board, and that body is required to make an estimate of the money necessary to operate the Fire service, and the City Council has nothing to do but to vote the money.

CHRISTMASTIDE.

The world can not grow old.
Each year the ringing of the Christmas bells
Renews her youth, and the sweet story tells
Of magi with their gold.
And the strange star, whose newly kindled ray
Guided them where the Royal Infant lay
To worship at his side,
Of wondering shepherds on Judea's plains,
And the glad echoes of angelic strains,
Of heaven's gate open wide,
And God's love pledged to every wandering one
In this great gift—his own "beloved Son."

THE MISSION OF PROTESTANTISM.

BY REV. M. M. BLACK, M. A.

(Read a short time since before the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting.)

History contains no more stirring or important record than the story of the rise and progress of the mighty movement known as the Protestant Reformation, which, though ordinarily regarded as having started when Luther nailed his memorable theses to the door of the church at Wittenberg, yet in reality had begun a century or two earlier, and had slowly been gaining momentum during the days of Wycliffe, Erasmus, Savonarola, and other undoubted forerunners of the Reformation proper. As Dr. Henry Cowan significantly declares: "The Reformation was not more a revolution than an evolution, for which the way had been long prepared, and scarcely any particular of reformed doctrine and discipline had not been repeatedly anticipated; but this great distinction remains, that while earlier reformers testified against errors and abuses in the church, those of the sixteenth century reconstituted the church itself, or, at least, a large portion of it, on a fresh basis."

When Luther appeared upon the scene, the time was ripe for a determined struggle against Romish error and corruption, and when at last, after a long and fierce contest, the smoke of battle cleared away, it was thoroughly apparent that the Papal Church had been shorn of much of its prestige and power.

While the scandalous sale of indulgences by Tetzel was the immediate occasion of Luther's protest, the cause of the great movement which he headed lay much deeper. The corruption of the church in faith and practice was generally recognized, and it was felt by many that only by means of the most heroic measures could the church be purged of error and iniquity.

Protestantism began, then, as a revolution, as a revolt from ecclesiastical abuses and tyranny, from tradition and superstition. The success which has attended this religious movement is one of the marvels of history. Its original mission was to enthrone truths and principles that had long been dethroned and trampled under foot, and to rescue a dying faith from threatened extinction. Beginning as an outcry against dominant corruption in the church and the obscuration of the essential elements of Christianity, it developed into a mighty reform movement, before which error and iniquity had to retreat. Though it began as a reformation, the principles defended and propagated have now become so widely prevalent that its mission in this age is mainly that of affirmation and evangelism rather than of a campaign against ecclesiastical corruption.

The grand principles for which the reformers of the sixteenth century so heroically contended were felt to be of vital importance then; nor are they any the less so now. In fact, these principles underlie the whole superstructure of modern civilization, which, in its noblest, loftiest form, is found only in Protestant lands. While Protestantism no longer has to fight fiercely for existence as she had to do during the first century of her history, and while the reformatory feature of her work is now secondary, her mission to the world has neither become obsolete nor insignificant. The principles for which she stands are still of tremendous importance, and must be perpetuated through the ages, and imparted to all the nations of the earth. What would society and government be today without her vitalizing, purifying power?

In order that the truth of these statements may become apparent, let us take a brief glance at the distinguishing principles of Protestantism. Let us notice for what Luther and his co-laborers fought.

1. The Reformation was a struggle in behalf of individualism and free inquiry. Before Europe became leavened with Protestant teaching the advocate of free speech and liberty of conscience was looked upon as a dangerous and devilish heretic unfit to live. The right of private judgment was denied by Pope and prelate, council and king, and short work was usually made of him who dared to differ with those in authority. It was an age of intellectual and spiritual bondage, of general subservience to superiors, and of suppression of truth. Individual responsibility to God was well-nigh lost sight of. As a distinguished writer says: "Rome practically discouraged the direct and personal access of the soul to God. Between the human mind and revealed truth Pope and Council interposed their authority. Between the sin-burdened soul and divine forgiveness the priest intervened with so-called absolution. Between the devout spirit and the throne of grace Virgin and saints were made to interject their needless mediation. The reformers swept away all such barriers, declared the right of private judgment, proclaimed a universal Christian priesthood, and, without undervaluing the church's ministry and councils, emphasized the personal responsibility of each individual to God, and the direct relation of each soul to Christ as the source of human salvation."

Since the Church of Rome to-day is in creed and polity practically what it was in the days of Luther; since she is opposed to permitting her members to interpret the Bible for themselves, stoutly maintains the doctrine of papal infallibility, and claims for the occupant of St. Peter's absolute spiritual and temporal supremacy, it is strikingly evident that Protestantism must still be the guardian and propagator of true civil and religious liberty. She has ever been the foe of tyranny, whether in Church or State. Our glorious republican institutions are based upon the doctrine of individualism, upon the right of each man to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. It is not a mere coincidence that the people in Protestant lands are to-day the most enlightened, prosperous, and liberty-loving upon the face of the globe. It is extremely questionable whether a government like that maintained by the Czar of Russia could exist for a month, or even a day, were the population of that empire largely Protestant.

It is not claiming too much to say that in exercising and defending the right of private judgment and freedom of conscience, the reformers of the sixteenth century laid the foundation broad and deep of the civil and religious liberty which we today enjoy. While the Reformation was essentially a religious movement, it fostered the spirit of independence, and helped no little to uproot the long-accepted doctrine of the divine right of kings. Thanks to Protestant teaching, the day has passed when men in civilized lands will unquestioningly accept dogmatic statement and "ipse dixit" utterance. The attitude of Protestantism toward whatever offers itself as truth may be summed in the words of Paul: "Prove all things: hold fast that which is good."

Is it not the gospel of Protestantism that has unshackled man's intellect, and that bids him explore all the realms of thought and knowledge? Never has any previous age been so strongly characterized by the love of liberty and of truth. Is not the spirit of inquiry so characteristic of this age largely due to the emancipative influence of Protestantism? The air rings with calls for revision of creeds and formularies, and it is coming to be recognized that the new wine of truth can not much longer be kept in the old bottles.

An unfortunate, but natural, result of Protestantism is that it sometimes leads to excessive and hurtful independentism. Our Romanist friends are quite fond of pointing to the numerous sects and divisions existing among us as a proof of the evil and folly of Protestant doctrine. Protestants have from the very first been characterized by a sad lack of unity, which lack has greatly retarded their work and progress. While it is to be admitted that the different branches of Protestantism are too often engaged in fighting one another, and in jealous bickering, they undoubtedly act as a check upon each other, and foster a spirit of freedom that otherwise would soon be doomed to perish. Better a multitude of sects and denominations enjoying full religious freedom, even though it be abused in some measure, than the grandest ecclesiastical uniformity possible, if it be gained at the cost of liberty.

Though the spirit of Protestantism is opposed to dogmatism and empiricism, certain branches thereof occupy the anomalous position of being committed to creeds and formularies that are declared to be final and unalterable.

2. In the next place, the Protestant reformers stoutly contended that the Bible, and not the decrees of Pope or council, should be the supreme rule of faith and practice, and restored it to its rightful place as the standard of authority in the church. They repudiated the whole mass of doctrines and superstitious usages built up upon tradition, and gave the Word of God to the people in their own tongue, firmly believing that the Spirit of God is his own best Interpreter of the divine Word. The history of Protestantism shows unmistakably that there is no mightier, more effectual agency for the overthrow of iniquity, superstition and error than the open Bible. In maintaining the supreme authority of the Scriptures, and in putting the same into the hands of the people at home and abroad, Protestants of to-day have a momentous and beneficent mission to perform. The Bible is still a sealed book in all countries where the Romish Church has full sway.

3. The third distinctive feature of Protestantism is its emphasis of the spiritual element of religion as opposed to burdensome ceremonialism and ritualism.

Under the Romish system religion is mainly a matter of the observance of outward forms, of the practice of penance, and of confession to the priest, inward faith and personal communion with God being scarcely thought of. This was true in Luther's day, and it is scarcely less true in the present. Unquestionably, one part of the glorious mission of Protestantism is to keep alive the grand doctrine of justification by faith, and to reveal the "hidden manna" to those who are hungering for the true Bread of Life. Evidently there is a vast multitude, even in so-called Christian lands, who worship creeds rather than Christ, and trust in forms rather than in the living God. A tendency toward ceremonialism is more or less observable at present in nearly all the branches of Protestantism. It may be that in our emphasis of inward experience we, as Protestants, have been over-neglectful of outward forms and ordinances, but, after all, it is the spirit that makes alive. There is no question of the fact that ritualism and ceremonialism possess a decided charm for a certain class of people.

It is too much to expect that Protestantism will wholly supplant Catholicism. However, just as Methodism helped to purify the Church of England in the eighteenth century, and awakened it to new life, in like manner Protestantism has acted upon Catholicism in this country and in other lands where they have come into conflict.

While Roman Catholics, as a rule, are considerably behind Protestants in morals and in intelligence, they until very recently have far surpassed us in charity work. The revolt against the pernicious Romish doctrine of pardon purchased through penance, the performance of deeds of benevolence, and the faithful observance of the rites and ordinances of the church, has caused not a few Protestants to drift into the opposite errors of Antinomianism and mysticism.

While in nearly all lands that have been dominated hitherto by Romanism a noticeable revolt is now going against Romish teaching and authority, particularly in France, in Protestant countries we have the strange spectacle presented to us of an unmistakable drift toward Romanism, which tendency, however, is confined mainly to the Anglican Church. The effort of the sacerdotal party in England to rival Romanism is arousing much antagonism

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Secretary Hay, after a conference with the British ambassador, made a statement at a Cabinet meeting, in which he said that the position of England toward the agreement of the foreign ministers at Pekin had been misunderstood by the public through misleading publications; that the position of England was substantially the same as that of this government. He added that he expected the agreement to be at once signed, and believed that the demands would be promptly met by the Chinese Government.

Mr. E. C. Shattuck, of Birmingham, Ala., who has just returned from Europe, was in Washington this week. While speaking of his trip, he said: "There are not many instances in history where a disastrous war has proved a blessing to a country, but such is the case with Spain. I spent three weeks in Spain, mostly in Madrid and Barcelona, and I was amazed to find signs of such industrial activity on every hand. If the thing keeps up at the present rate, Spain will, in a generation, become one of the great industrial nations of the world."

The United States Supreme Court, in a decision handed down this week, upheld the constitutionality of the Dow liquor tax, imposed by the Ohio Legislature for the purpose of regulating the liquor traffic in that State. The suit was brought by a West Virginia brewing company, which had refused to pay the tax upon a distributing plant it owned at Steubenville, which was, in consequence, seized and sold for taxes by the local authorities.

Train robberies have become so frequent that bills have been introduced in both Senate and House making the crime of train robbery punishable with death.

Dr. Wallace Radcliffe preached an able sermon on the much-discussed theme, the proper place of women in the work of the church, taking St. Paul's words to the Corinthians, "Let your women keep silent in the churches," for his text. The following quotation gives a good idea of the general trend of the sermon: "Heathenism made women inferior to men. Anti-Christianity often teaches her superiority. Christianity teaches her equality. She is neither a rival nor a subordinate, but a help equal to man. This is with subordination, but subordination does not mean inferiority or dishonor. It simply indicates a diversity of duties and relationships. The whole course of Christianity confirms this equality. Her happiness and development have been confirmed by the Bible. We must not forget that this equality is signalized in her relation to the church. She is equal with man in recognition and association in the church, but there is nothing to show that she was ever appointed to be an official or ruler. All the argument in history confirms this. Paul very carefully says that the Bishop must be the husband of one wife. He never says anything about the bishop being the wife of one husband. There will be exceptional cases of extraordinary gifts, but, because Deborah was a great soldier, shall we open West Point to women, and appoint one of them to be lieutenant general? Woman is not silent in the church. Her eloquent voice is heard in work at home and abroad. It will be heard more in the official work of the deacon, and most eloquently still as of yore."

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

FOURTH DAY.

By appointment of the Committee on Public Worship, Rev. Jno. F. Wynn conducted the Conference love-feast at 9:30 A. M. The occasion proved a season of spiritual refreshing and brotherly love.

At 11 o'clock the Bishop preached an inspiring sermon, based on the words, "The foundation of God standeth sure," to a large congregation. At the close of the sermon Baruette Wright and Martin Hebert were ordained traveling deacons, and S. S. Riggs, local deacon.

At 3.30 P. M. Dr. J. W. Boswell preached a sermon, directed especially to the young ministers to be ordained. At its close Bishop Galloway, in a very impressive service, ordained the following young men to the office of elders, viz.: C. C. Wier, P. O. Lowrey, and A. W. Turner.

At night, by invitation of the University authorities, Bishop Galloway preached to the members of the University, and a large audience, a sermon which deeply impressed the entire audience. The text was, "Let no man trouble me, for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

Dr. LaPrade and Rev. P. R. Knickerbocker preached at the Presbyterian Church, and Dr. W. T. Bolling at the Baptist.

Resolution concerning Bishop J. C. Keener, D. D., LL.D., passed by a rising vote Monday, Dec. 17, at the fifty-fifth session of the Louisiana Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South (Journal, page 103):

"Whereas, In the good providence of God, our senior Bishop, John C. Keener, still lingers among us, illustrating in a benign old age the mature graces of our holy religion, exhibiting in his daily life the strong virtues that have grown out of a long career spent in faithful service of the church, and revealing a mind filled with the glorious hopes inspired by the gospel which he has so long and eloquently preached; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we convey to him our hearty appreciation of the great work he has done among us—work whose influence will deepen and widen as time goes on; and that we pray that the blessings of divine grace may grow richer in his ripening experience, and that the beauties of divine love may still continue to brighten all his future with the mellow glow of the dawn of the eternal day.

(Signed) C. W. CARTER,
"W. H. LAPRADE."

If we dwelt more upon God's fullness, and his desire to make us partakers of it, our Christian character would be richer. There is nothing in his nature which is not measureless. The view of his plentitude will give us hope of rectitude in life and of glorification in heaven, not because of our feeble longing, but because of God's infinite desire for us.—H. W. Beecher.

IF I CAN LIVE.

BY HELEN HUNT JACKSON.

If I can live
To make some pale face brighter and to give
A second luster to some tear-dimmed eye,

Or e'en impart
One throb of comfort to an aching heart,
Or cheer some way-worn soul in passing by;

If I can lend
A strong hand to the fallen, or defend
The right against a single envious strain,

My life, tho' bare
Perhaps of much that seemeth dear and fair
To us on earth, will not have been in vain.

The purest joy
Is bidding clouds give way to sun and shine,

And 'twill be well
If on that day of days the angels tell

CHINA MISSION CONFERENCE.

The fifteenth session of the China Mission Annual Conference was held in Shanghai, Nov. 14-20, at Moore Memorial, formerly known as Central Church.

As there is no work open at the inland stations, and all the members of the mission resident in Shanghai, the work of the yearly meeting was done with more of leisure than usual, and matters concerning the future work were carefully discussed, and many valuable conclusions arrived at.

Perhaps the greatest interest this year was centered in the new school to be built at Soochow. The land has been bought (some eight acres adjoining the old mission property, along the canal), and the wall partly built, but further than that no man even dared prophesy.

The Board of Trust created at the annual meeting by the Board of Missions was organized. Dr. Allen was elected president; Dr. Anderson, vice-president; John W. Cline, secretary, and W. B. Nance, treasurer; and a committee was appointed to draw up Constitution and By-laws.

It was decided to carry on two institutions: the Anglo-Chinese School in Shanghai, and the new school in Soochow. Dr. Parker was elected president of the Shanghai school, with Mr. Cline and Mr. Loehr as professors. Of the Soochow school, Dr. Anderson was chosen president, with Mr. Whiteside and Mr. Nance, professors, and Dr. Park, dean of the medical school.

In the unsettled condition here no one knows when the work of building can be begun; so at the present we can only plan. A genuinely good school, with biblical, medical, and academic departments, seems to be at last a possibility. Lack of funds and men, and, perhaps, worst of all, lack of satisfactory students, has heretofore seriously cramped all our educational efforts in China. Certainly great things are open for us when the storm and stress period is over.

Whether that good time is near or far, we must also be content with conjecture. The work of the allied powers in arranging China's disturbed affairs is kept very secret. Some of us rather suspect that the secret is that nothing is being done. In the meantime there are thousands of Chinese troops, and the Court itself, settled down to Winter in a district for four years famine-stricken. Those hungry hordes are a foreboding shadow over this wretched country. They say, and you may wonder with us just who this "they" may be, that the old Empress is ill, seriously stricken with disease, along with anxiety and discomfort. Perhaps it is to be the good fortune of this country to lose its presiding genius. I don't know what of good this would accomplish further than ridding the earth of a demon-possessed creature, but that would be something whereat to give thanks.

With best wishes for your paper and its constituency, I am,

NOTES FROM THE MISSION FIELDS.

Rev. F. S. Onderdonk, presiding elder of the San Luis Potosi district, plans to hold a revival meeting in every pastoral charge. At the third Quarterly Conference of the American congregation in San Luis Potosi they had a fine showing; the collections for the quarter amounted to $800, and there had been 21 accessions to the church. He writes: "I have just returned from Cardenas, where I went last Friday and held a short meeting over Sunday. I baptized six children, and experienced a blessed revival among a backslidden people. Five united with the church by certificate. It makes me feel bad that I can not visit them at least once each month. They appreciate it so much, and under the adverse conditions there, they can not live without some religious influence to help them. They entreated me to procure a preacher for them next year."

Rev. Jackson B. Cox has had a good revival at Guadalajara, and wants to have the same in every preaching-place on his district. "The time has come," he writes, "when we can and ought to have more revivals in our Mexican work. The work at Tepic is moving on most beautifully, 105 members having been received into the church and 21 infants baptized. The church at that place has overpaid what was promised on the pastor's salary, and I think he will be able to bring up his entire assessments. The other church in the territory of Tepic—Santa Maria—will also, I think, pay all assessments, including pastor's salary."

We are offered the gift of a fine lot in Guadalajara, if we will pledge ourselves to erect a nice modern church thereon. It is of great importance for the growth of our work in that city that we should have a suitable church.

Rev. Lawrence Reynolds, writing from Nogales, Arizona, says: "There are several points in this part of Mexico that we should occupy the coming year, if possible, particularly Culiacan and La Paz. If we do not occupy these soon, others will. It is said that a number of Jesuits just from Rome are going to establish a chain of missions down the Sierra Madres and on the Yaqui river. Oh, may the Lord send men and means into this needy region! Ask the church to remember Mexico, and God grant us a great awakening."

KOREA.

Dr. R. A. Hardie writes from Seoul: "There is much to encourage us, especially in the interest manifested by the members of the country societies. During the quarter all the places where we have societies have been visited. Twenty-three adults and twenty-two infants received by baptism. In April last I began to give some attention to the work in the northern part of the city, and we have recently organized a society there. Eighteen members received by profession of faith, and seven transferred from the South Gate Chapel, makes the total enrollment there twenty-five. What we now need, and must have, if the progress of the work is not to be hindered, is a chapel large enough to hold between three and four hundred persons. The continuance and growth of the work among the women depends largely upon our reaching their husbands and sons. Mrs. Campbell does not feel that she can throw her house, where we have been meeting, open to a mixed congregation; hence the need for a new building."

THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND WEST POINT.

The recent session of the North Mississippi Conference, held Dec. 6-10, in West Point, taking it all in all, was certainly one of the most pleasant convocations that body has ever enjoyed. It was a time of cordial greetings and exhibitions of brotherly love well calculated to do the heart and soul of one good who had looked upon half a hundred of such assemblages. Some questions were strongly and earnestly contested by strong and able debaters. No ill-feeling was indulged in; none seemed suspected. In these speeches an unusual amount of playful wit was indulged in as the speakers amusingly cut at each other, provoking bursts of laughter and clapping from some untrained Conference attendants. A feeling of sadness rested upon the body when four of the brethren were reported dead; two of them the oldest men and the oldest preachers of the Conference. On account of feebleness from old age, of late years they have not been with us in our meetings.

Of the entertainment, perhaps it has been rarely, if ever, excelled. Quite a number of the preachers' wives were present, and each party, entertained at the different homes opened for their entertainment, contended to having the best home of all the Conference, while the hosts contended having the choice of the Conference for guests. There were heartfelt regrets at the separation from these newly-made friends. The houses of worship are beautiful, attractive, and comfortable. The pastors and preachers are worthy and lovable men.

It takes no astute observer to detect the rapid growth of the little city. The new buildings just finished and in course of construction show how the growing city is spreading itself over the hills as they roll back from the centre. The handsome residences, the schools and public buildings are an attraction. It may be difficult to compute the growing wealth of the place when we consider the public works in course of construction—a cotton factory, now a foregone conclusion, together with the wholesale house, or houses, being enterprised.

The rapid growth of its population, so marked by the last census taken, far outstrips its neighboring rival, Aberdeen; West Point counting her increase of population by the many hundreds, while its rival could not for the same decade count so many dozen. A long and close observer of men and things will account for this difference in the populous growth of the two places, that West Point has not a grog-shop or drinking-saloon within its corporation, while Aberdeen has its drinking-saloons and grog-shops open and running under the same legal protection with dry goods stores and grocery houses, where men and boys are lured to a drunkard's life and a drunkard's grave. Those who do not accept this, let them observe closely the developments within the next ten years.

There is one blur that mars the features of beauty that we have drawn of this place—that of the open meat-houses and butcher-stalls, where saints (?) and sinners on Sunday morning purchase their steaks for breakfast and their roasts for dinner on the holy Sabbath. The demands of the public require these butchers to be in place from early Sabbath morning to late Sabbath evening, denying them the privilege of church-going and of divine worship, while the municipal regulations require it to be so.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers and Official Members in Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference:

DEAR BRETHREN: Suffer this word of urgent exhortation.

1. Let us be one band of loving co-workers to achieve what is possible in the saving of souls and in loyal support of the institutions of the church.

2. Let the stewards meet as soon as practicable and make provision for comfortable support of the preacher-in-charge. This is due and necessary for the best service.

3. Let the watch-night service have its full measure of importance, and be conducted with solemn devotion and crowned with liberal thank-offering.

4. Will you see that the Quarterly Conferences are attended by every member able to be present? Our venerable senior Bishop urges with strong emphasis, that the Quarterly Conference shall be held in its true place of efficient power and the occasion magnified with suitable service. The fear is that all our Conferences are sinking too near the level of mere business transactions; whereas their true pulse should be that of a strong, strengthening spiritual life. There is indeed much and varied business in a Quarterly Conference, but it is not incongruous with the deepest piety and the hollest service.

5. Let us press the collection for the great thank-offering fund. We should continue the appeal to our people for their offerings to this fund until the $45,000 due from the North Mississippi Conference is laid on the altar for the use of the schools with which we are officially connected, and for whose support we stand pledged under the law of the church. Vanderbilt University, Millsaps College and Grenada College need every dollar that we can put legitimately into their treasuries, and we no less need the returns they will make to our imperative need in the work of Christian education.

THE RELIGION OF ANCIENT EGYPT.

[Paper read before the Woman's Culture Club at Alexandria, Dec. 8, while on the study of Egypt.]

According to the best authorities, the religion of the ancient Egyptians was a monotheism, upon which foundation was built an elaborate structure of polytheism. The supreme being, self-created and invisible, was made manifest in their sun-god, Ra. Not being able to worship a spirit "in spirit," they had the material body present, or an image or symbol of same. The various attributes of the deity were also symbolized, for instance: God, as the creator, was Phtha; as the revealer, he was Amoon; as the benefactor and judge of man, he was Osiris, and so on ad infinitum. With the masses of the ignorant these came to be worshiped as separate gods, and this system continued to grow till every animal and plant and almost every object was endowed with unnatural virtues and qualities.

The Egyptians were the first to teach that the soul of man is immortal [Herodotus], and they, in early ages, were under the most powerful priestly domination. Their religion was gloomy and brutal. The priests were believed to have power over the destinies of the soul, and able to transfer it into the body of some living creature according to transmigration. The soul was supposed to travel three thousand years through every living creature, animal, fowl, and fish, and then to return to the body, if in perfect preservation; if not, then into an image of same placed above the tomb. Hence were developed the wonderful methods of embalming by the higher classes, and the preservation of those mummies which are the wonder of antiquity. The finest specimens are found at Thebes. They are brown in color and quite elastic, while those made at Memphis are black and brittle.

Embalming was a necessity, for the body was not safe if buried in the shifting sands of the desert, nor was it sacred if buried in the overflow regions. Hence, for sanitary reasons also embalming was necessary.

The first Egyptian gods were represented by gigantic human beings as seen in the gods Dama and Shama, and the Androsphinx, part lion and part woman; but as the religion became corrupt, and their worship extended to the lower animals, they bowed before hideous creatures of brute and animal, showing that they had no real enlightenment of the soul.

Their writings were so filled with sacred symbols as to render them unfit for other use. Literature, science and art were but branches of theology and worship. The common labors of daily life were constantly interrupted by priestly regulation. Their future fate was ever before them, and they only lived to worship the gods.

Religion so thoroughly penetrated their lives and habits that it became an instinct, and it was of all polytheism the last to give way to Christianity, retaining its votaries as late as the sixth century of the Christian era.

The tomb was of far greater importance than the house, and while every habitation for the homes of men has utterly perished, many of the tombs and buildings for the dead still exist in good condition. The pyramids themselves, the greatest structures on the earth, were reared as tombs for their kings whom they deified after death.

Isis and one or two other goddesses held important places in the Pantheon. She was patron saint of agriculture and the industrial arts.

During the captivity of the Israelites in the eighteenth dynasty the Egyptian Kings cast many of their gods out of the Pantheon. They saw how the chosen people worship the one true God, and were so wonderfully blessed. I think it a just inference that they were influenced by this.

MRS. R. H. MCGIMSEY.

DANGER IN FRIENDSHIP.

I am much more afraid of some of my friends than I am of all of my known enemies. I ought not to have occasion to say so, but the occasion exists, and I can not put it away. I long ago learned that my friends did me more harm than my enemies did. Quite likely the fault has been in myself to a considerable degree, yet I can not believe that all of the fault lies in myself. My fault has been in confiding too much and too freely in my reputed friends. I have committed to their trust some statements, opinions, beliefs and secrets which I would not have done had I not supposed that they were safe keepers of those things. But, alas! for my confidence in them! I was at fault in placing such treasures in their trust. They did not keep the treasures, but very freely gave them away to those whom I was loath to have them. Of course, this grieved me. Harm came of it, both to others and myself. It was not because the things which I said were untrue, but because they were true; nor was there any ill-will, nor any mischief, in the matters which were entrusted to others. They were simply such things as might be properly confided to a staunch, prudent friend. The harm consisted in repeating what ought to have been kept strictly secret. And the harm was made greater by their being repeated differently from the way in which they were originally stated. Some words had accents placed upon them which were not in the original. In some respects wrong and unjust constructions were put upon whole statements.

Now, I must charitably suppose that at least some of my friends would not intentionally misrepresent what I had said to them in confidence. They merely forgot some qualifying statements, or put on certain tones which were not warranted, or planted an emphasis where it did not belong, or added a word or two which quite altered the sense of a sentence. In ways like these a real friend may do far more harm to one than his open and active enemy can. It is in such ways, too, that many friendships have been broken up. Of course, there are so-called friends who will maliciously take advantage of the confidence which is reposed in them. They will pretend to be the friend of another for the sake of drawing from him some statement which they can repeat to his harm. This is clear deviltry. As Christians, we should be so sincere in our friendships that they will be quite worthy of the highest confidence of our friends. C. H. WETHERBE.

The Christian Life.

If one must be a successful liar in order to be a successful salesman, most certainly the Christian can not enter that vocation. But in nine cases out of ten, is it not true that the salesman follows his own bent in offering his goods to a customer? If he has an eye only for the present, he may unduly exaggerate the value of his goods, in order to make a large sale. But if he is far-sighted and really wishes to gain the confidence of his customer, he will not unduly exaggerate his wares. When once men and women discover a man like that behind the counter, they will come again. I know a man who has been employed by one firm for years. He resolved when he first went to work for them that he would not misrepresent his goods. He has stood by that resolution. As a result his employers, not long ago, raised his salary in order to induce him to remain with them. He was too successful and valuable a man to lose. What is true of him is true of others, and might be true of many more, if they only had backbone enough to stand by their principles. —Katharine B. Gilton.

Those who have read the chief books of science and scholarship bearing upon religion in the last thirty years must realize that the intellectual forces in Christian lands are more friendly to the essentials of Christianity than they were thirty years ago. Prof. Drummond has said that "The sun and stars have been found out. If science has not by searching found out God, it has not found any other god, or anything the least like a god, that might continue to be even a conceivable object of worship in a scientific age." How much more reverent science now is, and in what closer sympathy with faith, must be evident to those who have watched the evolution of so sincere and capacious a mind as John Fiske's. He is to-day one of the chief exponents and bulwarks of scientific and philosophic faith in a personal God and a personal, conscious immortality. Agnosticism is not so unknowing as it was twenty-five years ago. "Each act of scientific examination but reveals an opening through which shines the glory of the Eternal Majesty."

Is it not true that men are building more churches to-day than ever before? Is this a proof of growing irreligion? Are they constructing these costly edifices in cities and humble meeting-houses in towns and country districts from vanity or the force of habit? Are they putting millions of dollars into Christian colleges mechanically, and with no movement of faith in their hearts?—President Barrows, of Oberlin College, in Leslie's Weekly.

Great hoards of wealth readily provide incentives to great crimes. A remarkable illustration of the truth of which is furnished by developments following the death of William M. Rice, a very wealthy recluse of New York. The Rice estate is estimated at from $4,000,000 to $20,000,000. Rice died a few days ago, and immediately after his death checks calling for the payment of $250,000 were presented at the banks with which he did business. Wishing to ascertain if all was right, the bank officials attempted to communicate with Mr. Rice, but failed to do so, though they were informed by his valet, who was also his private secretary, that everything was right. Still suspicious, however, the banks declined to pay the checks without investigation, and a little later the discovery was made that the millionaire was dead when the checks were presented. The authorities were notified of the suspicious features of the case, and promptly arrested the lawyer, who presented the checks, and the valet. It is now asserted that the checks were forged in a bold attempt to obtain control of the dead man's millions, and suspicion is entertained that the end of the unfortunate man may have been hastened by those who were impatient to carry out the plot for the acquisition of his property. "He heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them," is a text which, in these days of immense fortunes, has received more than one practical exemplification.—St. Louis Advocate.

If there is no special Providence, there is no need for prayer. Special blessings come in answer to special prayer over and above the general and uniform blessings which are given unto all alike, regardless of prayer. God has not decreed that the Holy Spirit shall reign in our hearts by fixed law, but in answer to the prayer of faith. Without faith it is impossible to please him, and without prayer it is impossible to entertain him. We may be assured that we are backslidden when we have no relish for prayer. A praying spirit is a gift above that of the utterance of tongues. As a Christian, do you attend the prayer meeting, do you pray in your family, do you pray in secret, do you pray anywhere?—Pacific Methodist.

There is a good deal of religious life that is much like the practice of "marking time" among soldiers. They lift up one foot and then put it down in the same place; then they lift up the other foot and put it down in the same place. They are moving, but they are not marching. In other words, they are but going through the motions of a march. So it is with many professors. They are but marking time. They are "going through the motions" of a Christian life, but they are not getting on. They are saying their prayers, but are not praying; they are going to church, but not to heaven; they are talking in meeting, but bearing no testimony.—Church Army Gazette.

MEMORIAM OF MRS. J. T. LEGGETT, OUR PASTOR'S WIFE.

BY MAGGIE WHEELAH.

To know her was to love her—
A pure Christian and noble friend;
The precious hours spent with her
Farewell, sweet friend, for awhile;
Death is the gateway to endless joy.
Thou art gone to the paradise of God;
Thy mission done, he called thee home.
His will is always for the best.
We miss thee, but submissive we bow,
For our Father doeth all things well.
Then sleep, beautiful toiler;
Thy work on earth was finished;
Beautiful soul into glory gone,
Beautiful life with its crown now won.
God giveth thee rest;
Rest from all sorrow, watchings, and fears;
Rest from all possible sighing and tears;
At home with the blest.
Ours the heartache, sorrow, and pain;
Thine the glory, the infinite gain;
Thy slumber is sweet.
We miss thee, but God knoweth best;
We know he watches the sparrows that fall,
Hears the sad cry of the grieved hearts that call.
Friends, husband, children, he loveth them all;
We can trust for the rest.
A little while we, too, shall pass away,
And may we meet to part no more.
Haziehurst, Miss.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, In the Providence of God, we are called upon to mourn the death of Mrs. Kate Leggett, one of our members, who was called to her "eternal home" on the twenty-eighth of November, 1900; And, whereas, We desire to express, though faintly, our appreciation of her life and character, and to place some token of our esteem in permanent form, in order that those who bear her name may know the impressions which were left by her upon those who knew her best; therefore, be it Resolved, By the Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, of Haziehurst, Miss., that we recognized in the life of our departed sister all of those elements of character which ennoble Christian womanhood. As a wife, she was faithful, considerate, devoted and true; as a mother, she was tender, thoughtful, gentle, and self-sacrificing to the very last degree; as a member of the church, she was modest, unassuming, and singularly devout, and as a friend and neighbor, she exhibited the most trusting disposition and affectionate gratitude for every kindness, and a splendid charity for every fault. The world is better for her having lived in it and for having her example left. In her death she exhibited the sweetest-spirited concern for all whom she left behind, and at the same time the most unalloyed trust in the merits of Him whom she had taken as her guide and counselor in life. Her resignation and Christian fortitude will never be forgotten by us, and her parting blessings fell like a blessed benediction upon all who witnessed her passing to the world beyond. May the God whom she loved and trusted "temper the wind to the shorn lamb" half-orphaned by her death, and be the comforter and helper of the devoted husband now left solely in their charge. We hereby tender our deepest sympathy to her family, and pledge to them our assistance and our prayers.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our Minutes, and that a copy thereof be furnished to the family of the deceased, and also to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

REVIVAL AT RUSTON.

We speak advisedly when we say "revival." The church that has enjoyed a series of sermons by Rev. Clarence Strouse, and has not been revived, must needs be "deader" than was ours. Bro. Stronse and his wife were with us from Nov. 30 till Dec. 11. He may be aptly called a religious prodigy. His mother is a staunch Baptist, his father a Lutheran, and his spiritual father a Presbyterian. He says, "I was brought up a Baptist, and brought down a Methodist." If we could bring down a few more like him, fortunate would we be. His sermons, portraying individuality, are both logical and spiritual, carrying conviction to all hearts. Never before has it been our privilege to witness such visible results. Scores professed conversion, and we have cause to believe that many of these were more than mere professions, as he very strongly urges people not to profess what they do not deeply feel. Having once led "the german," he can now lead the American audience with as much ease and grace as a trained actor. Although his sermons invariably occupied more than an hour, and often two, instead of growing weary, we wanted to encore. He has struck the "happy medium." While he is a strong advocate of "holiness," he "steers clear" of fanaticism. His sermons cause a commingling of smiles and tears. For example: In his sermon on, "I am the Good Shepherd," after reaching sublime heights in his portrayal of the shepherd's tender care of even the weakest lamb, he said: "You can tell a sheep by its tastes. A sheep never chews tin cans and eats paper. If you love the ball-room, card-table and theatre better than Christ, you are not a sheep, and if your spiritual hat were lifted, goat horns would be plainly visible."

Bro. Stronse had to abandon more of the world's "good things," in order to become a despised (by some) evangelist, than most men do, but when he says, "I am far happier," the heavenly light on his face shows more plainly than words that he speaks the truth.

Mrs. Strouse might be called a musical prodigy. Her sweet sermons in song will long be remembered, her enunciation being perfect. The sentiment of the song may be enjoyed by those whose ears are not trained to appreciate the operatic gargle we now term "a solo."

We await "with fear and trembling" the edict of the Bishop who presides over the Louisiana Conference. There are several reasons why Rev. H. R. Singleton, Jr., should be sent back to Ruston. One is: he should be allowed to enjoy for three years to come the new parsonage he has labored so hard to erect, as well as to preach in the church he caused to be enlarged and improved; but the main reason is simply because we all want him returned.

Bro. Crews, having served us as presiding elder his allotted four years, must leave us, and our good-will follows him to his new field of labor. God bless him and everybody else.

ALICE CARY MCKINNEY.

SOUL-CLEANSING.

One of the prayers oftenest offered by the Christian is that of the Psalmist: "Create in me a clean heart." If sincere, and the constant attitude of the heart, the prayer must be answered in those slow and silent processes by which the Divine Spirit transforms our nature as well as the swifter baptisms of the Heavenly Presence.

Turning to fire, it is interesting to notice her different methods of cleansing. Water seems the commonest and most evident agency. It distils softly the form of dew, or drops from the clouds in rain, or it is stored up in deep, still fountains to make its own canals through the land, always the same refreshing, purifying element. But it is only one of many cleansing activities of nature. The wind, or air in motion, is one of these. The great spaces of moving air purify both vegetation and the water. Even those wild storms that sweep over land and sea, leaving destruction in their path, are a part of the wise economy of nature, and cleanse and heal while they destroy. The fire, too, cleanses, and more perfectly than either wind or water. When we would purge away the last foulness, we resort to this fierce spirit, and, used to our will, it is beneficent and healing in its work.

The earnest prayer for a clean heart is always answered, but the answer includes the wind and the fire and the frost as well as the gentle, silent forces of sun and rain and light. The storm of sorrow and loss sweeps over our life and destroys our earthly happiness; the fire of pain and sickness, long helplessness, of humiliation, disgrace, consumes us; the frost of neglect or desertion blasts our brightest hopes, and in all these the obedient heart is cleansed and made better.

God moves upon our spirits in many ways. Some seem to need nothing more than the soft, sweet influence of the light and the gentleness of dew, while others are purified only in the intensity of fire or the fury of storm.—Zion's Herald.

JOY.

Where does joy come from? I knew a Sunday-school scholar whose conception of joy was that it was a thing made in lumps and kept somewhere in heaven, and that when people prayed for it pieces were somehow let down and fitted into their souls. In reality joy is much a matter of cause and effect as pain. No one can get joy by merely asking for it. It is one of the best fruits of the Christian life, and, like all fruits, must be grown.

There is a very clever trick in India called the mango trick. A seed is put in the ground and covered up, and after diverse incantations a full-blown mango-bush appears within five minutes. I never met anyone who knew how the thing was done, but I never met anyone who believed it to be anything else than a conjuring trick. Men may not know how fruits grow, but they do know that they can not grow in an hour. Some have never planted one sound seed of joy in all their lives. Others who may have planted a germ or two, have lived so little in the sunshine that they never could come to maturity. By a branch of the true Vine we may grow the fruits of his joy, for his method of living is one that in the nature of things produces joy.—Henry Drummond.

"THE TAX DODGER."

Among thoughtful men and in the newspapers of the day we hear and see a good deal about the sin of tax-dodging. We are not up in the cases, but it seems that there are men, and not a few, who evade the payment of just taxes by various dodges. It is hard for us to take this in as a fact, and simply because it appears to us that any one who would act dishonestly in paying taxes would act dishonestly in any other transaction if the way were opened; and it is hard to believe that there are very many such people. In this matter, however, not only is the question of common honesty involved, but also that of privilege. We heard a wise man say at one time that it was a dignifying privilege to pay the taxes of one's country. A man's tax money is his tribute to the common good of his State and his people. There is dignity in paying that tribute; there is the opposite in defrauding the State of it.—Wesleyan Advocate.

The only anthracite coal region in the world, so far as now known, is in Northeastern Pennsylvania, and is some 480 square miles in extent. The deposits are very extensive, and even with the present wasteful use of the coal, it will last for two centuries at least. Other and cheaper grades of coal are found all over the world.—Exchange.

"A Bright Little Boy"

Would be sure of a welcome in almost any home. But what a welcome he would have in a home where the hope of children had been extinguished. What a welcome this particular "bright little boy" did have in such a home, may be judged by the closing paragraph of his mother's letter, given below. There is no room for the whole letter, which recounts a story of fifteen years of suffering and a perfect cure by the use of "three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and some of the 'Pellets.'"

In many instances childlessness is the result of conditions which are curable. It has often happened that when "Favorite Prescription" has cured a woman of female weakness and the nervous condition attending it, her return to health is signalized by the birth of her first child. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"I cannot tell half that Dr. Pierce's medicine has done for me," writes Mrs. T. A. Raguh, of Norris, Watauga Co., N. C. "It will do all that is claimed for it—prevent miscarriage and render childbirth easy. It has given me a bright little boy, and I would not have had him had it not been for your wonderful medicine. I cannot say too much in praise of it; I think it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God for my life, and Dr. Pierce for my health."

"Pleasant Pellets" clear the complexion.

A PARTING WORD.

On the first day of January my connection with the ADVOCATE will cease. During the seven years of my administration I have striven ardnously to prodnce a paper worthy of the great church which it represents.

Since the heginning of the present year my time has been occupied with the laborions duties of the pastorate in Jackson, Miss. The paper, however, has not snffered in the least on that account, the assistant editor, Rev. M. M. Black, having rendered as efficient service as I could possibly have done.

Concerning my successor, Dr. J. W. Boswell, I take pleasnre in reprodncing with my hearty endorsement an editorial from the Nashville Advocate, of recent date. The interests of the paper will he entirely safe in his hands. It only remains for me to bid the readers of the ADVOCATE an affectionate adieu.

MAKING PREPARATION FOR THE MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

On Thursday night, of last week, a conference of the Methodist pastors and leading laymen of New Orleans was held in the lectnre-room of the Carondelet Street Church for the purpose of organizing in order to make proper preparation for the approaching Missionary Conference. Missionary Secretary W. R. Lambuth and his two assistants, Rev. P. L. Cobb and G. W. Cain of Nashville, were also in attendance, and assisted in giving direction to the plans that were formulated. It was decided to elect a local Executive Committee consisting of three preachers and four laymen, the following being chosen, to-wit: Rev. S. S. Keener, D. D.; Rev. W. H. LaPrade, D. D.; Rev. F. N. Parker, W. W. Carre, Dr. E. L. McGehee, F. A. Dicks, and W. B. Thomson. Dr. S. S. Keener was elected chairman, and Dr. W. H. LaPrade, secretary of the committee.

It is estimated that the attendance upon this missionary gathering will be between 1000 and 5000. The programme will cover every phase of missionary work, and will include addresses by a hundred, or more, distinguished speakers from this and other lands.

Dr. J. J. Lafferty, the editor of the Richmond Advocate, has been sorely bereaved in the death of his youngest daughter, Miss Mattie Lafferty, who passed away on the second of December. She was a young woman of many attractions and lovely character, and was unspeakably dear to those who mourn her departure. Our worthy confrere and his stricken family have our sincere sympathy in this dark hour.

How frequently Christians who ought to admonish and encourage an erring brother, or who should lend a hand in philanthropic work, excuse themselves by saying, "It's none of my business." Such a maxim is of Satanic origin. "He that loveth not his brother," says the Apostle John, "abideth in death."

The men who inaugurate great reform or revival movements are not the ones who stop to think about their dignity, their reputation, or their ease.

It is far better to be entitled to credit than to get more credit than you are entitled to.

BRITISH GENERALS AND THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

Such disgraceful scenes have recently been enacted in England as the result of indulgence on the part of English soldiers just returned from South Africa in intoxicating liquors unwisely furnished them by their friends, that Lord Roberts and Lord Wolseley, the two highest officers in the British army, have issued stirring letters to the public, in which they strongly protest against giving soldiers drink. Lord Roberts' appeal to the British nation, addressed to the editor of the London Times, has been pronounced "one of the most significant documents in temperance or army history." We regret that we have not space this week to give it in our columns.

Lord Wolseley's appeal is no less noteworthy. We herewith quote it in full, with the exception of one short paragraph at the close:

"The longer I live, the more I am confirmed in the early acquired belief that 'drink' is the hot-bed, not only of most human misery, but of crime also. It was once my privilege to lead a fighting brigade through a wild, uninhabited region for a distance of 600 miles. All ranks had to work hard every day and all day, from sunrise to dark. We carried no intoxicating liquor with us, and none was obtainable on the way. I never had a sick man, and all crime, even the most trivial offenses, was unknown. Had liquor been obtainable, I am certain I could not have reached my destination with a fighting force in the splendid condition it was in when we marched into Fort Garry in 1870.

"The horrid practice of treating friends to do them honor is a most pernicious custom, which directly leads to and encourages intemperance. We are now about to welcome home a large number of our finest soldiers from South Africa. We desire to make every man in it feel how much we admire his soldier-like qualities, and value the good services he has rendered to his Queen and country. But there can be no doubt that many of us who tempt him to drink are his worst enemies, and do him a serious injury. Can we find no other way of rejoicing with him than by drinking with him?"

The testimony of these two distinguished British generals is in striking contrast to the ridiculous position of certain supposedly wise American army officers who defend the army canteen, and contend that soldiers must have liquor.

LIQUOR SELLING IN THE CAPITOL AT WASHINGTON.

The continued tolerance of the sale of liquor in the basement of the Capitol at Washington for the convenience and benefit of whisky-loving Senators and Congressman, is a standing disgrace to the nation. When the anti-canteen amendment was up for discussion in the House, a short time ago, there was considerable consternation for a few moments among the liquor-drinking Congressmen over an amendment offered by Mr. Fitzgerald prohibiting the sale of liquor in the Capitol building. The amendment was soon ruled out of order as not being germane.

What a shame that we have men in Congress who are so addicted to the whisky habit, and who have so little regard for the honor of the nation, that they must needs convert a part of the National Capitol into a saloon for their accommodation and gratification! We do not expect every Congressman and Senator to be a teetotaler, but we do expect that the men who represent us at Washington shall not outrage the laws of propriety and the moral sentiment of the Christian people of our country. May the time soon come when the more self-respecting among our representatives in Congress will rise up in their might and banish liquor selling from the Capitol building, at least.

THE MODERN THEATRE.

The following editorial, taken from the Pittsburg Advocate, so fitly expresses our convictions concerning the influence of the theatre, that we copy it entire. The scandalous nature of the posters by which the average play is advertised is of itself evidence enough of its sensual and corrupting character. Sad to tell, there are professing Christians in all of our cities who are larger investors in the opera house than in the church of God. Of course, the piety of such is not of that resolute kind which shuns the appearance of evil, and which practices self-denial for Christ's sake. In view of its generally impure tone and tendency, the professing Christian who patronizes the theatre is far from being as wise as a serpent, or as harmless as a dove. Says the Pittsburg Advocate:

"Every friend of social purity and defender of the morals of the young should pause long before giving any countenance to the average theatre of the present day. It has never been so low and lewd in the history of our country as it is now. What is known as legitimate drama is almost a thing of the past. Shakespeare and his class are seldom presented. Talent and virtue, except in a few instances, are forgotten. Plays which are filled with covert or broadly lewd suggestions attract the crowds, and semi-nude women take the place of talented artists on the boards. So low have these things gone that loud and indignant protests have been evoked from the public press. Condemnation is no longer left to ministers of the gospel and active Christians. Men of the world who have wives and daughters, whose children are imperiled, have joined the cry.

"It is needless to attempt to defend the theatre by an appeal to the harmlessness and advantages of legitimate drama. The church has never condemned the legitimate drama; has never denounced as sinful all plays. It has felt called upon to raise its voice in warning against the play-house, not because all plays are bad, but because the harmless do not afford salt enough to save the institution—never have, and were never so far from doing so as now. So low are the majority of the plays presented that virtuous citizens and police authorities have a continual fight to protect public morals from contamination by the vile pictures displayed on the bill-boards to advertise them."

A DESERVED PROMOTION.

We take pleasure in reprodnoing from the Nashville Advocate, of Dec. 13, the following words of commendation by Dr. Hoss of the new editor of this ADVOCATE:

Rev. John W. Boswell, D. D., for the past seven years Assistant Editor of this Advocate, has been elected editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and will enter Jan. 1 on the duties of his new position. We shall part with him most regretfully. In the whole course of our life we have rarely met with a truer man. He has all the straightforward simplicity of character that marked the early Methodist preachers; very quiet and undemonstrative, he, nevertheless, possesses a courage that nothing can daunt. His capacity for work is without limit. He actually revels in daily drudgery. As a sound thinker and a vigorous writer, he ranks with the front men. The long experience which he has had in newspaper offices, his careful business habits, his devotion to Methodism, and his blameless piety, all combine to make him a fit man for the responsible post to which he has now been called; a post in which he is successor to Holland N. McTyeire, John C. Keener, Linus Parker, Charles B. Galloway, Charles W. Carter, and Warren C. Black. That he will worthily keep up the succession we do not for a moment doubt. He will carry with him the best possible wishes of the whole Publishing House gang. As it is only a little over a year till the next General Conference, no one will now be appointed to fill the vacancy which Dr. Boswell's promotion creates.

NEW BOOKS.

GREAT SOUTHERNERS. Being a Series of Short Sketches of Statesmen, Military Captains, Orators, Jurists, Preachers, Men of Literature, etc. Illustrated with Half-Tone Likenesses. By Will T. Hale, author of "Backwoods Trail," "An Autumn Lane, and Other Poems," etc. Vol. I. 16 mo. 252 pages. Cloth. Price, 65 cents. Nashville, Tenn.: Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South.

This attractive and inspiring little volume from the pen of the widely known and talented Southerner, Will T. Hale, contains brief, but accurate and interesting sketches of forty-seven Southerners who have achieved distinction. The sketches herein presented were originally published in the "Children's Visitor," and on account of their excellence, popularity and helpfulness in furnishing the children and young people of the South trustworthy information regarding representative Southerners, they are now put into permanent form. The publication of this splendid biographical series is cause for congratulation.

PIONEERS OF SOUTHERN LITERATURE. By Samuel Albert Link. Volume III. 16 mo. 599 pages. Cloth. Price, 75 cents. 1900. Nashville, Tenn.: Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South.

In this volume Prof. Link, who is a master of English prose, as well as a scholar of considerable repute, completes his survey of early Southern writers, and gives the public the benefit of a vast deal of painstaking and skillful labor, for which he deserves much praise. Even a cursory glance at the contents of the two volumes of this series convinces the reader that the field here covered is far richer and more extensive than is usually imagined. The author does not attempt to give anything more than a short review of the life and productions of the "pioneers" of Southern Literature," but he does this tersely and charmingly. The selections and quotations given are quite felicitous. The writers herein sketched are considered in the following order: Edgar Allan Poe; War Poets of the South; Singers in Various Keys; Southern Humorists; Political Writers and Historians.

THE RETURN TO CHRIST. By Amory H. Bradford, D. D., author of Spirit and Life, Heredity and Christian Problems, The Art of Living Alone, etc. 16 mo. 155 pages. Cloth. Price, 75 cents. 1900. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co.

The above is the title of a wholesome and faith-invigorating booklet by the gifted religious writer, Amory H. Bradford, whose productions, because of their elegance of thought and style, loftiness of purpose, and general excellence, are in great favor with the Christian public. In this volume the remarkable movement in our day, indicated by the title, is elucidated by the author and considered in its various bearings, as follows: "The Return to Christ in Theology;" "In Ethical and Spiritual Ideals;" "In Social Ideals;" "In Ideals of the Kingdom of God, and Methods by Which It Is to Be Advanced." Says Mr. Bradford in the opening chapter: "Religious thought in all civilized lands is centering about the person of our Lord. It is occupied chiefly with two questions: first, with the biography of Jesus while He was upon earth, and, second, with the work which He has been doing since He left the earth."

The momentous subject of Christian Missions is herein considered in a variety of aspects, the author's treatment thereof being cogent, luminous, and philosophical. It is not a history of missions, neither is it a mere collection of missionary data for workers, but a clear, earnest, and powerful presentation of the ground of missionary endeavor, the object of missionary enterprise, which the author asserts is not merely the rapid proclamation of the gospel in every land, the methods that will best insure success, and of the needs of the church in prosecuting this all-important work.

The author rightly puts strong emphasis upon the missionary motive in Christianity, reviews at some length the changes in theological opinion regarding the destiny of the Christless, and devotes due attention to the present crisis in missions. Says the author in discussing the missionary motive: "If we care for the bringing of men to God, we shall wish them to be brought as soon as possible, and be unwilling to leave them to any future. The Christian motive to missions remains in full force as long as it is true that a world of men is living without the light of God, and can not find it without such help as we might give."

Following are the titles of some of the most suggestive chapters: "Christianity and Other Religions," "Organization for Missionary Purposes," "Denominations in Missions," "The Outlook in Missions." It is a deeply instructive, suggestive, and inspiring book, and is written by a theologian of marked ability and wide renown.

The press, the pulpit, and the pedagogue compose the grand trinity of educative agencies that are to enlighten and purify the whole world, mould men of might and manliness, and, we trust, in the not distant future, usher in the Golden Age.

The sad thing about many forms of sin in which men indulge is that even after they have obtained the divine forgiveness they are not always able to forgive themselves, but are haunted by the recollection of the irreparable injury done to themselves and to others.

Johnson characterized Lord Chesterfield as teaching "the morals of a woman of infamy and the manners of a dancing master." He practiced dissimulation so long that it became an integral part of his nature. We are more and more impressed with the fact that the arts of polished and refined life aim not to eradicate the vices, but to conceal them. Nothing less than the religion of Christ is sufficient to transform the inner nature, and make virtue, not a sham, but a grand reality. As James Russell Lowell has said with force and truth: "There is a poison in the sores of Lazarus, against which Dives has no antidote."

THE WANING YEAR.

BY M. E. S.

A few days more and the century's last
Will glide away to the shadowy past.
Will drop into silence and cease to be
Aught but a fading memory.
The fair and brave of the by-gone years
Have ended their story of love and fears,
The brave and fair of our present hour,
The sceptred wielders of mighty power,
Must take the path that all have kept,

For the young grow old, and the strong grow tired,
And they care no more for the once desired;
One by one as the swift years roll,
To the bourne unfeared by the trusting soul,
One by one as the centuries pass,
And break on the shore of the sea of glass.

NOTES.

***

The Virginia Conference reports an increase in membership for the year just closed of 1,738.

***

Rev. W. H. LaPrade, Jr., pastor of Immanuel Church, St. Louis, is spending the holidays in this city with his parents.

***

Dr. James Atkins, our efficient and progressive Sunday-school editor, made a fine impression upon the brethren at the Mississippi Conference. This was his first visit to us, but we hope he will not let it be his last.

***

Rev. T. B. Clifford, the new pastor at Dryades Street Church, arrived in the city with his family on Thursday, of last week and was given a most cordial reception by the membership. He was greeted on last Sabbath by fine congregations.

***

We are in receipt of a copy of the program for Epworth League Day, Jan. 13, 1901, prepared by Secretary H. M DuBose in accordance with the instructions of the Epworth League Board. It is a neatly-printed and well-selected program, and may be obtained from our Publishing House at Nashville at 50 cents per hundred. We hope all of our League chapters will faithfully observe League Day.

The postoffice address of Rev. R. S. Collier has been changed from Davilla to Milano, Texas.

***

Bishop Hamilton, of the M. E. Church, states that every member of the Arizona Conference is a college graduate.

***

In our report, last week, of the proceedings of the Mississippi Conference, the name of Rev. E. C. Grice, formerly of the Baptist Church, was misprinted E. C. Guice.

***

We were in error last week in stating that Rev. W. D. Dominick served the Silver Creek charge during the past year. He was the efficient pastor of the Tranquil circuit, in Yazoo county.

***

The class admitted on trial at the late session of the Mississippi Conference included several very bright and finely educated young men, and all the members thereof give promise of great usefulness.

***

We learn with much regret that Mrs. R. K. Hargrove, on account of failing health, has been compelled to resign her position as General Secretary of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, which office she has filled with signal ability and success since 1894.

***

Dr. W. F. Glenn, who for the past ten years has filled the editorial chair of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate with eminent ability and success, has voluntarily retired, and Rev. W. C. Lovett, of the South Georgia Conference, has been elected as his successor.

***

Among the prominent and useful laymen who attended the Mississippi Conference at Brookhaven and took an active part in its proceedings were: Bro. L. P. Brown and Capt. S. B. Watts, both of Meridian; Bro. W. M. Thornton, of Lake, and Bro. T. A. Holloman, of Phœnix.

***

Rev. T. J. Upton and Bro. T. J Miller, of Zachary, La.; Rev. W. G. Evans, of Haughton, La.; Rev. J. F. Sonlock, of Covington, La., and Rev. G. H. Roberts, of Nicholson, Miss., and Presiding Elder J. T. Sawyer, of the Shreveport district, each favored the ADVOCATE with a call recently.

***

On the eleventh instant, a few days before his removal from Columbus to Tupelo, Miss., where he has been stationed for the ensuing year, Rev. J. A. Bowen was presented by the faculty of the I. I. and C. with a handsome walnut office chair as a token of personal esteem and of their appreciation of the good work he did at the college.

***

We learn with deep regret of the death, which occurred at Columbus, Miss., on the eighteenth instant, of Mrs. Susan McGee, mother-in-law of Rev. J. A. Bowen, of the North Mississippi Conference. She was a most devoted Christian, and was ripe for the Master's garner. Bro. Bowen and his stricken companion have our sincerest sympathy in this great sorrow.

***

We regret that in printing the North Mississippi Conference appointments, a couple of weeks ago, the names of Rev. G. W. Bachman and R. O. Brown were accidentally omitted. The former was reappointed colporter, and the latter was stationed at Prairie City. As we had to clip the appointments from one of the New Orleans dailies in order to get them for the ADVOCATE in time, we were not responsible, save indirectly, for these omissions.

***

We herewith reprodnce for the benefit of our readers a part of Report No. 2 of the Board of Education of the Mississippi Conference: "The report of Millsaps College, presented to the Board, has been read with pleasure, and the improvement on past sessions is exceedingly gratifying. The enrollment for the present session up to the present time is much better than heretofore. We are glad to note that the student body is characterized by a strong moral and religious sentiment, and, to quote the president, 'by serious purpose and high aim.' We also note with a deal of gratification that the personnel of the faculty is stronger than it has been since the opening of the college, nine years ago."

The 20th Century Movement.

BY HENRY G. HAWKINS,
Conference Secretary of Education.

The total of cash that has come into our treasurer's hands since the movement began is about $3,500, about $1,000 of which was specially directed. Something like $2,000 has been reported as Twentieth Century money, and expended on our schools, without passing through our treasurer's hands. Counting this, we would say that $5,500 has been paid. There have been reported unpaid subscriptions amounting to about $10,000, making the total of paid and unpaid subscriptions in the Mississippi Conference, $15,500.

We give here an extract from the report of the Mississippi Conference Board of Education, adopted at Brookhaven:

"We shall look for a speedy collection by pastors of the subscriptions already enrolled, but as we shall need much more than is now in sight, if our schools are to do the work expected of them in the twentieth century, we ask that the movement continue to be emphasized until the most, or all, of our members and adherents are led to appreciate the needs of our schools, and to make subscriptions to the Twentieth Century Fund.

"We ask that all cash be sent promptly by pastors to our treasurer, R. W. Millsaps, Jackson, Miss. Where any of this is specially directed, our treasurer, if so instructed, will immediately forward such to the institution named in the instruction.

"It is our desire that on the financial page of each pastor's report made at our next Annual Conference, one of the blank spaces have written upon it by the pastor reporting, 'Twentieth Century Fund,' as a separate item, with the amount of cash to that cause paid to our treasurer during the year and at Conference.

"We ask that all pastors hold the watch-night service, programs for which are furnished by our General Board."

IS IT AN EPIDEMIC?

VITAL STATISTICS SHOW AN ALARMING INCREASE IN AN ALREADY PREVAILING DISEASE—ARE ANY EXEMPT?

At no time in the history of disease has there been such an alarming increase in the number of cases of any particular malady as in that of kidney and bladder troubles now preying upon the people of this country.

To-day we see a relative, a friend or an acquaintance apparently well, and in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their serious illness or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's disease.

Kidney trouble often becomes advanced into acute stages before the afflicted is aware of its presence; that is why we read of so many sudden deaths of prominent business and professional men, physicians and others. They have neglected to stop the leak in time.

While scientists are puzzling their brains to find out the cause, each individual can, by a little precaution, avoid the chances of contracting dreaded and dangerous kidney trouble, or eradicate it completely from their system if already afflicted. Many precious lives might have been, and many more can yet be saved, by paying attention to the kidneys.

It is the mission of the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" to benefit its readers at every opportunity, and therefore we advise all who have any symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble to write to-day to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a free sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the celebrated specific which is having such a great demand and remarkable success in the cure of the most distressing kidney and bladder troubles. With the sample bottle of Swamp-Root will also be sent free a pamphlet and treatise of valuable information.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT,

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOS. H. DORSEY, Arcola, Miss.
EDITOR.

The Literary Department of South Side (Meridian) Epworth League.

The work of the Third Department of our League is doing good work. We have a Literary Meeting on Tuesday evening of each week at the home of some Leagner. The attendance is good, and much interest shown. Our last meeting was held at the parsonage; subject for evening was, "Epworth Era and Editor." The room was decorated with the League colors, and a number of copies of the Epworth Era were hung upon the wall. After song, prayer, and reading of the Scripture, the roll was called, and members responded by giving some article read in the Era. Selections from the Era were read by several Leaguers. "Epworth Crusade" was recited. Paper upon the Epworth E[illegible] and editor by one of the Leaguers. Program closed with general discussion of the Era, and several subscriptions taken.

The subject for our next meeting is, "The Women of the Bible."

We organized our "Reading Circle" about a month ago, with a class of twelve. We have nearly finished the first book, viz: "Life of Seventh Earl of Shaftsbury." The book is very good. We have seven sets of the Reading Course, and expect to get more. There are a number in our League who can not, or will not, study the course; so we try to give them something helpful and instructive at the Literary Meeting on Tuesday night of each week, and our meetings are very helpful, we think.

Once a month the members of the Reading Circle furnish the program for the Literary Meeting by giving papers and talks on what they have read, each having his or her part assigned them by the Program Committee.

We are planning for a series of lectures for our League.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Preachers and Other Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the Forest District—

DEAR BRETHREN: Let me beg of you to comply cheerfully and cordially with Bishop Galloway's exhortation, and observe watch-night, Dec. 31. Make thorough and prayerful preparation for the occasion. May it be a veritable Pentecost unto all who may attend. May richer blessings abound unto us in the new century than in the past; and may we all do better work for our Lord.

Yours faithfully,
T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

As our Conference convened in Brookhaven, Dec. 13, we were able to report Port Gibson Female College in good condition and enjoying a larger degree of prosperity than for several years past.

For many years it has been our desire to place an all-round Christian education within the reach of our preachers and members of limited means. Many of our people have been compelled for lack of means to patronize State schools rather than Church schools, which have made heavier charges than they felt able to pay. For a goodly number this is no longer a necessity, real or apparent. For, realizing the wisdom of Church education versus State education, we have determined to place the education of our girls within the reach of those in moderate circumstances, and to educate preachers' daughters at actual cost.

The Church must educate approximately as cheaply as the State, or for years to come see her daughters educated by the State. We can and will educate the girls sent to us for about what the State is doing it at present; and if the ornate departments are included, we will do it for less.

We can accommodate about sixty girls in our boarding department. If we had that number paying one half in advance, we could take them for $150 apiece, and give them board, including washing, fuel, light, tuition, and music, or art, or elocution or voice culture. Above all, it shall be our constant care to give our girls a Christian education, thus preparing them to be a blessing to the world. For any desired information, address the president, L. S. JONES.

"Faiths of Famous Men" is a unique work. There has never before, perhaps, been an attempt to gather into one volume a consensus of the personal opinions of the world's great thinkers and doers upon the leading topics of religious belief, and Dr. Kilbourn's work, therefore, stands alone. The extent of his performance shows tireless industry and the widest range of patient reading. He gives us Augustine and Irenæus; Wikliffe, Luther and Calvin; Bishop Butler, Phillips Brooks and Dr. McCosh; Tom Paine and Robert Ingersoll; Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison and William McKinley; Confucius, Socrates and Mohammed; Jew and Gentile, heretic and true believer, agnostic and devotee, dreamer and thinker, poet, scientist, soldier, statesman and man of affairs in every walk of life. More than five hundred people, women as well as men, are here made to speak for themselves in numberless extracts.

The author puts the volume forth largely in the interest of toleration, and to show that there is much common religious ground on which men of most widely-varying phases of thought have met and stood. It is a sort of dictionary of personal faiths and a book of vivid interest as well as a valuable work of reference. To the preacher, the writer, the public speaker, the teacher or the journalist, it is a volume whose uses are evident.

The arrangement divides the subject into nine topics: "God," "Creation," "The Bible," "Christ," "Immortality," "The Millennium," "The Intermediate State," "Resurrection," "Heaven," and in each division the quotations are given under the authors' name alphabetically. There is also a full index.

CURED BY SWAMP-ROOT.

To Prove what this Great Kidney Remedy Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp Root investigated by the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, the one which we pub lish this week for the benefit of our readers speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Nov. 30, '99.

Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y:

DEAR SIRS:—"During three years I was frequently attacked with severe spells of sickness; many of these sick spells kept me in bed, dangerously ill, from three weeks to three months, under the constant care of the best physicians in Kansas City. The doctors said my kidneys were not affected, but I felt sure they were the cause of my trouble.

"Some doctors pronounced my case gall stones, and said I could not live without a surgical operation, to which I would never consent. In May, 1898, I had the most severe attack. Then the doctors said I could not live. It was during this illness that a friend suggested I try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I began to take Swamp-Root regularly, and when I had used only three fifty-cent bottles I felt fine and was able to do more work than I had done in four years. It has made a new woman of me. I have only had one slight attack since I began to take Swamp-Root, and that was caused by being drenched with rain and catching cold. This stomach trouble had bothered me for about twenty years and had become chronic. I am now 44 years of age and feel much younger than I did ten years ago My friends say I am looking younger every day. Five years ago I only weighed 104 pounds. I now weigh 155 pounds. I freely give this testimonial for the benefit of those who have suffered as I have." MRS M. E DALLAM, Proprietress of Criswell House, 211 W. 5th St., Kansas City, Mo.

Swamp-Root will do just as much for any housewife whose back is too weak to perform her necessary work, who is always tired and overwrought, who feels that the cares of life are more than she can stand. It is a boon to the weak and ailing.

How to Find Out If You Need Swamp-Root.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorders of these so important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. So when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone,—you may have a sample bottle free for the asking.

Many women suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. They are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for the many ills that beset womankind.

Neuralgia, nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, catarrh of the bladder, weakness or bearing down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine, with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it night or day, with scalding or burning sensation, sediment in it after standing in bottle or glass for twenty-four hours—these are all unmistakable signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are sleeplessness, dizziness, irregular heart, breathlessness, sallow, unhealthy complexion, plenty of ambition, but no strength.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, and is taken by doctors themselves, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

To prove its wonderful curative properties, send your name and address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., when you will receive, free of all charge, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, also a pamphlet of valuable information pertaining to kidney and bladder troubles, by mail prepaid. This book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy. Swamp-Root is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a free sample bottle, and to be sure and mention reading this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere.

Doddredge: He is, perhaps, the only commentator so large that deserves to be entirely and attentively read through.

INCAPABLE YOUNG WIVES.

I was told the other day of a young wife who, having married a poor, but ambitious man, seemed content to handicap him by her inefficiency. I hope the case was exceptional. The young people were boarding at a cost quite out of proportion to the young man's modest salary, and while he worked all day and came home tired, she had nothing to do but to kill time by idleness, to yawn with ennui, and stroll out to look at shop windows. Here was a manifest preparation for reefs ahead. The husband unduly burdened, the wife a mere bit of driftwood on the current, careless where she floated. Said a practical Irish woman going about her scrubbing in the house, and seeing that things were awry: "Why now don't ye take a bit place, two rooms or so, and keep house for your man, and save his money?" "Mrs. McGonigle," said bride, "I don't know how to make a cup of tea and I don't want to learn." The sensible, hard-working woman looked at the silly butterfly with wonder and pity, and after a moment of silence exclaimed: "Bad 'cess to the mother that brought ye up!"

Few mothers, let us trust, are so indiscreet as to bring their daughters up in conceited ignorance of domestic affairs. Indeed, most young women in these times pride themselves on being notable cooks and good managers. They go to market and buy from the butcher the best cuts for their purposes, and this does not imply the most expensive cuts by any means. The young women of our period take lessons in laundering clothes, and become past mistresses in clear starching, blueing and fluting, in washing flannels and cleaning laces. A girl is never fit for marriage until she has studied to some extent the art of good housekeeping. If her husband is wealthy, she can then order an extensive establishment with intelligence and direct her servants. If he is a poor man at the beginning of his career, she can help him in a thousand ways by her common sense and frugality. Again, the French and the Germans give us good examples to follow. The former initiate their daughters into every household secret and arm them against wastefulness. The latter regard no girl as educated until she has taken at least a year's course of instruction in housewifery. The fraulein is often sent to a pensionnat for the express purpose of learning domestic science, and high-born damsels are as carefully taught, usually outside their own houses, as are the daughters of the poorer classes, how to do and to direct every branch of homely housekeeping lore.

We need not echo the Irish woman's comment, "Bad 'cess to the neglectful mother," for bad 'cess is surely her portion in her inefficient and inadequate daughter of whom she may well be ashamed.—Christian Herald.

CIVILITY IS GOOD CAPITAL.

Look at the army of salesmen and saleswomen in our stores. There is not, I believe, as capable or honest a corps of workers in the world. Yet a French or English shopgirl will sell twice as many goods in the same time, and the customer will come again and again to be served by the same woman. Why? Because she is civil and courteous.

There is something pitiful as well as ridiculous in the indifference, the hauteur, the actual rudeness of many of the intelligent young men and women behind our counters. Yet, civility is their capital. By selling gloves or tinware they earn their living, and the more civil they are, the more they sell.

Most of my readers know a few saleswomen who have remained in some of the old business houses until an honored old age, and, by their ability and courtesy, have made for themselves hosts of friends. It is a pity that these foolish young people could not learn their business from them.—"An American Mother," in the Ladies' Home Journal.

WE ARE RUINED BY OUR SERVANTS.

In England, servants are trained for their work, and they do not look upon it as degrading. It is considered honorable to be a butler, for instance, and young men spend years in preparing for such positions. But in this country, where so many are trying to get to the top in occupations and professions for which they are not especially fitted, domestic servants look upon their employment as a mere makeshift—a stepping-stone to something else. They accept their positions because, for the time being, they can not get better ones. The consequence is, that with us the servant question has become a very difficult problem, and it is almost impossible to find efficient house-workers. The great mass of them are untrained and incompetent. They constantly hold in mind, and resent, contrast between their positions and those of the persons whom they serve. These feelings embitter them, and make them chafe under restraint and interference or instructions on the part of their employers. Probably not one person in a hundred, engaged in cooking in America, has even the most elementary knowledge of the chemistry of foods, or the relative healthfulness of methods of preparation. We are a nation of dyspeptics, largely because our cooks don't know their business. Badly prepared foods, taken in the stomach of a tired, worried man or woman, in this intense life, often bring about very disastrous results.—Success.

A LOUD CALL FOR THE BEST MAN.

Never before was the call for trained men so loud as now. They are in demand everywhere. Not only in the professions, but also in business houses, manufacturing establishments, and even on the farm, they are in great demand. The farmer who understands chemistry, who is able to analyze the forces of nature, to mix brains with his soil, will be the great farmer of the future. There is an increased demand everywhere for college-educated men. We find them occupying the best positions in our insurance, banking, manufacturing and transportation institutions. Never before was the call for liberally-educated men and women so great as to-day, and the market for brains and education is constantly widening. A manager of a large manufacturing institution says that his firm will not accept anything but college men, or, at least, men trained in polytechnic schools, if it can possibly avoid it. He says that their ultimate success is much greater than that of men not educated at college, and that they are able to adopt themselves to all surroundings, and to meet new conditions better than men with a limited education.—Success.

THE "GOOD MOTHER" OFTEN BAD.

The so-called "good mother" is too frequently really a bad one. She makes of her children monsters of selfishness, and never ends her voluntary slavery to them. So far as she is concerned, as a mother finds her chief joy in being "tromped on" by her boys and girls, no one need complain; but the trouble is it ruins the children. They grow up into selfish, ill-bred, dictatorial men and women, without self-control, discipline of mind or body, and utterly ignorant of that flower of courtesy which each human being should wear forever, fresh and fadeless, making the wearisome places of human life endurable by its charm. The most beautiful girl in the world, if she thinks of herself alone, and shows it by bad manners, can appeal only to few.—Ada C. Sweet, in the Woman's Home Companion.

THE BEST-LOVED WOMAN.

The world loves a true and noble woman more than the greatest beauty that ever lived or the most brilliant intellect. Within the memory of every one there are noble, womanly lives, which have been dearer and better to us than the most brilliant women of history. Not for the beauty of a Helen of Troy or a Cleopatra, nor for the brilliancy of a George Sand or a Joan of Arc, would we sacrifice these lives. Indeed, if we had to choose between one or the other, we would wipe from the slate of history those historic characters rather than destroy the sacred influences of a noble mother, sister or wife which have shaped and formed our careers.—A. S. Atkinson, M.D., in the Woman's Home Companion.

Temperance.

A FEARFULPE NALTY.

"A glass of beer can't hurt anybody! Why, I know a person—yonder he is now—a specimen of manly beauty, a portly six-footer; he has the bearing of a prince. He is one of our merchant princes. His face wears the hue of youth; and now, at the age of fifty-odd, he has the quick elastic step of our young men of twenty-five, and none more full of wit and mirth than he; and I know he never dines without brandy and water, and never goes to bed without a terrapin or oyster supper, with plenty of champagne; and more than that, he was never known to be drunk. So here is a living example and disproof of the temperance twaddle about the dangerous nature of an occasional glass, and the destructive effects of a temperate use of good liquors."

Now, it so happened that this specimen of safe brandy drinking was a relative of ours. He died a year or two after that with chronic diarrhœa, a common end of those who are never drunk, but never out of liquor. He left his widow a splendid mansion uptown, and a clear five thousand a year, besides a large fortune to each of his children, for he had ships on every sea, and credit at every counter, but which he never had occasion to use.

For months before he died—he was a year dying—he could eat nothing without distress; in the midst of his millions he died of inanition.

This is not the half, reader. He had been a steady drinker, a daily drinker for twenty-eight years. He left a legacy to his children which he did not mention. Scrofula has been eating one daughter for fifteen years; another is in the madhouse; the third and fourth were of unearthly beauty—there was a kind of grandeur in that beauty—but they were blighted, and they paled and faded into heaven, we trust, in their sweetest teens; another is tottering on the verge of the grave, and only to one of them is left all the senses.—Florida Christian Advocate.

Consistent with its policy to constantly improve its service, the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad is now relaying its track between New Orleans and Slidell, a distance of twenty-nine miles, with new steel rails, weighing seventy-five pounds to the yard.

The entire line has been ballasted in the most approved manner from end to end, and, notwithstanding the increased price of steel, two-thirds of the entire mileage has been relaid with 75-pound new steel rails, and the balance of the line will be relaid as rapidly as the material can be procured.

These improvements are not only an indication of the prosperous condition of the property, but an assurance of safety and comfort to travelers.

The entire Queen and Crescent system, of which the New Orleans and Northeastern forms a part, is now a thoroughly up-to-date system of railroads running the very best equipment in the most modern style.

COX—"The solemn notes that betoken the dissolution of this earthly tabernacle have again alarmed our outer door," and the spirit of our beloved Worshipful Master, Bro. T. H. Cox, "has been summoned to the land where our fathers have gone before us;" therefore,

Resolved, By Auburn Lodge No. 106, of Learned, Miss., that in the death of our beloved brother the Lodge has sustained an almost irreparable loss; one whose character in the community as a Christian, a citizen, a neighbor and friend, was beyond reproach, and as a Mason, was a shining "light," whose charity was as boundless as the wants of his fellow-men. If Bro. Cox ever had an enemy, none of us knew it, and his great popularity was attested by the large concourse of people who attended his burial—the largest seen in the community for many years. We mourn, not, however, as those who have no hope, for our departed brother had so ordered his life that the trestle-board thereof will pass such inspection as that it may be given unto him "to eat of the hidden manna," and to receive the "white stone with a new name written."

Resolved, That we extend to the stricken wife and children our tenderest sympathy, and would direct her to that source of consolation which furnished the inspiration which made her loved husband so consistent a Christian.

Resolved, That the thanks of our Lodge are due and tendered to the Lodges of Raymond, Edwards and Bolton for the presence of so many of their members on the sad occasion of the burial of our brother; and we are especially grateful to Deer Creek Lodge No. 356, of Rolling Fork, Miss., for very material services rendered our late Worshipful Master, who, as "a stranger in a strange land," received his fatal wound in their midst, and our hearts go out in gratitude to them for the tender care and attention bestowed on the sorrowing wife and children while among them.

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent to the widow of our deceased brother, a copy to the Clarion-Ledger and CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication, and a copy to Deer Creek Lodge No. 356, of Rolling Fork, Miss.; the same to be recorded on the Minutes of our Lodge, and that we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

T. B. Riggin, C. F. Mattis, V. P. Ferguson, Committee.

FERRELL—Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our friend and sister, Mrs. OPHELIA FERRELL, wife of Dr. S. J. Ferrell, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McFadden; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the committee appointed by the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church at DeSoto, Miss., of which she was a member, submit the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, It has pleased the Supreme Being of the universe to remove Sister Ophelia from a life of promise to her eternal rest and reward; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, as members of the Ladies' Aid Society, will try to imitate her example of good cheer and faithfulness during her long suffering and afflictions.

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her husband and loved ones in their great bereavement, and pray that God, who giveth grace in time of need, may uphold and comfort them in this trial.

Resolved, That a copy of this testimonial of our sympathy and love be sent to the family, and that a copy of same be sent to the Mississippi Messenger and the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and, further, that these resolutions be spread upon our Minutes.

Mrs. C. V. Ahlin, Mrs. M. J. Martiniere, Mrs. J. D. Cameron, Committee.

BROWN—Sister JULIA BROWN was born in the State of Illinois, Jan. 14, 1825, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Julia C. Edgecombe, in Plaquemines parish, La., on the morning of Nov. 19, 1900, at the ripe age of seventy-five years ten months and five days. She was married to Chester Brown, Sr., in New Orleans, Feb. 7, 1844. Twelve children were born unto this pair, nine of whom survive her and her husband. Most of these, if not all, belong to some church. One is a minister in the Episcopal Church. She joined the Methodist Church when she was thirteen years of age, having been at her death a follower of Christ for sixty-two years. When the writer organized Wesley Church at Daisy she was one of the seven who composed it, all of whom had been members previously, but the organization having gone down, they united with us. I talked with her several times during her last illness, and found her faith unwavering, her love unabated, and peace reigning supreme in her heart. Her Christian life was so pure, so spiritual, so elevated, that it seemed to be without a flaw. She crossed the flood safely, and awaits on the other shore the coming of God's hosts. J. F. SOURLOCK.

LUNSFORD—Mrs. S. H. LUNSFORD, who was a life companion for almost half a century of Mr. W. W. Lunsford, first saw the light of this life Jan. 8, 1837. She died at Owens Station, Miss., Nov. 11, 1900, and was interred at Old Hebron Church, of which she was a member, within a few yards of where she was born. Burial services conducted by the pastor of said church, Rev. Mack Broadaway, Nov. 13. She was loved and esteemed by all who knew her for her godly walk and orderly conversation, as was evidenced by the multitude of surviving friends in attendance at her interment. Her afflictions in her last hours were excruciating, but she bore them with Christian fortitude, giving evidence of supporting grace in a dying hour; hence, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for they shall live again." Hence her last words, "I am ready and willing to go."

Sister Lunsford leaves a husband, one son, one sister, one brother and four grandchildren to mourn their loss, but to rejoice in her infinite gain. O. F. H.

HOLMES—At a called meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, on Nov. 23, 1900, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Death visited our ranks on the fourteenth instant and took from us our beloved sister, Mrs. GEORGE HOLMES; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of our said sister our society lost one of its most faithful, useful and zealous members.

Resolved, That we commend her life of Christian usefulness and piety, and are grateful that it was our lot to have known and loved her.

Resolved, That while truly "death leaves a shining mark," we submit with meekness to what seems to us a cruel dispensation of our all-wise Providence.

Resolved, That while we know our loss is her gain, we humbly pray God to give us grace to say, "Thy will be done."

Resolved, That each member of this society wear a badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, and be published in the Times-Promotar and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

MISS MAY RANDLE,
Recording Secretary.

MCLEAN—On Oct. 15, 1900, the angel of death visited us and bore the spirit of our dear grandmother, Mrs. M. A. MCLEAN, to that home of the soul. Grandma was always working and planning for other people's pleasure and comfort. She spent the last few years of her life among her sons and daughters. She leaves a host of grandchildren, three sons, two daughters and two brothers to mourn her loss, but we mourn not as those who have no hope, for we have the assurance of meeting her again in heaven. We could not wish her back, for in her last days she became so blind she could not read her Bible, and she would always say, "If I could just read my Bible, but God's will be done." Grandma was about seventy-seven years old, and was sick only a few days before she died.

"Let all our sorrows cease to flow—
God has recalled his own;
And let our hearts still say,
Thy will, O Lord, be done."

HER GRANDDAUGHTER.

DENMAN—Whereas, God, in his all-wise providence, has seen fit to remove from us our beloved sister and friend, Mrs. AMANDA DENMAN, we, the Adams Aid Society, beg leave to submit the following resolutions:

Resolved, That in the death of Sister Denman this society has lost one of its prompt and zealous members, whose presence will be sadly missed.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to our bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this, their sorrow.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on our record, and a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication; also a copy be furnished the family of our deceased member.

Respectfully submitted.

Mrs. Maggie Flowers, Mrs. Maggie King, Committee.

If the architect of a house had one plan, and the contractor another, what conflicts would there be! How many walls would have to come down, how many doors and windows would need to be altered, before the two could harmonize! Of the building of life God is the architect and man is the contractor. God has one plan and man has another. Is it strange there are clashings and collisions?—Beecher.

The "Combination" Bible.

A SUPERB EDITION

New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

OUR "COMBINATION" FEATURE.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

THE OLD VERSION PRINTED IN FULL.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$4.25. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to December, 1901. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

New Machine Offer.

DEFIANCE NO. 4.

Construction. It is constructed of the best material in use, every bearing, without an exception, being of steel or case-hardened.

The Mechanical Devices of this machine are a combination of tried mechanical principles. In detail it differs materially from other machines. Its simplicity is at once apparent, and its great durability is admitted by the best mechanical experts.

No Vibration. This machine does not vibrate. Its motion is easy and quiet.

Lock Stitch. It is a lock-stitch shuttle machine.

Speedy, Light, Quiet. It is as speedy, light and quiet-running as any shuttle machine manufactured.

Double Feed—Positive Four-Motion. The double feed possesses advantages over all others. Its very shape and form obviates all the disadvantages arising from double feeds as they have heretofore been constructed, and combines in this machine all the advantages of both the single and double feed, doing away with the objections to either of them.

The operation of the feed mechanism is positive, giving an accurate four-motion movement to the feed without the use of springs.

The Needle Bar. This machine has a self-lubricating needle-bar, which is always kept clean, well-oiled, and the oil can not drop on the work and soil it.

The machine is self-threading. Put in the bobbin, draw the thread towards you, through the slot and, it is done.

The Loose Pulley for winding the bobbins without running the machine is so constructed as to admit of an instantaneous stop, stage and starting of the machine without stopping the treadle movement—a valuable improvement peculiar to this machine.

Automatic Bobbin Winder. The bobbin winder operates automatically, winding the thread on the bobbin regularly and as evenly as the thread on a spool. Can be operated without running the machine.

Extra Attachments, in velvet-lined case, sent free with each machine: 1 Tucker, 1 Ruffler with shirring plate, 1 Hemmer set (4 widths) and Binder, 1 Braider (Foot and Slide), 1 Thread Cutter.

Additional Accessories. Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: 1 Hemmer and Feller (one piece), 10 Needles, 6 Bobbins, 1 Wrench, 1 Screwdriver, Oil Can filled with oil, Oil Gauge and Thumb-screw, and a Book of Instructions. The Book of Instructions is so plainly illustrated and answers the purpose of a competent teacher.

DEFIANCE NO. 7½.

This cut shows our new and popular style, the No. 7½ Defiance Drop Cabinet perfectly protecting the machine from dust, and making a convenient and ornamental stand. When machine is ready for use the head is in same position as on ordinary style; when through using, it requires only the turning over of the leaf of table, and the sewing machine head drops into the case or cabinet between the drawers, completely out of sight, forming a handsome table with highly polished top.

No. 3 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of one drawer at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $32. Our price, $18.

No. 4 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of two drawers at each end and center drawer. Dealer's price, $34. Our price, $19.

No. 5 Machine, drop leaf table, bent cover, case of three drawers at each end and center drawer, making seven drawers in all. Dealer's price, $36. Our price, $20.

The chief difference between Numbers 3, 4, and 5 is in the furniture—i. e., the number of drawers. If you do not want to pay for the extra drawers, you need not do so. We sell these machines under a ten years' guarantee, by which we mean that if any part gives out by reason of any defect therein, the manufacturer will replace the same free of charge. Moreover, we allow the purchaser to test the machine ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

OUR OFFER.

We will send any one of the above-described machines at the prices named, and also send the ADVOCATE free for six months. The only condition attached to this offer is that subscribers who are in arrears must first pay up all arrearages to date. It would be well to avail yourself of this offer at once, as we can not promise that it will last very long. Notice that you take no risk whatever. We do all the risking. Address REV. W. C. BLACK,
512 Camp St., New Orleans

P. S.—The machine will be shipped direct from the factory in the North.

RIFLES and PISTOLS

According to the advices from South Africa, a very serious state of affairs has followed the recent operations of the Boers.
